Hull Asserts Kellogg Pact Bars Conflict In Ethiopia

All Signatories Urged to Keep Pledges of Peace.

U. S., Britain Plan Nationals' Safety

12 American Fliers Set to Fight for 'Ideals' of Abyssinians.

The Italo-Ethiopian Crisis.

Secretary Hull declared, in effect, that America looks to both Italy and Ethiopia to live up to their obligations under the peace pact of Paris.

Britain and the United States instructed their Addis Ababa legations to co-operate in evacuating their nationals in event of war.

France proposed a special status for Ethiopia, allowing Italy control.

Twelve American fliers were reported ready to fight for Ethiopia.

Col. Hubert Julian, "The Black Eagle of Harlem," was allowed to join the Ethiopian army.

By the Associated Press.

With an eye toward the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, Secretary Hull last night proclaimed America's belief in the sanctity of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact as an instrument for preventing hostilities throughout the world.

In a clear-cut statement, made in response to inquiries as to the definite policy of this Government toward the Afro-European crisis, Hull declared in effect that the United States looked to both Italy and Ethiopia to live up to their obligations under the pact of Paris.

"The United States and the other nations," the Secretary of State asserted, "are interested in the maintenance of the pact and the sanctity of the international commitments assumed thereby for the promotion and maintenance of peace among the nations of the world."

Hull's pronouncement of policy was considered by observers here as of special significance in view of his conferences Thursday with Sir Ronald Lindsay and Andre de Laboulaye, the British and French Ambassadors.

Great Britain and France are both signatories of the Kellogg-Briand pact along with the United States, Italy and Ethiopia.

Envoys Summoned.

Secretary Hull let it be known Thursday that he had called both envoys to the State Department to obtain from them the views of their governments on the situation now threatening war in Africa between Italy and the Abyssinian empire.

On the previous day he discussed the situation with Augusto Rosso, the Italian ambassador, and is understood to have diplomatically hinted to Mussolini's envoy that the United States considered war in Africa would disrupt the world's peace.

The text of Hull's statement tonight follows:

"The pact of Paris is no less binding now than when it was entered into by the 63 nations that are parties to it. By form and designation it constitutes a treaty by and among those nations.

"It is a declaration by the governments of the world that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies, and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another.

"Solemn Obligation."

"Furthermore, it is an agreement and a solemn obligation that the settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts among nations of whatever nature or of whatever origin shall never be sought except by pacific means.

"The United States and the other nations are interested in the maintenance of the pact and the sanctity of the international commitments assumed thereby for the promotion and maintenance of peace among the nations of the world."

Haile Selassie I, Emperor of Ethiopia, in a psychologically timed note to the United States on July 4, requested the United States to use its good offices to find ways and means of securing the Italian government's adherence to the pact

JEFFERSON CITY, MO.
A Ballad for Daddy.

Lloyd Robinson, 18-year-old Marshfield patricide, will have a long time in which to finish a "Hill-Billy" ballad lamenting his crime.

The young farmer entered the State Penitentiary here to begin a life term for the murder of his father, Robert Robinson, for part of $10,000 life insurance. He burned the body in a motor car.

Prison officials said he would have ample opportunity in his cell to write and compose as he wishes. He will, however, be without the help of a guitar which he strummed in jail at Marshfield.

The ballad, still incomplete, reads:

They done put me up to kill him,
My poor old white-haired dad;
I done it with a horseshoe strap,
The only thing I had.
I snuck right up behind him,
While he ate his supper cold;
I hit him once upon the head,
Just like I was told.

And now I sure am sorry
I done this terrible crime;
For killing my old daddy
I'll sure be doing time."

Chilling the Capital.

Hugh C. Middleton, 119 Eighth street southeast, has a plan for keeping the city cool. He presented it to the District Commissioners. He would build a dam at Great Falls, lay pipes along the curbs in the city and bring in the water to flood the streets.

"I have been trying to get the city of Augusta, Ga., to use this system but without success," Mr. Middleton said. "She has a canal running on one side of the city and at a 20-foot elevation above the business streets—the water ready at hand—but she will not use the water, and swelters! If you would start the day off with cool streets, I believe you would have a different Washington in summer—and world-famously so—much to the benefit and credit of the country's Capital."

Laura Ingalls Poised For New Record Try

Burbank, Calif., July 12 (AP).—As soon as her plane is tuned up and the weather is satisfactory, Laura Ingalls will set off for New York in another effort to break Amelia Earhart's West-East transcontinental record of 17 hours 7½ minutes, she said today.

The spunky "pint-sized" flier arrived at Union Air Terminal here last night, the first woman to fly westward across the Nation without a stop. Her trip from New York in her $40,000 monoplane required 18 hours 19½ minutes.

"I'm going to make a round trip out of it and will get away as soon as possible on the return part," she said.

Washington yesterday sweltered in the hottest weather of 1935, a blazing, humid day that killed one person and prostrated seven others.

The temperature here bounded to 96 at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and stayed above the 90 mark until after dark.

Hot as the day was, however, it did not even approach in intensity the celebrated scorcher of July 20, 1930. That day the mercury soared to 106, an all-time recorded high for Washington. The kiosk that used to stand on the Kosciusko triangle near The Post Building registered 110 degrees, which was one reason the town boosters were glad later to see it uprooted and banished.

Last night the official forecaster promised relief from yesterday's stifling weather, which, originating in the Middle West, took a toll of 60 lives in its movement east.

Local thunder showers were foreseen for today, accompanied by "somewhat cooler" weather. Tomorrow, the forecaster said, will be fair.

Yesterday was hot from the very outset, the temperature at 9 a. m. being 89. An hour later it had reached 91 and continued to mount until 2:30, when the 96 mark was recorded. It was still above 90 at 7 p. m.

Heat Kills Worker.

Representative Percy L. Gassaway, fun-loving statesman from Oklahoma, stood on the Capitol steps and for the benefit of movie cameramen fried a batch of eggs in a skillet, using only the sun in the process.

Merciful officials of the District government released all employes in offices at 3 o'clock.

Joseph Donovan, 45, of the 1700 block of Ninth street northwest, collapsed and died while working in the basement of the Hamilton Hotel. Emergency Hospital physicians said that heart trouble, probably aggravated by the heat, caused his death.

Nine persons were drowned at Granada, Colo., when cloudbursts, bringing an end to the heat wave there, changed streams into raging torrents.

Ten Deaths in East.

A tornado struck Montgomery City, Mo., the Associated Press reported, but no one was injured.

In the East alone ten deaths were reported for the last two days, in addition to two drownings. Sea breezes were unable to hold the mercury down at Atlantic City and New York. Milling thousands thronged Coney Island and other resorts, and many collapsed as the heat became increasingly intense. One suicide in New York was attributed to the blistering weather.

Shoved down from the North by a high pressure area, breezes fanned the baked plains of the Middle West, the Associated Press reported, spreading scattered showers and cool winds, but bringing no general rain.

"The Middle West should enjoy several days of pleasant weather," said A. M. Hamrick, meteorologist at Kansas City.

In Baltimore, the maximum temperature was 91, and Maryland reported one death from prostration and one downing.

Hankow Fears Using Yangtze, Flood Toll Mounts to 200 Dead

By the Associated Press.

Hankow, China, (Saturday), July 13.—A breach in the dikes protecting Hankow from the flooded Yangtze River was closed after feverish efforts early today, but authorities said the city of 778,000 was still in danger.

The break occurred yesterday, letting water into the Japanese concession. Consular authorities held their nationals ready for an emergency.

Meanwhile, dispatches from northwestern Hupeh indicating appalling loss of life and destruction in the Yangtze's rampage, and Chinese advices from Peiping said much of western Shantung Province was buried under 10 feet of water when the raging Yellow River, "China's Sorrow," roared over and through its barriers.

Reports from Laohokow, in Upeh, said 200 persons were dead, 3,000 houses destroyed and 10,000 persons homeless. Chaotien, 50 miles south of Ichang, was reported submerged, with few families surviving, while two unidentified towns above Ichang were reported destroyed, with heavy loss of life. Many human corpses were floating past on the swollen, wreckage-littered Yangtze.

Particularly in danger, reports received here said, was Shasi, upriver town of 100,000, which faced flood and starvation. The magistrate there commandeered food supplies and expressed fear of cannibalism. Despite the food shortage, bags of rice and beans had to be used to strengthen dikes.

No new word was received from Kingchow, above Shasi, of 300,000 population, which was submerged. Ship captains, their craft suffering heavily, said conditions were the worst in 50 years.

Secret Inquiry Seeking Cause Of Stratosphere Bag's Collapse

Sight-Seers Shooed Away From Scene of Explorer II's Accident Just Before Scheduled Take-Off; Fabric Returned to Manufacturer.

By the Associated Press.

Rapid City, S. Dak., July 12.—A secret investigation of the unexplained collapse of the giant stratosphere balloon just before it was to take off this morning, got under way late today.

Officials of the National Geographic Society and the Army Air Corps, evincing bitter disappointment at the disaster of their ambitious project aimed at a new altitude record for man, clamped down a tight lid on all information.

They requested all ousiders to remain out of the inflation area while their inquiry was in progress.

After Capt. Albert W. Stevens, flight commander, and Capt. Orvil A. Anderson, pilot and society representatives, completed a preliminary examination to ascertain why the top of the 3,000,000 cubic foot gas bag burst one hour before take-off, arrangements began for immediate disposition of the elaborate equipment. This was taken to indicate another attempt at the flight immediately was doubtful.

Thomas W. McKnew, assistant secretary of the Geographic Society and an executive at the flight base, however, declined any comment on the possibility of undertaking the ascent this year.

Capt. Stevens said the balloon fabric would be returned to its maker, the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation at Akron, Ohio, after the investigation was finished. Scientific instruments, all undamaged, will be removed and be returned to persons or concerns which furnished them.

At Washington, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the Geographic Society, said results of the inquiry must be awaited "as to the cause of the explosion and whether or

Mrs. Waley Called Gun Moll, 'Just Another Fool Woman'

U. S. Attorney Charges Weyerhaeuser Kidnaping Defendant Hides Behind Mormon Law of Wife's Subjugation to Husband to Elude Punishment.

By the Associated Press.

Tacoma, Wash., July 12.—Mrs. Margaret Waley was defended as "just another fool woman" and denounced as a sly "gun moll" for the George Weyerhaeuser kidnapers in arguments that brought her "Lindbergh law" trial near the jury tonight.

"She comes into the courtroom a girl who has suffered and who has been on relief all her life," pleaded Defense Attorney John F. Dore.

She should be convicted "as a warning to the underworld that people will not maintain kidnaping," argued United States Attorney J. Charles Dennis, in the final address to the jury.

Federal Judge E. E. Cushman then adjourned court until tomorrow morning, when the jury of ten men and two women will be instructed as to how to deal with the Lindbergh law and conspiracy charges against her.

The buxom 19-year-old girl cried softly as Dore, her court-appointed lawyer, denounced her convict husband, Harmon M. Waley, and William Dainard alias Mahan, fugitive brains of the $200,000 abduction.

A few hours previously Assistant United States Attorney Owen P. Hughes had charged her with attempting to hide behind the "Mormon religion" to escape punishment. He argued that she had sought refuge in the Mormon tenet that a wife was entirely subject to her husband's will and that Waley thus ruled her actions.

Dore referred to Waley, who recently pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 45 years in prison, as "that human cur."

"I don't think the theft of $200,000 from Weyerhaeuser is of much importance," he said. "The reason I object to kidnaping is that it makes people fear their children are unsafe * * *.

"Unless you give her justice the crime will be worse than the theft of $200,000—from someone who can afford it * * *.

"She is the child of a father who has no occupation other than filling up the house with children he can't support.

"The Government spent one whole day, and all the so-called scientists from Washington, D. C., proved that she lived in a house with her husband and Dainard * * *.

Tax Program Termed Road To Socialism

Organized Protests of Industry Swamp Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

A barrage of organized protests from business and industry yesterday smashed down upon the President's tax program.

Opponents implied that they believed it socialistic and insisted point-blank that key portions of it were "unsound" and should be abandoned.

Among the critics appearing before the House Ways and Means Committee were Robert L. Lund, representing the National Association of Manufacturers, and George B. Chandler, secretary of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

Arangements were made, too, to continue the fight today, when representatives of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States will tell the committee why they feel, as already announced, that the plan is destructive, confiscatory, and a "perversion" of the Federal taxing power.

The chamber, which has drawn sharp replies from President Roosevelt when it expressed opposition to other phases of his program, brought but little reaction by its anti-tax blast, issued Thursday. Asked at his press conference about it, Mr. Roosevelt replied only that the action speaks for itself.

"Spending Orgy" Assailed.

Lund's testimony followed a hectic session started by Chandler when he referred to the "present orgy of spending," to "wastefulness and untimeliness," to Congress being a "rubber stamp," to "fomenting hostility to our Constitution and hatred of the Supreme Court." And he started more trouble when he exclaimed:

"This is not redistribution of wealth; it is redistribution of poverty! Society is not leveled up by such abrupt artificial processes; it is only leveled down. Leveling up is a long process of the generations."

Lund objected particularly to the proposed graduated taxes on corporation incomes to replace the present 13¾ per cent flat rate, and the suggested tax on dividends received by corporations. He described both as "unsound," and added:

"The present burdens imposed upon corporations unduly restrain business activities.

"Business recovery is of paramount importance and will produce more relief than the present Government expenditures and will produce more revenue than the proposed increased rates.

"The confidence of business enterprises in future Government policies and activities must be restored, and the barriers to legitimate enterprise imposed or proposed must be removed, if we are to witness a substantial business recovery.

"The needs of the Government for further revenue can best be measured after a sound budget of expenditures has been presented and revenue estimates prepared, based upon normal business activity."

Discrimination Charged.

Elaborating his objections to the graduated corporation taxes, Lund asserted they would "discriminate" against "small investors, housewives, widows," who hold stock in large corporations. Illustrating, he said:

"A corporation which earns $20,000 would be taxed 10 per cent and one earning $1,000,000 would be taxed 17½ per cent — $2,000 for the former, $3,500 for the latter, or a difference of $1,500 or 75 per cent.

"The small concern is owned by a wealthy individual while the equivalent interest in the large corporation is owned by 10 small stockholders. In a vast number of cases this would be true. We thus penalize those least able to pay by assessing against their earnings a 75 per cent larger tax."

President and Advisers Off For Bay Island Outing Today

President Roosevelt is going on a week-end outing today with Cabinet members, Senators, Government officials—and just Democrats. The party will be at Jefferson Island Club, on an island in Chesapeake Bay, about 15 miles southeast of Annapolis.

While the White House emphasized that there was no political significance to the gathering and that the President was going solely for the purpose of taking a two-day vacation, the party will offer plenty of opportunity for discussion of the congressional situation, the next campaign and the question "where do we go from here?"

Cabinet members who will attend are Postmaster General Farley, Attorney General Cummings and Secretaries Ickes, Dern and Roper. The congressional group will be headed by Vice President Garner and Speaker Byrns. Members of the club who will be present are Senators Pittman and Copeland, New York; Walsh, Massachusetts; Gerry, Rhode Island; Radcliffe, Maryland; Duffy, Wisconsin, and former Senator Harry Hawes, of Missouri.

Guests will include:

Representatives Rayburn, Texas, and Warren, North Carolina; Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; Stanley Reed, Solicitor General; Thomas J. Coolidge, Undersecretary of the Treasury; George N. Peek, director of the Export-Import Banks; Charles Michelson, publicity director of the Democratic National Committee; Sidney Weinberg, of the Business Advisory Council; George H. Payne, of the Federal Trade Commission; Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the Treasury Department; Charles T. Russell, Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue; Clark Howell, publisher of the Atlanta Constitution; Samuel H. Kaufman, Special Assistant Attorney General; Charles H. March, of the Federal Trade Commission; John W. Finch, director of the Bureau of Mines, and Stewart McDonald, acting Federal Housing Administrator.

'Dreyfus Case' Ends

COL. ALFRED DREYFUS.

Dreyfus Dead; Storm Figure In French Life

Army Officer, Whose Case Rocked World, Had Been Ill a Year.

By the United Press.

Paris, July 12.—Col. Alfred Dreyfus, center of the greatest polemic in French history, the famed "Dreyfus case," which scattered death and disgrace in its path, died here today.

Dreyfus, who had been ill for more than a year, was surrounded by immediate members of his family.

Since the World War he divided his time between his quiet villa in Brittany and his Paris flat.

He lived a secluded and comfortable old age on a pension awarded after the old verdict against him had been quashed and he was reinstated to rank in the French army.

The Dreyfus case whirled France into a fury of prosecution 37 years ago and sent the then captain to Devils Island. After his release he was restored to honor.

The Dreyfus case scandal stirred France for 12 years. Tempests of emotion over the issue still linger. There remain ardent patriots who believe Dreyfus was not the symbol of persecution he was finally said to have been by the French Supreme Court.

Dreyfus was born at Mulhouse, Alsace-Lorraine, in 1859, the son of an Alsatian Jewish business man. He was schooled in Paris with brilliant results. Graduated from the French "West Point," the Ecole Polytechnique, he received his army commission as second lieutenant of artillery when he was 21.

His military career was irreproachable until the accusation of espionage came out of a clear sky in October, 1894. He finished ninth among 81 candidates in the Ecole de Guerre, despite Gen. Bonnefond's statement that he did not wish Jewish officers on the general staff.

On October 15, 1894, while Dreyfus was home with his pretty wife, he was arrested on orders of Gen. Mercier and charged with espionage.

The order said he had betrayed his country by selling to the Germans details of a hydraulic brake on the French 120 mm. gun, a hand-

Probe Dovetails With House Plans

Utility Executive's Office Entered by Investigators.

By Robert C. Albright.

Plunging with breathless suddenness into its 2½-hour-old lobby investigation, a special Senate committee yesterday took over files of the committee of public utility executives, placed officials of the group under oath and elicited testimony of $301,865 spent by the organization to defeat the "death sentence" clause of the utility holding company bill.

With virtually no advance warning, Chairman Hugo L. Black opened hearings in a spectatorless committee room, after a five-minute executive committee session. Philip H. Gadsden, chairman of the alleged lobbying group, had entered his own office yesterday morning to find two committee investigators in possession of his files and correspondence. Gadsden was called to the Capitol and put immediately on the stand.

Beats House to It.

The swift maneuver anticipated action already planned for next week by the House Rules Committee, which is conducting a nearly parallel inquiry. As a result, Chairman John J. O'Connor, of the House rules group, said some duplication of testimony may be inevitable. He also intends to call Gadsden, and subpena records of alleged power lobby expenses at their Mayflower Hotel headquarters.

Earlier yesterday, the House approved a list of conferees on the utility holding company bill, aligned 3 to 2 against the proposed "death sentence" for "unnecessary" holding concerns. Chairman Sam Rayburn of the House Interstate Commerce Committee had originally planned to ask for six conferees, divided 3 and 3 on the issue. No reason was given for abandoning this strategy.

Named to the House conference committee were Representatives Rayburn and Clarence F. Lea (Democrat), of California, who favor the "death sentence;" and George Huddleston (Democrat), Alabama; John G. Cooper, of Ohio, and Pehr G. Holmes, of Massachusetts (Republicans), who oppose it.

The "death sentence," efforts of the Administration to retain it, and so-called power lobbying activities to defeat it, are the hub center of the dovetailing lobby investigations now being conducted by House and Senate.

Senate Conferees.

Vice President Garner already has appointed Senate conferees, with friends of the "death sentence" outnumbering its opponents by 4 to 1.

This stroke was sharply challeneged in the Senate yesterday by Senator Ellison D. Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, ranking member of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, whose name was skipped over by Garner in selection of conferees.

Smith, who is opposed to the "death sentence," said Garner in making the appointments, "set aside a custom of 100 years."

"I've been here for more than a quarter of a century," said the South Carolinian, "and this is the first time that has been done. I'm not complaining—I just want to know if the chair is willing to take this responsibility."

Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive), of Wisconsin, hastened to the defense of the Vice President, and Garner said he had previously announced he was going to "exercise a discretion" in conference appointments. He said he had first consulted Chairman Burton K. Wheeler, of the Interstate Commerce Committee.

The dramatic swiftness with which the Senate lobby investigation opened took not only the alleged lobbyists involved by surprise, but left the committee without the usual first-day audience.

In rapid succession Black called to the stand Gadsden, Burnham Carter, publicity writer for the firm of Ivy Lee & T. J. Ross, of New York, public relations counsel, and

Reveal $301,865 Spent to Help Defeat Death Sentence Proviso.

A. C. Oliphant, who conducts a Washington information service for the Edison Electric Institute and other utility groups.

"We don't feel that we're on the defensive here at all," Gadsden told the committee. "We felt that this bill was destroying valuable property."

The witness frankly admitted he did everything he considered "legitimate" to block approval of the holding company dissolution section.

The utility committee executive, who said he also draws $31,000 a year as vice president of the United Gas Improvement Co., told of the following funds made available to his group for fighting the utility legislation:

An additional unexpended fund from the same group, $50,000.

Law Firms Paid.

Of the latter amount he said $75,000 each had been paid to the law firms of Sullivan & Cromwell and Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, engaged by the Edison Electric Institute to advise them on the legal aspects of various drafts of the bill.

While the Senate investigation was proceeding, Gadsden forwarded to Chairman O'Connor, of the House Rules Committee, an itemized statement of Washington expenditures, audited by Price, Waterhouse & Co., of New York. Aside from the $150,000 in attorney fees, and a bill unrendered by T. Justin Moore, Richmond, Va., attorney, these itemized expenditures from February 18 to June 3, totaled 151,865.71.

The inquiry opened with such speed that the committee proceeded without a counsel, and investigators were hastily "borrowed" from the Senate Munitions Committee. Gadsden said he could not identify some of the documents allegedly taken from his office.

One "memoranda" Black insisted "our investigator brought from your place," contained the following sentence:

"Your own advertising will further stimulate editorial comment all over the country."

Never Saw It.

"I never saw it," commented Gadsden.

"It is not our document," said Carter. "I don't know whose it is."

Gadsden said the committee of public utility executives had spent "very little" on advertising. He said he had no way of knowing how much the holding companies themselves had spent. Carter said he recalled sending out only one "suggestion" for an advertisement, entitled, "Judgment Before Trial."

But when Gadsden made a radio speech on May 19 he said advertisements were inserted in local newspapers.

"I did that so I would have an audience," said the witness. "I did not want to speak to empty atmosphere."

Questioning repeatedly turned on members of Congress who had been either personally contacted by representatives of the group, or who had been supplied with information.

Gave Data for Requests.

Carter said he had supplied data dealing with the utility question to all who had asked for it.

"What Senators or Representatives asked for such data?" asked Black.

"It's hard to remember," replied Carter.

"Well, which ones do you remember?"

"I'd rather supply that later."

"Never mind that. Whom do you remember supplying with the data?"

Carter said he had sent some factual information for a radio speech to Representative Florence P. Kahn (Republican), of California, and some information to Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), West Virginia. He said he had never met Mrs. Kahn.

"Have you ever met Representative Randolph?" asked Black.

"Yes," said Carter.

"Where?"

"At the Mayflower Hotel."

"Where, in the Mayflower Hotel?"

"In a room."

"In whose room?"

"In the room of Mr. Argabrite."

Member of Committee.

"He is vice president of the American Gas & Electric Co., and a member of the utilities committee."

Black instructed that Mr. Argabrite be asked to appear before the committee next week.

Gadsden was subjected to the same cross-fire.

"Have you seen any members of Congress?" Black asked him.

"Only one or two," replied Gadsden. "I would have liked to have seen more than I did, but my office duties would not permit. But, of course, every member of our committee saw some members of Congress."

He denied, however, that this activity was continued in "social or home circles."

Black asked if he knew "Mr. Tumulty" (Joseph P. Tumulty, former secretary to the late President Wilson, and now practicing law).

Gadsden said that he did.

"When is the last time you saw Mr. Tumulty?"

"As it happens, about an hour ago."

"Has he been in your office frequently?"

"He has been in my office several times."

Asked Business Men Here.

Black asked if Gadsden's group didn't try to get business men from every section of the country to come here and persuade members of Congress that the sentiment back home was against this provision."

"If the sentiment was that way, yes," replied Gadsden.

"Why do you think that was necessary?"

"To offset this terrific bombardment by the Government."

Gadsden said he was doing everything possible "to save the industry."

"By the 'industry' you mean holding companies," observed Black.

Black wanted to know if the utility executives spent any money on telegrams to members of Congress.

"Only on our own telegrams," replied Gadsden.

The committee chairman asked that Gadsden write to all holding companies interested in his group to ascertain how much money they spent for telegrams, how much they paid in salaries for "solicitation" of telegrams, and how much had been spent for advertising.

Gadsden said he would make the request.

As the afternoon hearing got under way, Carter was required to read some material he had submitted to Mrs. Katherine Curtis, of Women Investors, Inc., for a radio speech entitled, "Why the Utilities Are a Women's Industry."

Blushes While Reading.

Blushing profusely, while committeemen laughed, Carter read the manuscript.

Oliphant took the stand briefly to explain his "factual" information service, conducted primarily for the Edison Electric Institute and other utility groups. He said he received $18,000 a year from the institute, and sums ranging from $100 to $150 a month from certain other utility organizations. His gross income totals about $30,000 a year, he said, but when his expenses were deducted, he added, his net income was "mediocre."

Oliphant offered to supply the committee with specific data on his income, and other information from his office, but Black interrupted:

"Our investigators are already down there."

Oliphant said he had supplied his information service to the committee of public utility executives, because the two groups had a number of holding company clients in common.

Gadsden told of the formation of his committee early in February immediately upon introduction of the Wheeler-Rayburn utility holding company bill.

"Life or Death."

"Faced with the issue of life or death as represented in the destructive draft of the original bill, the committeee of public utility executives was organized by utility companies representing the major part of the electric industry and a large part of the gas industry," Gadsden said.

Of the 26 companies contributing $152,065 to the committee's expenses, his statement disclosed that Standard Gas & Electric Co. contributed the largest amount—$14,010. The Commonwealth & Southern Corporation advanced $13,140; the North American Co., $13,125; the Public Service Electric & Gas Co., $10,500; the United Gas Improvement Co., $10,755, and all others, sums under that amount.

The largest item on the committee's own statement of disbursements was $38,148 for printing and binding. Gadsden said the committee spent $27,720 for advertising, paid their public relations counsel $22,750 and spent $14,184 for "mailing service."

Administration Errs in Pushing Legislation Far Ahead of General Thought; NRA Office Dreary.

By Raymond Clapper

NO use struggling to say it in weather like this, especially when Ralph Waldo Emerson put it so perfectly years ago, as if he were writing for this moment.

He said:

"The law is only a memorandum."

The prohibition law perished in one decade of twisting. The average person thought it was foolish for Washington to tell him he could not serve his guests in his own home. The law is a memorandum, a notation in the statute books. It is presumed to set down in specific form the sense of public opinion generally on the subject concerned. Law is futile unless supported by public opinion. Therefore sound law follows, never precedes, public opinion. That is the weakness of so much reform legislation. It is premature.

In this, it seems to many now, the Administration is erring. Obviously, by any of the common tests of public sentiment, the Administration is attempting to push legislation too far in advance of general thought. The country does not even understand most of it.

Most independent observers would say that the country as a whole wanted stock market manipulation curbed and the SEC act on the whole has been approved by public sentiment. It is working.

The country in general realized long ago that big business had many economic advantages and the anti-trust laws were winked at to permit aggregation of large units. It is doubtful if any administration could enforce them literally.

NRA, as originally conceived, had a large measure of public support, but in administration it was carried so far afield that public sentiment turned on it and it died before the Supreme Court buried it.

In a twilight zone, when it is uncertain what the predominant sentiment is, the risk of enacting a law which might not have public support in its enforcement should be enough to cause caution. It is not always easy to assess public sentiment accurately. For one reason, some groups are more vocal than others—they have better facilities for presenting their case. The utilities, for instance, have spent a great deal of money in presenting their case and they have had, in the main, the sympathy of the majority of newspapers. Yet, in spite of the furore they have stirred up, it seems reasonably certain that a heavily preponderant opinion favors strict regulation and elimination of many practices, notwithstanding a sharp division on the one detail as to how far the Government should go in curtailing or eliminating holding companies.

But in some other proposals the Administration has gone far beyond indicated sentiment. It is, for instance, asking Congress to enact laws about which the President's own legal advisers are dubious, such as the Guffey coal bill. It is asking further discretionary powers for AAA and TVA when, if the public does not comprehend the details of this legislation, it is anyway hostile toward overloading the already top-heavy AAA with further broad executive powers.

It is brushing aside constitutional doubts when most people want to see the Constitution respected though some of them would be willing to see it changed.

Some in the Administration have held that reform measures should be jammed through while the opportunity existed. Discussion, they felt, could come later. It has been possible through this method to get a great deal of legislation on the statute books. But the experience of NRA is a recent demonstration of the fact that when the law is passed, the job has just begun. And much of the legislation being enacted under high pressure probably is destined to bump into the unpleasant fact that it was not fully sold beforehand.

The theory that hot weather is getting on the nerves of Washington officials is slightly jarred by the fact that Secretary Ickes, who has been the most irascible of all, has an air-cooled office. Or maybe he has not been spending enough time in it since the Virgin Island investigation started in the Senate.

Senator Hiram Johnson undoubtedly would have been a leading possibility for the Republican presidential nomination this year had he not supported President Roosevelt last time. But he would already have been an ex-President had he accepted Warren Harding's offer in 1920 to run for Vice President. A defeated aspirant for the presidential nomination that year, he refused the consolation prize. Coolidge took it and, three years later, when Harding died, became President.

* * *

NRA headquarters is a dreary place now. Just two years ago the corridors were crowded. Gen. Johnson was working after midnight. Codes were being hammered out. Blue Eagles were as thick as starlings. Now nobody goes there except the employes. They have little to do except to read old newspapers. A faded Blue Eagle poster, "Do Your Part—Buy Now," seems like a relic of other days. Linton Collins, Farley's patronage man in NRA, is canvassing Senators to find out which employes are to be dismissed. That is the final humiliation. The agency that was to put 4,000,000 men—or was it 4,000,000,000?—to work is now turning out employes, except those who have political pull enough to hang on.

"Deliberate thinking," he said, "is going out the window."

Inflation Fear Delays Senate Gold BillAction

McAdoo Raises Issue and Maloney Sees Peril of 'Buyers Strike.'

By the Associated Press.

Anxiety over inflation and the Nation's credit yesterday deferred a Senate committee decision on Administration legislation to protect the revamped monetary system from legal sharpshooting.

The House Banking Committee approved the bill, while the corresponding group in the Senate received Treasury assurances that a potential $10,000,000,000 inflation bubble was not involved, as asserted by some members.

In addition, the latter called in Secretary Morgenthau for testimony Monday on the credit aspects of the measure. Senators Glass (Democrat), Virginia, and McAdoo (Democrat), California, had expressed fears on that point.

McAdoo Raises Question.

The legislation would forbid court suits to collect the present equivalent of the old gold value of Government bonds containing the once familiar gold clause, which was the subject of last winter's historic Supreme Court decision.

Senator McAdoo raised the inflation issue at yesterday's session. He contended a provision permitting holders of such bonds to redeem them in cash at any time raised the possibility of redemption in printing press money.

John G. Harlan and J. G. Laylin, Treasury counsel, denied that such would be the case. They asserted that instead the cash for redemption would be raised by the issuance of new Government securities.

Buyers' Strike Feared.

From Senator Maloney (Democrat), Connecticut, and others, however, came suggestions that enactment of the bill might bring on a "buyers' strike" in which the Government would find itself unable to sell bonds.

Harlan and Laylin insisted it was unlikely that many of the $10,000,000,000 gold clause obligations would be presented for cash because they were selling on the market above par and carried high interest rates.

McAdoo persistently asked what would happen if all the obligations were presented for cash and the Government could not obtain the money in the bond market.

"Both assumptions are unreal," Laylin replied.

"It's conceivable that so many would be turned in that the bond market could not absorb the new issues," McAdoo said.

Disorder Forecast For Bastille Day

French Rioting Begun and 20,000 Police Are Set.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, July 12.—A preview of what authorities fear Bastille day, Sunday, may bring was seen today in a clash between members of the Croix de Feu, nationalistic organization, and "anti-Fascists" at Valenciennes.

Several persons were reported injured, one municipal councilor seriously, before Mobile Guards could disperse the several hundred fist-fighters.

A wall of 20,000 police stretched across Paris will cut it into two sections, the left wing "Popular Front" staging its parade on one side and Col. Francois de la Rocque's Rightist Croix de Feu on the other.

The "Popular Front" reported it had ordered 800,000 liberty bonnets, indicating the expected size of its gathering.

Circuses Must Parade.

Lynn, Mass., July 12. (U.P.)—Other communities may have out-grown the old-time circus parade but no more circuses need come to Lynn unless they strut their stuff, says Mayor J. Fred Manning. His ultimatum was issued this week after the Hagenbeck-Wallace troupe encamped here without parading, to the disappointment of thousands of children.

What a Baby!

Portland, Oreg., July 12 (AP).—When you talk about "iron men," consider the case of Vincent Short, 3 years old. Police received a frantic call that a baby had fallen from a window. A squad car and an ambulance raced to the residence. They discovered that Vincent, playing near an open window, had tumbled 16 feet to the ground, that he escaped without a scratch or a bruise, and that "he got up smiling."

Elks Choose Shannon.

Columbus, Ohio, July 12. (AP)—The Grand Lodge of the Elks said in a statement late today that James P. Hallinan, justice of New York Supreme Court, is the "unanimous choice" for grand exalted ruler to succeed Michael F. Shannon of Los Angeles. The lodge's national convention opens here tomorrow.

100 Women Fight Police Holding Irish Tax Sales

Fermoy, County Cork, Irish Free State, July 12 (AP).—A hundred Irish women, taking up the battle against sales of cattle for taxes where their men left off several weeks ago, stormed police barracks today in an unsuccessful effort to halt an auction.

Police drove them back after 45 solid minutes of fist swinging, rock throwing and scratches, but they left their mark in the shape of torn clothing, bruises and scratches.

The police, considerably chagrined at losing many helmets and having them flung back as missles at one stage of the battle, arrested eight of the disturbers.

Behind the barracks the sheriff held the sale.

Silent on John Roosevelt.

Norris, Tenn., July 12 (AP).—Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, today would neither deny nor confirm a report that John Roosevelt, 18-year-old son of the President, has gone to work for the TVA. A published report said young Roosevelt had taken a job in the cost-accounting department of the TVA, arriving here about three weeks ago.

Kingfish Says 'People' Must Oust Walmsley

Tells Old Regulars That Will Wait for Voters to Show Will.

By the Associated Press.

New Orleans, July 12.—Senator Huey P. Long, Louisiana's political "dictator," today told a committee of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley's "old regular" organization that "it must be the people, who put him (the mayor) qut." The Senator said he would call a session of the State Legislature to address Walmsley out of office within 24 hours after the "old regulars" obtained approval of a majority of the city's voters for a petition requesting the mayor's removal.

"We are not going to put him out," Long told the committeemen.

The old regulars decided to hold a general caucus at 10 a. m. Monday, when, they said, they would recommend public meetings throughout the city to discuss the Senator's proposals.

"It must be the people who put him out, not us."

Senator Long said that if the city would get an administration that "is dependable" and "an efficient bookkeeping system I think we can work things out."

Long made his proposition looking to the ousting of Walmsley after the "old regulars" had laid their cards on the table in complete surrender of the city organization to Long.

While the "old regular" committee was in conference with Long, Mayor Walmsley sat in his office with only a handful of loyal followers and reiterated his determination "never to resign."

133 Die of Typhoid In Epidemic in Rome

Rome, July 12 (AP).—A typhoid epidemic in Rome brought death to 133 persons up to July 9, it was officially announced today. Seventy-nine deaths out of 1,992 cases occurred in the seven days between July 3 and July 9.

Although the announcement said the epidemic apparently had passed its peak, rigorous precautions were taken to prevent further spread of the disease. Thousands of pounds of suspected milk, cheese and butter were destroyed.

London, July 12 (AP).—Howard Hyman Kronick, 41, of New York and Hollywood, who described himself as a representative of an aircraft corporation, was sentenced to 21 days in jail today for failing to report to immigration authorities when he arrived here. His deportation upon release was recommended.

Roosevelt Firm For Stocks Ban In Banking Bill

Tells Glass It's Unfeasible to Allow 'Limited Underwriting.'

In a conference with Senator Glass, chairman of the Senate Banking sub-committee, yesterday, President Roosevelt stood firm in his opposition to the provision in the banking bill permitting Federal Reserve member banks to underwrite security issues under certain limits.

The President said he believed it to be practically impossible to draw the language of the bill to permit certain types of underwriting and at the same time to prevent sale of securities by banks to their own trust accounts or to those of other banks. The President said that rather than permit this practice he would prefer to have no underwriting privilege in the bill.

Following his conference with the President, Senator Glass said Mr. Roosevelt was not altogether satisfied with the bill, particularly with the underwriting privilege.

"I told him I thought it was a damn good bill," Glass said. "If someone could devise a better underwriting provision I would be glad to see it incorporated, but I know of no better one."

Following the President's discussion of the bill, it was predicted that the provision would be eliminated either in the Senate or in conference. Chairman Fletcher, of the Banking Committee, said he believed the bill contained many safeguards, but it might lead to wider participation of banks in the security business.

President Roosevelt also conferred with Senators Black and Copeland and Representative Bland on the shipping bill. The President said he did not like the bill in its present form and that he had asked representatives of the Commerce and Postoffice departments to discuss its provisions with its sponors.

The President expressed the hope that some action would be taken on legislation designed to take the profits out of war. He said that he would request early action on the measure, but indicated that it doesn't necessarily come under the head of "must" legislation. Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, discussed the proposed legislation with the President.

and its obligation to settle all disputes by peaceful means.

The Abyssinian Emperor's plea was interpreted as a request that the United States invoke the Kellogg-Briand pact. Hull, in a note approved by President Roosevelt, suggested that the League of Nations, which was then attempting to arbitrate the dispute, was a competent agency to achieve a peaceful solution.

Secretary Hull's statement tonight was made to newspapermen and was not transmitted to either the Italian or Ethiopian governments. State Department officials gave no indication as to whether the text of the statement had been made known to the British or French Ambassadors or the envoys of other signatories of the pact.

Britain, U. S. Prepare To Evacuate Nationals

By the United Press.

London, July 12.—Britain and the United States today instructed their legations at Addis Ababa to cooperate in evacuating their nationals from Abyssinia in event of war with Italy.

Meanwhile, diplomats extended discussions of the proposed Franco-British-Italian conference to prevent hostilities. A French suggestion was playing an important role in the behind-the-scene diplomatic parleys. It envisaged transformation of Abyssinia into another Iraq.

Advocates would seek a unanimous League of Nations Council verdict indicating Abyssinia, by non-fulfillment of conditions imposed when she entered the league in 1923, should be placed under a special status. It would be modeled on an Anglo-Iraq treaty, which nominally conceded Iraq's independence, but actually entrenched British control.

Italy was reported sympathetic to the plan, but Britain was aloof. If it materialized Abyssinia would be subjected to Italian control, leaving Britain a zone of influence in the Lake Tsana region. France would retain influence in the Addis Ababa to Djibouti Railway district.

Sponsors of the plan said if the league council favored it and Abyssinia rejected it Italy would be entitled to wage war under article 15, paragraph 7, of the covenant.

The British press devoted much space to Abyssinia today. The New York correspondent of the News-Chronicle reported Sir Samuel Hoare's speech in Parliament yesterday caused "dismay and consternation" in the United States, where it was regarded as an astonishing feat of boxing the compass. "Once again the suspicion has been aroused that British foreign policy is too tortuous and super-subtle to be followed by any other country," he said.

The Daily Mail hoped "the cabinet will make all possible efforts to convince Abyssinia's emperor that Italy means business and that his best plan is to comply with her demands promptly."

"Mussolini is drunk with power, pride and patriotism," the new statesman said. "He intends to get what he wants in his own way. Capt. Eden's well-meant but clumsy attempts to buy him off only made matters worse."

Arrest of Consul's Wife Stirs Protest

By the Associated Press.

Rome, July 12.—The Italian government made ready tonight to investigate fully the circumstances of the arrest at Gondar, Ethiopia, of the wife of the Italian consul, Signora Raffaele di Lauro, and her reported detention for two days.

Official circles indicated another vigorous protest similar to the many Italy has presented in recent months would be handed to the Ethiopian government.

The official communique, which reported also the arrest of some servants of the Italian military attache of Addis Ababa, indicated these detentions would furnish further motives for energetic protests.

However, an official spokesman declared the new incidents, like those reported to have occurred at Harrar, Ethiopia, several days ago, would not stampede Italy into her campaign against Ethiopia before she felt entirely ready.

By the Associated Press.

Grasse, France, July 12.—Twelve American fliers, assured of "plenty of promotions and decorations," were reported today ready to fight for Ethiopia against Italy.

Hal Du Berrier, former American commercial flier, who announced he had recruited the dozen aviators for service in the African empire, explained:

"We are willing to fight for an ideal. The Ethiopian authorities assured me there would be plenty of promotions and decorations."

Disclosing that Maj. Granville Pollock, veteran of famed Lafayette Escadrille, was helping him form the nucleus of an Ethiopian air corps, Du Berrier said he hoped the party would be "greatly strengthened" in Egypt.

He declined to say when the fliers would leave for Africa or reveal the names of the other pilots.

Bread Shortage Looms In Des Moines Strike

Des Moines, July 12. (AP)—Des Moines faced a bread shortage today as its day-old bakery strike continued in deadlock. The managements of the six major bakeries affected by a strike of bakers, drivers and salesmen, announced they had no intention of complying with the strikers' demands for closed shops. The strikers continued to picket the bakeries, preventing deliveries.

Between 60 and 75 per cent of all the bread baked by Iowa bakeries is baked in Des Moines, and more than half of the Des Moines output is distributed elsewhere in the State.

Union leaders said bread for all hospitals in Des Moines would be permitted to leave the bakeries.

When the break occurred at 3 a. m. (mountain standard time) the bag contained about 375,000 cubic feet of helium—one-eighth its capacity—concentrated in the top. It was to take off with that amount, allowing space for expansion from the sun's heat.

Aside from the inquiry, the flight base was virtually deserted as the personnel contemplated the virtual wreckage of its second stratosphere expedition in two years.

Last year a Geographic Society-Army Air Corps balloon carrying Stevens, Anderson and Maj. William E. Kepner exploded over Nebraska, forcing the men to make parachute jumps.

Eye-witness versions of the actual break varied greatly. Albert Smith, of Rapid City, said he was watching the inflation through a telescope.

"It all happened so quickly," Smith said. "The bulge raised in an instant and then it 'popped.'

"I was stationed at a fairly good vantage point on the rim and had my telescope trained on the balloon and just happened to see bulge come out. I don't believe the bulge could have lasted more than 10 seconds before the gas started seeping out."

Flight officials indicated their investigation might be completed tomorrow. Capt. Stevens said all official reports would be sent to the chief of the Army Air Corps and the Geographic Society in Washington, to be released there.

McKnew said the society was a heavy loser by the misfortune to the venture, the total cost to it being between $175,000 and $200,000.

'Not Licked Yet,' Spirit Of Officials in Capital

"We are not licked yet."

This remark by Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, director of the Bureau of Standards and chairman of the advisory committee for the stratosphere flight, summarized the optimism of Washington officials and their gratification that no one was seriously hurt when the Explorer II collapsed.

"Why the top of the balloon ripped when the measurements of the fabric showed it to be many times stronger than necessary to carry the load is not yet known," he said, adding that the committee must await reports of an examination of the torn balloon and of news photographs taken at the scene.

Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society, issued a statement giving divine thanks that there were no casualties. Maj. Gen. Oscar Westover, acting chief of the Army Air Corps and a member of the advisory committee, expressed the opinion that investigation will disclose "some new element or condition to be reckoned with in the future preparation for exploration of the stratosphere which the limited experience so far obtained in this realm of scientific endeavor has yet failed to develop."

The blue haze which issued from the balloon when it ripped and collapsed was attributed to talcum powder by officials. The powder had been used in folding the bag to prevent friction. It was absolved of all blame.

Metcalf Raps Farm Measure As 'Surrender'

Fruits for Canning, Hops for Beer Are Exempted From Agreements.

By the Associated Press.

Fruits for canning and hops for beer were exempted from marketing agreements under the new farm amendments in changes voted yesterday by the Senate.

A day of slow debate on the measure saw most of the big controversies put over until next week.

The debate ended with one of the bitterest attacks yet made on the measure—a speech by Senator Metcalf (Republican), Rhode Island, in which he said the amendments "mark a new high in the surrender of our legislative powers and the shirking of our direct obligations to the American people."

There were indications, however, that one of the chief matters of dispute in the bill had been eliminated when Senator Lonergan (Democrat), Connecticut, introduced amendments which he said the Department of Agriculture had agreed to, removing the proposed power to regulate advertising.

Measure Cuts Restrictions.

One amendment would forbid the issuance of orders prohibiting, regulating or restricting advertising on commodities covered by the act. Another would prohibit taxes on the processing of any commodity into newsprint, Lonergan said both the department and Chairman Smith, of the Agriculture Committee, had agreed to the amendments.

Meanwhile, faced with mounting litigation and unfavorable court decisions, farm officials disclosed that processing tax collections dropped more than $4,600,000 during May.

Records showed $46,889,684 in collections for April, $42,284,403 for May. May taxes were collected in June and taxes for June are being paid now.

Suits Curtail Collections.

Farm officials said much of the decline during May must be attributed to the 153 suits filed to restrain tax collections and to recover amounts paid. These suits were said to involve approximately $1,000,000,000.

Most of the suits were said to have been filed by processors of wheat, hogs and cotton, and the collections on these commodities showed the greatest decrease.

Wheat tax collections declined from $11,288,329.99 in April to $10,414,531 for May. Hog taxes in April were $16,276,261.85 and in May dropped to $10,826,051. Cotton taxes in April were $9,057,013.30, and in May $8,784,377.

Recognition Granted Soviet by Belgium

Paris, July 12 (AP).—The Belgian and Soviet Ambassadors today exchanged letters in which Belgium recognized Soviet Russia.

Establishment of diplomatic relations was negotiated secretly in Paris instead of Brussels presumably because this neutral capital was considered the best place to bring the two countries together. Pending an exchange of ministers, Ambassadors Baron de Gaiffier of Belgium and Vladimir Potemkin of Russia are expected to begin immediately commercial negotiations.

Nine Die in Sleep In Sudden Flood

Boy, Floating on Log, and Girl, in Tree, Rescued.

By the Associated Press.

Granada, Colo., July 12.—Caught in their sleep, nine persons were drowned early today by flood waters that rushed down upon Granada and nearby farms. Property damage was placed at $200,000.

The dead, all drowned as they slept in Eder ranch house, 6 miles south of here, are Mr. and Mrs. Anton Eder and their daughter, Paulina, 24; Robert Eder, 12; Glenn, 17; Ruth, 8, and "Junior," 7; Mrs. A. Karn, ranch woman, and her son, Leo.

William Eder, 10, who floated 3 miles on a log, and his sister, Minna, 14, who found herself in a tree without realizing what had occurred, were saved.

The flood roared down Wolf and Granada creeks after a series of cloudbursts near here.

At the Eder ranch, which is in a valley, the water was 3 miles wide and 4 feet deep. The house was swept away before the victims were aware of the danger.

All the bodies were recovered.

Escape Attempt Marks Hearing Of Schweitzer

Confessed Dickinson Killer Tries to Leave Court as Accomplice Faints.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, July 12 (AP).—An apparent attempt to escape by William C. Schweitzer, alias Lee Ferris, and the fainting of one of his three confessed accomplices in the hold-up slaying of Howard Carter Dickinson featured the court appearance today of the quartet of "cocktail bar racketeers."

Recorders' Judge Thomas M. Cotter ordered Schweitzer and the women—Jean Miller and Loretta and Florence Jackson—held without bail for trial.

Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea said he hoped to bring to trial next Thursday the four, who confessed they lured the staid 52-year-old New York attorney from his hotel the night of June 25 to slay him in Rouge Park for the $134 he carried.

Woman Faints.

The fainting of the Miller woman provided Schweitzer with his momentary opportunity to make a break for freedom. The 26-year-old gunman pushed his way through the crowd around the woman, helped carry her into the corridor, then walked toward an unguarded exit.

The patrolman yanked him back by his collar.

Dr. Robert Kallman, Wayne County medical examiner, testified at the examination that Dickinson, a nephew of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, was "alive but undoubtedly unconscious" when the second shot was fired into his body to "make sure he was dead and couldn't tell."

Confessions Read.

The confessions of the four were read in court. Loretta Jackson's was the only one which differed from those made public by McCrea last week. She said that the poker game which preceded the "ride" slaying was a "strip poker party."

All four of the defendants were charged with murder. McCrea abandoned an earlier plan to use the Miller woman as a State's witness.

"We've got enough evidence to convict all of them," he said.

Mitchell Appoints Negro to West Point

Race Now Has Three for Military Academy.

By the Associated Press.

Another Negro was named yesterday as a candidate to West Point, to give the academy three cadets of their race.

Representative Mitchell (Democrat), Illinois, the only Negro member of Congress, appointed Emory Joseph Jordan to the academy and named Lawrence Oliver Clark and Carl Carr as alternates. All three are Chicago Negroes.

The only Negro cadet now at West Point is Benjamin Oliver Davis, jr., the son of the only Negro officer now on active duty in the Army.

His father, Col. Benjamin O. Davis, is assigned to duty with the R. O. T. C. at Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala.

Another Negro, Felix K. Kirkpatrick, jr., of Chicago, will enter West Point with this year's incoming class. He was appointed by former Representative DePriest before DePriest was succeeded by Mitchell.

On board the Army transport Antilles when she was torpedoed October 17, 1917, Capt. Ghent gave the orders to abandon ship. Although the vessel sank in 4½ minutes 167 of the 234 persons aboard were saved. As a result of this service he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

Capt. Ghent is survived by his widow, Mrs. Edna Geneva Ghent, now in Los Angeles. A native of Texas, Capt. Ghent was 55 years of age. In 1927 he commanded the transport Chaumont. He retired February 1, 1932, after 30 years of service.

Widow Seeks $25,000 In Death of Husband

Mrs. Edna R. Passeno, widow of Everett C. Passeno, jr., of 1226 G street northeast, yesterday in the District Supreme Court filed suit against Robert Bailey, 1238 Monroe street northeast, for $25,000 damages because of the death of her husband as a result, she charged, of an accident on the Defense highway.

The widow alleged her husband was driving his machine toward Annapolis when an automobile driven by Bailey collided with it. She accused Bailey of violating the Maryland State motor laws and blamed the accident on his alleged fast driving. Attorneys Joseph L. Tepper and Jesse L. Hall represented the plaintiff.

Melvin Purvis, Storied Bane Of Killers, Quits Justice Post

Difference With Superiors Rumored as Ace of Sleuths Resigns.

His score with gangland evened, Melvin Purvis yesterday resigned as chief of the Justice Department bureau in Chicago.

The man who led Federal agents a year ago when they laid low John Dillinger ran true to form by injecting the element of uncertainty into his decision to quit.

He told the Associated Press in Chicago his resignation had been tendered to and accepted by J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Bureau of Investigation.

Purvis vaguely attributed his withdrawal from the service to "personal reasons" and declined to say what he intended to do in private life.

There was speculation over whether he was on good terms with his superiors. Chicago newspapermen recalled that after Purvis personally gave out details of the Dillinger killing further news of Federal agents in Illinois was made public at Washington.

Always in Action.

Due to his faculty for always being in the thick of it when something important happened, the 32-year-old agent often was a prominent if mysterious figure in the Government's offensive against kidnaping, murder and bank robbery.

His unassuming personality fired the imagination of reporters as well as newspaper readers. The writers always attributed to modesty his denials, more often than not correct, of feats of valor with which he was credited.

In time the name of Purvis became synonymous with the Justice Department. His exploits, both actual and supposed, were re-enacted in the movies and provided the material for several books.

The young agent's warfare against the Dillinger mob was largely personal. He despised the gang for cutting down three of his best friends and aids—W. Carter Baum, slain as Dillinger and others shot their way to freedom when surrounded April 23, 1334, at Little Bohemia Lodge, near Rhinelander, Wis., and Inspector Samuel P. Cowley and Herman E. Hollis, victims of "Baby Face" Nelson, himself fatally wounded in an encounter at Barrington, Ill.

Present at Dillinger Death.

Purvis figured in the killing or capture of every one of the Dillinger gangsters, with the possible exception of John Hamilton. Even Hamilton often has been reported as dead and secretly buried.

In addition, he participated in the tracking down of seven persons who harbored Dillinger. Included were a nurse and a lawyer. All since have been convicted or have confessed their guilt.

Outstanding in Purvis' career were the swift-moving events of July 22, 1934. He was seated in an automobile out front when the long-sought Dillinger and a girl companion strolled into the Biograph Theater.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.
MELVIN PURVIS
leaving Chicago office yesterday.

Purvis summoned help. By the time Dillinger emerged from the show a dozen agents were loitering in the immediate vicinity. The fugitive realized he was cornered at the last moment and sought to flee down an alley. As he retreated with drawn pistol a fusillade of bullets sent him sprawling to earth.

Although Chicago reporters and the hero-worshiping public refused to believe it, Justice officials later announced that three other agents, and not Purvis, fired the shots which finished Dillinger.

Even the 64-year-old planter father of the agent at the time believed his son killed the gangster. The elder Purvis commented:

"It looks like it was shoot or get shot. You can't play with rattlesnakes."

Daniel M. Ladd, son of the late United States Senator Edwin F. Ladd, of North Dakota, was chosen as Purvis' successor. Familiarly known as "Mickey," he was in charge of St. Paul.

have empty stomachs themselves.

"There'll be Waleys in the world, and Mahans, as long as there are Weyerhaeusers. When civilization wipes out both classes, it will be different."

Dore said he would appeal the case at his own expense in the event Mrs. Waley was convicted.

"Waiting for Dainard."

While Hughes bitterly attacked her for her story that she was an unwilling participant in the abduction of the 9-year-old timber heir, Mrs. Waley looked on angrily.

The little victim, testifying yesterday as the Government's star witness, failed to identify Mrs. Waley as a member of the gang. From photographs he identified Waley and Mahan. He said, however, he once heard a woman's voice at the kidnap hide-out house in Spokane.

Mrs. Waley's attorneys rested their case quickly after Federal prosecutors had questioned her briefly but searchingly on her contention that she was an unwilling participant.

At one point Hughes, facing Mrs. Waley's glare, said she was "waiting for this Dainard with open arms."

He likened the drab, plump defendant to the "gun molls" of Eastern gangs and said her presence was necessary to divert suspicion.

"Since the State of Utah was admitted to the Union," said Hughes, "the women of Utah have equal rights with men; they are admitted to vote; she's well enough educated to know what she's doing. She is claiming that to avoid the criminal laws of her country."

Mrs. Waley's home is at Salt Lake City. She and her husband were captured there when she was caught trying to pass a $5 bill from the ransom money.

Hughes displayed to the jury a paper box in which the boy testified he was imprisoned while his abductors rode about during their ransom negotiations with his father, J. P. Weyerhaeuser, Tacoma lumber company executive.

"I wish you could feel that little boy's feelings," said the prosecutor.

Recalling Mrs. Waley had testified she heard the little victim ask to be let out of the box, Hughes, with rising voice, said:

"If she had any woman's soul she knew the mother was waiting here for him. And with that little boy's words, 'Can I get out now, mister?' ringing in her ears she went on through with it."

Origin of Plot Recalled.

Although Waley had been brought here from McNeil Island Federal Prison as a potential defense witness, Mrs. Waley's attorneys ended their case with only the testimony of the accused woman.

Hughes pointed to evidence showing Mrs. Waley had directed the attention of Mahan and her husband toward the wealthy lumber family May 14, ten days before the abduction, by reading to them a newspaper account of the death of J. P. Weyerhaeuser, sr., wealthy grandfather of the victim.

The prosecutor pointed out that Waley had dyed his hair red, and that Mrs. Waley had accompanied her husband and Dainard to Spokane to "case the job."

He recalled evidence showing Mrs. Waley while at the hideout house left two forwarding addresses under the name "Von Metz." One of these was Waley's mother's home here and the other was "General Delivery," Butte, Mont.

It was at Butte that Mahan escaped capture after abandoning an automobile containing more than $15,000 of the ransom money.

Old Autos Peril Lives Here, Official of A. A. A. Charges

Letter to Legislators Asks Semi-Annual Inspection Legislation.

Washington is a city of superannuated automobiles, according to the District of Columbia Motor Club which yesterday advocated passage of the bill which would compel semiannual inspection of cars.

Thousands of vehicles little better than junk are jeopardizing life and property here daily, said Ernest N. Smith, executive vice president of the A. A. A., in a letter to Senator William H. King and Representative Mary T. Norton, chairman of the Senate and House District committees, respectively.

Seventy-five thousand of the cars operating in the Capital are over five and a half years old, 62,000 are over six and a half years old and 50,000 are over seven and a half years old, Smith wrote.

The inspection bill, approved by the House District Committee, is pending before the Senate Committee and is scheduled to be brought up for a vote in the House on the next District Day. Seven States, including Maryland and Virginia, have enacted similar laws.

Pointing out that traffic fatalities are continuing at a rate almost equal to the record toll of 1934, the letter declared

"The A. A. A. District of Columbia Motor Club earnestly believes that legislation making periodic inspection compulsory, together with the safety-responsibility bill already enacted, would afford a degree of control of driver and vehicle that would work for a measurable improvement in conditions within a short period of time."

Mother-in-Law Confesses Part In Fatal Torture

New York Hunts Dancer Involved in Killing of Chicago Clerk.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 12.—In New York's Chinatown, police tonight sought Mrs. Evelyn Smith, former dancer, as the "torture" slayer of Ervin Lang. Assistant Prosecutor Irwin Clorfene said a complete story of the gruesome crime had been told him by Mrs. Blanche Dunkel.

Mrs. Dunkel, Lang's mother-in-law, who, authorities believe, was moved to procure his death out of jealousy over his attentions to a younger woman, told him, Clorfene said, that the dancer, unaided, slew the victim for $500.

With Mrs. Smith was believed to by Harry Jung, Chinese laundry owner, but Mrs. Dunkel insisted he had no part in the actual killing. Police said Jung and Mrs. Smith lived together.

Quoting from the statements he said Mrs. Dunkel gave him, Clorfene said:

"He knew all about it and agreed to get a knife and saw and furnish a car for disposing of the body, but that's as far as he would go."

Relating the story of how Lang was lured to his brutal death, Clorfene quoted Mrs. Dunkel as saying that on Saturday night in the dancer's apartment Evelyn had administered ether until Lang became limp and had kept the body in a closet overnight because there was a party in progress in the building.

The dancer, according to the statements made public by Clorfene, had strangled the store clerk while he was still unconscious from the drug, and had dismembered the body Sunday mornjng.

"Then she wrapped it in a blanket and put the legs in a small trunk," Clorfene said.

Mrs. Smith told her, the woman's statement continued, that the trunk was within a 15-mile radius of the Hammond (Ind.) swamp where the torso was found.

Though Mrs. Dunkel said after her final statement to authorities, she felt "much better now that it is all over with," authorities said there were still some discrepancies. They said they were not fully satisfied that her tale that the former burlesque dancer killed Lang alone was the truth, and said they believed a man must have participated in the killing, perhaps two.

They also considered a request upon San Francisco authorities to search in the Chinatown there for the missing couple.

Mrs. Dunkel maintained in her statement that she had procured the killing because "Lang went around with other women too soon after her daughter's death."

But her relatives told police, they said, that the four-times-married grandmother of 43 was infatuated with her son-in-law, who continued to live at her home after his wife's death last December.

Tomorrow they will visit the new scout reservation at Mendham, N. J., established in memory of Mortimer L. Schiff, late president of the American Boy Scouts.

The English visitors have been invited to attend the National Boy Scout jamboree which will be held here August 21-30. Lady Baden-Powell is "chief girl guide of the world" in the Girl Scout organization.

Delay Requested On Auto Test Bill

Keystone Club Sends Appeal to Mary T. Norton.

A formal request that the House of Representatives delay action on the bill which provides for compulsory mechanical inspection of motor vehicles of the District, was embodied in a letter to Representative Mary T. Norton. The letter was signed by George E. Keneipp, manager of the Keystone Automobile Club.

The automobile club asked that no action be taken until the submission of a report from the joint committee of the American Standards Association and the American Society of Automotive Engineers. This committee is now engaged in an exhaustive inquiry into suitable standards for the inspection of motor vehicles.

In view of the technical knowledge which the subject requires, the Keystone Automobile Club hopes that the House of Representatives will comply with its request and await expert advice.

Union labor yesterday renewed its demands for sharp wage increases at a meeting of the arbitration board named to seek a three-year contract between the Capital Transit Co. and its motormen, conductors and shopmen.

Several witnesses testified in support of the claims of the workers at the hearing conducted by the mediators in the George Washington University Law School auditorium. Indications were that the company would begin presenting evidence some time next week.

Parkway Planned Along East Coast

Project to Extend From New England to Carolina.

By the Associated Press.

A national parkway from New England to North Carolina and possibly even deeper into the South was described by the Park Service yesterday as "a vision we are investigating."

The Shenandoah National Park, with its Skyline drive; the Great Smoky Mountain Park and the parkway link connecting them would be a working base for the projected highway.

The Government has made available $5,000 for a preliminary survey to determine the possibilities of a parkway from Washington to New England. It already has made such a survey of the Natchez tract in Mississipppi.

5 Accused of Fraud Against U. S. by AAA

Davenport, Iowa, July 12 (AP).—The arrest of five men was sought today on Federal warrants charging conspiracy to defraud the Federal Government through the AAA curtailment program.

The five are John J. Turner, jr., Clinton County farmer living near DeWitt; Lawrence Beck and Lyle George, Low Moor, Iowa; Jack Kenyon, Elburn, Ill., and Fred Fanning, Janesville, Wis.

Police Magistrate John A. Hornby issued the warrants. The Government accuses the men of having made false statements in connection with Turner's 1932-33 base period hog production and sales.

Washburn Crosby Gets Writ Against AAA Tax

Chicago, July 12 (U.P.).—Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan today granted a temporary injunction to the Washburn Crosby Co. of Minneapolis restraining collection of AAA flour processing taxes.

His action followed that taken yesterday at Minneapolis by a three-judge Federal court which cast serious doubt on constitutionality of the AAA by a decision in favor of 16 large milling companies.

Taxes amounting to $346,247.72 for May of this year, on which the company had sought to avoid payment, were ordered held in escrow. The injunction was directed against Carter H. Harrison, Chicago's internal revenue collector.

Bank Receiver Wins $50,387 In Judgments

Default Verdicts Returned in Federal-American Trust Co. Case.

Default judgments totaling $50,387 were returned in favor of Cary A. Hardee, receiver of the closed Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co. in the District Supreme Court yesterday, against a group of stockholders, who were sued on assessments, and on others who have failed to pay promissory notes.

The largest item in the list was one in which Edward H. Jones was held to be in default on a promissory note for $26,000. Another note judgment was returned against Albert W. Jacobson for $1,720; and a third like case involved John W. Glennon, who allegedly owes the bank $6,247.20 on a note.

Fourteen stockholders who have failed to pay an assessment of 100 per cent on their holdings were declared in default on suits filed to establish the receiver's claim. Some of the defendants failed to answer the suits and others had their answers stricken because of technical faults.

They were Charles B. Stewart, $2,500; Thomas J. Gibbons, $1,000; R. P. Whitty, $1,400; Mrs. Lucy M. Clarke, $1,400; Joseph H. Milans, $1,600; Robert R. Hottel, $400; Kenneth M. The bank alleged the defendants owed $20 a share on their stock.

Threatened Oil Man Has Guard Withdrawn

Los Angeles, July 12 (AP).—A special police detail guarding the home of Erle P. Halliburton, wealthy Los Angeles and Oklahoma oil man, who reported receiving death threats, was withdrawn today at his request. Halliburton said he and his family were leaving the city for an unannounced destination.

The threats, he said, grew out of his recent criticism of relief recipients and the dole system. By letter and telephone threats have been made that his oil well cementing plants here and at Duncan, Okla., would be blown up and his children might be harmed, he said. He has five children, the eldest 19.

Theo. Honour Is Found Dead Of Gas Fumes

Letter Addressed to Wife Blames Suicide on Ill Health.

Theo. Honour, 53, was found dead in his room at 1325 New Hampshire avenue early yesterday. The body was found by Mrs. Honour when she returned from the beauty parlor she operates on Fourteenth street. She detected the odor of gas and found the body in the bedroom.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt, as well as many high Government officials, have been invited to attend the "sunset symphonies" which the National Symphony Orchestra will give at the watergate at 8 p. m. tomorrow. Hans Kindler is in charge of the program.

The "sunset" series not only gives Washington its first season of outdoor orchestral music, but also serves as an experiment which may lead to similiar concerts in other American cities.

C. C. Cappel, manager of the orchestra, said Washingtonians have displayed much enthusiasm about the orchestra, which is expected to play before a capacity throng tonight.

P Street Bridge To Be Opened With Ceremony

Commissioners Set July 22 as Date for Traffic to Go Through.

The P Street Bridge across Rock Creek will be formally opened to traffic with ceremonies on the afternoon of July 22, District officials announced yesterday.

Arrangements have been put in the charge of the Georgetown and Dupont Circle Citizens Associations. District officials are expected to participate.

The bridge has been 21 months in the building. The long time was due to the financial failure of the contractor, a Baltimore concern. The bonding company had to undertake completion of the work.

The bridge is a two-arch causeway of steel and concrete, overlaid with stone. With its approaches it cost approximately $240,000. It has a 40-foot roadway with a 10-foot sidewalk on either side. The new bridge will have no street car tracks, as the P street car line has been abandoned.

Next Friday the District is to open bids for the construction of a roadway through the park, beneath the bridge. The road is to run from Q to K streets and will connect the Potomac and Rock Creek parks. It is estimated the parkway drive unit will cost about $102,000. It is to be 40 feet wide.

● Remember those dusty old "Pre-War" bottles? Thousands of men are still searching for rye with that delicious, rich "Pre-War" taste. That's why this unusual story will interest you.

We asked Louie C. Leith, Esq. to compare "Pre-War" Hunter, sealed before 1919, with the Hunter Baltimore Blended Rye Whiskey you can get today. Mr. Leith tasted them both... rolled each one critically on his tongue. Then pointing to the present Hunter Rye he said, "That's the smoothest. It tastes better than the 'Pre-War'!"

Try Hunter Baltimore Rye. You'll relish its fine, fragrant bouquet. It's a full-bodied smooth whiskey, made of fine Maryland Ryes. Ask for it in your next cocktail or highball.

ent orgy of spending" had aroused an exchange that became so fervid that Representative Fuller (Democrat), Arkansas, remarked he had "heard enough" to decide what he thought of the "credibility" of the witness. Representative Jenkins (Republican), Ohio, wondered what right a committee member had to "impute dishonesty" to a witness.

The discussion went on and on along that line. Chairman Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, finally stopped it with insistent and repeated banging of his gavel. Then Fuller explained that he had not sought to "impute dishonesty" to the witness, but only to question his "very bad judgment."

Chandler said he was not willing to agree with Mr. Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State under the Wilson Administration, that the depression is being "wantonly" prolonged.

Conspiracy Seen.

"On the other hand," he continued, "I haven't the slightest doubt that in the Washington menage—the inner group that surrounds the President and seems to have his ear—there are numerous conspirators who do not want prosperity to return and who do want to see private property in this country so discredited that the doctrines of Karl Marx shall be substituted for those of Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, Lincoln, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, Wilson and Coolidge."

He said there was no special significance to the fact that he had omitted Herbert Hoover and Franklin Roosevelt from his list of Presidents.

Jesuit Teachers Here for Retreat

175 at Eight-Day Sessions at Georgetown.

About 175 teachers from various Jesuit colleges and high schools in the East will open an eight-day religious treat today at Georgetown University.

They are scholastics of the order who are in their first, second and third years of teaching. Most of them had arrived last night and during their stay here they will be quartered at the college.

Rev. Joseph A. Gschwend, S. J., of New York, editor of The Jesuit Missions, and a prominently known preacher, will conduct the retreat. Rev. George P. McGowan, S. J., of Woodstock College, Maryland, is in charge of details.

The teachers come from practically all the schools within the New York-Maryland province, which embraces all the North Atlantic States except New England.

Tuberculosis Fund Increase Urged

King Amendment Giving $61,240 Draws Praise.

In a letter to Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, speaking for the board of directors of the Tuberculosis Association, yesterday urged prompt enactment of his amendment to the general deficiency bill carrying $61,240 for the District Health Department.

Thanking him for introducing this amendment, Mrs. Grant pointed out that the District's tuberculosis mortality rate had risen until it now was second highest in the country.

She said that one reason why this rate was so high was because of inadequate expenditures for public health, last year's budget being one-third of the minimum per capita recommended by a special committee on administrative practices of the American Public Health Association.

Owners Unmoved By Gold Discovery

Treasure Chests no Secret, Say Family Heirs.

By the Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, July 12.—An attorney's fiction-like story of treasure in a musty attic left at least two members of the deceased owner's family cold tonight.

They said they "knew it all along."

W. C. Clift, Oklahoma City lawyer, announced he found three chests of gold and silver—largely in service sets—in a Wheeling, W. Va., office building. He said the treasure was part of the $100,000 estate left to her four sisters by Mrs. Henry L. Hazlett, widow of the late Louis S. Delaplaine, of Wheeling, former consul to British Guiana. Clift is attorney for the sisters.

Commenting today, an attorney for Hazlett, retired broker, said he was "entirely unmoved."

And at Tulsa, Mrs. Lee Abbott, one of the four heirs, declared there was no secret about the existence of the chests. Our sister told us all about it."

In issuing a special call to the klavern, the exalted commander of the women's department announced that the purpose of the imperial kloard's visit was to make plans for aggressive action against unrecognized elements posing as officials or representatives of the klan.

Belfast Rioting On Orange Day Kills 1, Hurts 40

Stones Fly and Guns Crack as Police Fire Into Demonstrators.

By the Associated Press.

Belfast, Northern Ireland, July 12. A night of rioting following upon Ulster's peaceful daylight celebration of the 245th anniversary of the Battle of Boyne, left one person dead and 40 wounded at midnight.

Shooting began again in the streets of Belfast after police had gained control of the situation following upon an hour's stiff battle with rioters, in which gunfire crackled and stones were thrown.

No deaths other than that of the woman shot and killed in the earlier fighting were reported, but another police officer was seriously wounded.

Ceremonies Set Record.

A record number of Orangemen in full regalia, their loyalist districts ablaze with bunting, participated in commemorations of the historic battle which made Protestantism secure as the official religion of Great Britain.

With ploice everywhere watchful, peace prevailed throughout the day. Tonight, however, final sections of the "Orange procession" returning here from Belmont were pelted with stones from the sidewalks. Police immediately opened fire on the attackers.

Mrs. Margaret Rodgers, 29, was shot in the abdomen and died quickly. Mrs. Mary Lang, also shot in the abdomen, was reported in critical condition. Fourteen other persons were wounded in the exchange of shots between police and rioters, while five were treated for head wounds inflicted by flying rocks.

Rioting Lasts for Hour.

The police, who fired into the crowd along York street, an extension of Royal avenue, Belfast's main thoroughfare, time after time, managed to restore order after an hour of stiff rioting.

Constable Emerson and Detective Perrett were among those wounded. Each was shot in the leg.

The parade of the Orangemen here, in which an estimated 30,000 marched, required two hours to pass. It climaxed the night-long gayety in which bonfires flared in many streets, threatening some houses.

A number of resolutions passed by the Orangemen included pleas that Protestants resist propaganda against their faith and criticism of attempts to stir up religious troubles.

Among the 75 persons present were Hope Jackson, daughter of Robert Jackson, former secretary-treasurer of the national Democratic Committee; Janie McSwain, daughter of the chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee and vice president of the club; Dorothy Ahlers, club secretary, and Victor Russell, former president.

This turnpike passes through Fairfax and Arlington Counties to bridges connecting Virginia with the District of Columbia.

Members of the delegation also expressed interest in the movement to close the 2-mile link between the Lee highway and the Arlington Memorial Bridge at Washington.

Johnson Urges New Deal Call Halt on 'Magic'

Institute Hears Him Score Spendnig and Roosevelt Wealth Tax Plan.

the pre-election promises of President Roosevelt.

"Those promises, if carried out as here discussed, would not retard prosperity," he asserted. "By a vast enrichment of a balanced domestic market it would give us such prosperity as we have never known."

Scores Mending.

Gen. Johnson expressed agreement with New Deal critics that "no amount of Government spending can make an appreciable contribution to a permanent solution of unemployment or to any revival of business."

Surprising as that statement may seem coming from a man just appointed Federal Works Progress administrator for New York City, even more surprising was his brief but sharp blow on the President's "share the wealth" tax program. He declared that the Federal Government should immediately head toward a balance between revenue and expenditure and that "income taxation should be used as a rule of maximum revenue and diminishing returns rather than on any serial theory."

The full significance of Johnson's demand that the Roosevelt Administration return to the 1932 Democratic platform is best shown when it is considered in relation to a statement made this morning at a roun dtable being conducted by Demarest Lloyd, of the American Liberty League.

Heckled by one of the audience as to what the American Liberty League proposed or wanted, Lloyd said the question could be briefly answered by pointing to the 1932 Democratic platform. It has been the constant criticism of league speakers here that the New Deal does not represent a fulfillment of that platform.

Johnson spoke tonight on the same platform with Representative James W. Wadsworth, of New York, frequently mentioned as the Republican white hope next year and also a Liberty League speaker. Wadsworth, in effect, challenged President Roosevelt to press his fight for a constitutional amendment to make possible the "planned economy" of the New Deal.

Failure of the Administration to go to the country with a request for revision of the Constitution in order to permit Federal jurisdiction over economic and social problems "would mean abandonment of the New Deal program by its own champions." He indicated that he expected President Roosevelt to accept the challenge.

"Warrants Grave Concern."

Earlier in the day, another Liberty League speaker, J. Howard Pew, president of the Sun Oil Co., warned the round table on "the Constitution and the New Deal" that "State socialization is even now developing on a scale so great and at a tempo so rapid as to warrant grave concern." The fear inspired by recent developments, he maintained, has given force to the movement, since private initiative has become paralyzed and government has penetrated further into private enterprise.

Pew expressed his amazement that a country which has "so prospered under economic freedom and constitutional institutions, as has the United States, should be pressed to turn its back on the past and adopt a "planned economy," which, he contended, has ended in disaster for every nation experimenting with it from the time of the Egyptians down to the present.

Mrs. Helen H. Miller, of the AAA, a New Deal defender, contended that "economic freedom" and "liberty" in this country had become a myth for millions of its citizens with the passing of free land and with the development of corporate structures. She pointed out that the jobless and those without property were "the slaves of insecurity."

"So far as they are concerned," she added, "the invasion of property rights which took place under the economic rules of the 1920s was, indeed, an invasion of human rights. For the economically insecure not only have no property; they have no liberty as well."

"Preserves Liberty."

Mrs. Miller held that now the frontier no longer exists, "the concern of the American Government must be a joint concern for both liberty and security."

"It must find a balance, a middle-way between a state of liberty, which absence of security renders meaningless and a state of security which absence of liberty renders intolerable," she maintained, and indicated that such was the objective of the New Deal.

Wadsworth maintained that the Supreme Court, "far from being an engine of oppression or obstruction, helps us to preserve our liberty—that liberty which we insist upon in our Constitution." The court, he added, was "a great stabilizer," and, "in a very large measure, it is responsible for ours being the oldest of governments."

Turning to the New Deal, the New Yorker maintained that a number of the Administration's measures, fitted together under the term of "planned economy," present a new conception of government and would, if thoroughly established and maintained, "transform it into something very, very different from the Government we have become accustomed to."

Explaining the nature of these measures, he asserted that "the element of force enters into the situation" and that "indeed, it is essential that force be employed if we are to have a planned economy." Under planned economy, he contended, there emerges the principle that "a majority, backed by the power of the Government, may determine how the minority shall earn its living."

Passing over the question of whether "any government is so equipped with wisdom as to enable it effectively to plan the economy of all its citizens," Wadsworth turned to the legalistic aspects of the NRA, which, he said, was based on the theory that all business, great or small, in some way or other finally affects interstate commerce.

"This theory, if accepted and carried to its logical conclusion," he added, "would mean there is no limit whatsoever to the powers of the Federal Government."

For the present, he held, the Schechter decision has prevented carrying out that theory. But as a result of that decision, he asserted, the rights of the States to exclusive jurisdiction over their local affairs embodied in the Tenth Amendment, "must now become the subject of Nation-wide discussion and understanding." The Tenth Amendment, he termed the "keystone in the arch of the Federal Union of States."

"Blast it away and you transform our whole Government from that of a Federal union to one imperial in character," he asserted.

As a result of the Supreme Court decision in the Schechter case that the power to regulate farming and industry is reserved to the States, Wadsworth continued, "you find the Administration and its supporters in Congress struggling to give the AAA some color of constitutionality by a change of verbiage here and there—a desperate attempt to save it.

"But," he added, "it is doomed as an effective compelling Federal agency, for if the Federal Government can not regulate a manufacturing plant it can not regulate a farm. The same might be said of the labor disputes act recently signed.

Must Seek Amendment.

"Indeed, it would seem that the whole program for a planned economy under the forceful supervision of the Federal Government, has fallen to the ground for the simple reason that the people have delegated no such power to the central government but rather have reserved these powers to themselves and to the States."

For that reason he held it not surprising that the President in his recent press conference greeted the Schechter decision "with certain evidences of dismay" and "disappointment."

"While the President refrained from urging the adoption of an amendment, the plain fact is the vast program of planned economy under the New Deal can not be put into effect without an amendment," Wadsworth asserted. "That's all there is to it and we might just as well face it.

"If this Administration is to be consistent it must press for such an amendment. Failure to do so would mean abandonment of the New Deal program by its own champions.

"I am well aware that it is rash to prophesy concerning political developments in the future, but I venture to state as my belief that the question involved in the preservation or abandonment of the tenth amendment, that keystone of the arch, will be pressed upon the attention of the American electorate in 1936.

"Immense Significance."

"It is very doubtful that it can be settled in one election. The subject is too big. It may take several years. Unless I am very much mistaken a fundamental question is arising in this country of vastly greater importance than anything which we have faced in generations.

"The issue involved in the eighteenth amendment was indeed fundamental, but its potentiality, its ramifications, its effect upon the life of the Nation will seem of dwarf-like insignificance when compared to the immensity of the decision which must be rendered finally by the people with respect to the tenth amendment and the preservation of the Federal Union of States.

"Shall we join the procession in which we see so many European nations marching, abandon the form of government which we have maintained since 1789 and concentrate at a central point power sufficient to compel, day by day, the honest citizen to pursue his honest happiness as those in authority shall prescribe? If so, what of liberty, that aspiration which lives deeper in the human soul than any other, that intangible yet precious thing for which men have struggled for centuries, that blessing which, never conferred, must always be earned?"

Dreyfus Dies, Stormy Figure In French Dispute for 37 Years

book for the field artillery, a note on changes in covering troops and a note on French military secrets in Madagascar.

France was stunned.

A wave of anti-Semitism swept the country. Mobs marched. Headlines screamed against Jewry, and the Germans. In such heated atmosphere, Dreyfus was rushed to a trial.

Fellow officers, Capts. Henry and Du Paty de Clam and a mysterious Maj. Walsin Esterhazy, produced enough evidence to satisfy the military court, and on December 22, 1894, Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, Fourteenth Artillery regiment, was sentenced to life imprisonment on Devils Island.

A public degradation took place January 5, 1895, a Jewish Sabbath. As the buttons and stripes were torn from his uniform, Dreyfus shouted:

"Long live France! Long live the army!"

"Coward! Traitor! Judas! Kill him!"

For months nothing was heard from Devils Island, where Dreyfus was undergoing unspeakable misery and torture. Meanwhile, in Paris, Col. Picquart was named head of the intelligence service.

Accidentally, Picquart discovered Dreyfus was innocent. He told superior officers. They transferred him to a desert post in Tunisia. A friend of Dreyfus, Senator Scheurer Kestner, carried on the exposure of Esterhazy.

Emile Zola printed in L'Aurore his now famous "J'Accuse" (I accuse), an open letter to the president of France. Clemenceau joined in the vitriolic attack on the army. Meanwhile Dreyfus was reported dying on Devils Island.

Esterhazy was acquitted. Zola was tried for slandering the army. In a dramatic turn of events, evidence was produced that letters in the case were forged. Henry, by then a lieutenant colonel, admitted authorship. He committed suicide the next day in a cell by slashing his throat.

In June, 1899, Dreyfus, white-haired and aged beyond his 40 years, was brought back from Devil's Island for a new trial in Rennes.

Even America was stunned by his subsequent reconviction in September. A pardon in 1900, however, removed the blot from his life. Then followed a long battle in the courts and July 13, 1906, the Cassation Court reversed the convictions and reinstated both Dreyfus and Col. Picquart.

On the spot where 12 years earlier he was degraded, Dreyfus was publicly knighted in the Legion of Honor. Picquart became minister of war under Clemenceau. Esterhazy fled to England where he died under an assumed name in 1923.

During the World War Dreyfus served as a lieutenant colonel. One of his sons, a captain, was killed in action.

After the war he retired to private life, practicing the "art of being a grandfather," he wrote to friends. He often visited Clemenceau. It is believed he has written a book of memoirs.

Mall Parkway Improvements To Be Started

$1,000,000 Development Will Get Under Way Soon, Says Gartside.

Tree surgery, Mall roadway paving and lighting and flood control projects will be started soon to inaugurate the park system's $1,000,000 development program, it was announced yesterday by Frank T. Gartside, acting superintendent of National Capital Parks.

First to get under way will be the tree surgery work in the city's parks, squares and circles, scheduled to start Monday. The contract for paving the new roadways in Union Square, eastern portion of the Mall, probably will be awarded next week. The award for installation of lighting standards in the Mall will be made soon afterward.

Construction of the West Potomac Park dyke, whose function will be to protect Federal buildings in the downtown triangle from flood waters, cannot begin until excavating is started for the new Interior Department building. Dirt taken from this site, at Eighteenth and E streets, will be used in building the dyke.

Digging of the new structure's foundation is expected to get under way late next month and erection of the levee, which will run from the Navy and Munitions buildings to the Washington Monument grounds, will be carried on concurrently.

The dyke work will not interfere with operation of the municipal swimming pool in the monument grounds, said Gartside. The pool is to be kept in service throughout the summer and replaced next season by a new one near Hoover Playground, in the Capital's southwest section.

Hero Fund Raised $45 by Detectives

Hard-boiled detectives at police headquarters last night contributed $45 for the family of Sterling Calhoun, Negro hero who lost his life in an attempt to save two white children from drowning.

The purse was taken up on the suggestion of Detective Sergeant Tom Sweeney, veteran policeman. It will go with the several hundred dollars which Washingtonians have given spontaneously in tribute to Calhoun's sacrifice.

Funeral services for Calhoun will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at Bethlehem Church on First street northwest, between F street and Virginia avenue southwest.

Virgin Islands Wrangle PutUp To White House

Talk Grows Both Pearson and Judge Wilson Are to Be Replaced.

By the Associated Press.

A new administration for the Virgin Islands all the way down the line was broadly hinted last night as the dispute over the islands went to President Roosevelt for settlement.

The talk, which for the time being took no firmer bottom than rumors that lacked official confirmation, suggested that:

Administration of the islands might be transferred from the Interior to the Navy or another department.

C. William Freeman, of California, might be named to succeed Paul M. Pearson as governor there.

Most persistent of all reports climbing out of the dispute tonight was that both Pearson and Judge T. Webber Wilson probably would leave the islands.

Wilson Sees President.

Mr. Roosevelt maintained strict silence on the issue which already had brought a sharp conflict between the Senate Territories Committee and Secretary Ickes, whose Interior Department now supervises the islands.

The President talked at some length with Wilson late yesterday. The judge has been at loggerheads with Pearson. Wilson, a former member of Congress from Mississippi, declined to comment in any way after his talk with Mr. Roosevelt.

On Capitol Hill some Democratic leaders predicted the furore ultimately would cause the resignation of Ickes.

There was no confirmation of the report that Freeman had been chosen. His identity, background and whereabouts also remained undisclosed.

Sees "Lot of Speculation."

Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, chairman of the investigating committee, said he had heard the name mentioned for the post, although not recently.

Senator Johnson (Republican), California, said he had never heard of the man, and Secretary Ickes replied likewise.

"There is going to be a lot of speculation in the next 48 hours," the Secretary added.

Gov. Pearson, whose administration has been under fire, would say nothing concerning the various rumors of his imminent resignation.

Some of the rumors of Pearson's impending resignation carried intimations that he would be given another Government position. Judge Wilson, of the Virgin Islands District Court, likewise was rumored to be "on the way out," although some circles insisted that he also would be given another territorial job.

Committee to Rule Highway Policies

Governor Peery Awaits Report of Road Body.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., July 12.—Formulation of major policies of the Virginia highway commission will be influenced largely by recommendations of the legislative committee studying road problems, Commissioner Henry G. Shirley said today.

The special commission, headed by Senator W. O. Rogers, of Waverly, was named by the General Assembly and instructed to report its findings to Gov. Peery prior to the 1936 legislative session. Hearings have been held in each of the State construction districts, and the committee presumably is now drafting its report.

No major changes in present policies are contemplated until the group reports to the Governor and the Assembly has an opportunity to act on its recommendation, Mr. Shirley said.

The State highway department is marking time on the Federal-State program for building roads with work relief funds, the chairman said, while waiting for more definite instructions from Washington.

Cigarette Destroys Large Dairy Barn

Fire believed to have been caused by a cigarette last evening destroyed a large dairy barn owned by J. W. Makeley near Clifton Station, Va.

The Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department kept the flames from spreading to adjoining buildings but because of the lack of water the dairy barn was destroyed.

According to witnesses workmen were engaged in threshing wheat and blowing the chaff and straw in the loft. The milking which was usually in progress at the time had been postponed until the threshing had been completed. None of the cows were in the barn at the time. The machinery in the barn was saved. The loss was estimated at $8,000.

Reich Official Forbids Jewish-Aryan Bridal

Rostock, Mesklenburg Province, Germany, July 12 (U.P.)—A marriage clerk who refused to allow J. Levy, 40, Jewish merchant, to wed a 20-year-old Aryan girl, was upheld in the Rostock court today.

The court admitted there was no formal legal ground against such a marriage, but it ruled that "the marriage clerk, who withheld a license, could not be compelled to become a party to mixing Aryan and Jewish blood, thereby making it useless for all futurity."

Waley Trial Is Scene Of Lumber Strike Riot

Tacoma, Wash., July 12 (AP).—The Federal Building was flooded with tear gas and hand to hand street fighting broke out between National Guardsmen and about 1,000 lumber strike demonstrators at the Eleventh Street Bridge en tonight.

One man was attacked by a strike sympathizer and was reported badly beaten. His identity was not learned.

Several strike sympathizers came out of the melee with the Guardsment showing bruises. They were halted in their attempt to parade across the bridge into the mill district.

The demonstration, second in as many days, occurred outside the Federal Building, where Mrs. Margaret Thulin Waley is on trial in the George Weyerhaeuser kidnaping.

Restraining Influences.

Secretary Hull's diplomatic conferences on the dispute between Italy and Ethiopia would be significant in any circumstances. Since the State Department timed its peace gesture to coincide with the statement of British policy in the House of Commons it may be considered doubly important. It is apparent that at least these two countries will not permit the despoliation of the East African empire without a protest.

In explaining the British position Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, seriously questioned the sufficiency of the causes that have carried Italy to the brink of war. Italy does have grievances against the Abyssinian government, he said, and her desire for territorial expansion can be understood. But how could either justify the deliberate destruction of an independent nation? The conquest which Mussolini appears to have planned would constitute such a flagrant violation of the pledges to which his government is committed that he can not expect any statesman apprehensive for world peace to remain silent.

The State Department has not publicly taken a stand as positive as that of the British government. But Secretary Hull was quick to correct the impression spread through Italy that this Government will assume a disinterested attitude. The United States could scarcely avoid expression of its displeasure when violation of the Kellogg Pact becomes imminent. There is no suggestion from any responsible source that this country should impair its status as a neutral if war should develop between the forces of Premier Mussolini and Emperor Haile Selassie. But the moral force of the American people will certainly be marshaled against any war of aggression in East Africa.

Events of the last few days foreshadow the crystallization of world sentiment against the proposed Italian conquest. It should be clear to Mussolini that he can not discard grave international obligations without arousing the moral indignation of many peoples. Certainly he should not too lightly assume that the ultimate consequences of such a policy can be offset by the spoils of victory, even if his armies should be successful.

An Un-American Procedure.

Executive officers representing several major associations of advertisers and publishers have added their protests to the growing volume of objections raised against the proposed amendments to the agricultural adjustment act. One of the provisions which they regard as "outrageous" has attracted relatively little public attention, although it has figured prominently in the current Senate debate. That is the section which would prevent suits to recover taxes already paid even if it should be determined that they had been illegally collected.

If the agricultural adjustment act should be declared unconstitutional, suits for recovery of taxes paid under the present law would not be entertained. The phrasing of the amendment is most involved and the Senators are by no means agreed as to its exact meaning. But Senator George went so far as to say that it is designed to effect a "legislative ratification of everything that may have been done under the act although it may have been done in positive violation of the original act." He insists that that is "a dishonest suggestion to Congress."

Senator Borah has previously stated that he thought the "fundamental question involved is not the amount of the taxes which are paid or which may be refunded, but whether we are going to establish practically as a permanent policy that the citizen may not go into court and have his rights adjudicated, even though those rights run against the contention of the Government." A similar question arises in connection with the proposal to bar all suits under the gold clause, even though the complainant might be able to prove that he had suffered loss. Taxes collected under other New Deal measures that might be declared unconstitutional and compulsory assessments under the abandoned NRA codes would likewise be irrecoverable, if the policy urged in case of the AAA were to be generally applied.

It is easy to understand why the Administration wishes to close the door against attempts to recover large sums paid in the form of processing taxes, over a period of two years. As these taxes have in most cases been passed on to consumers in the form of higher selling prices, moreover, it would be virtually impossible to ascertain the extent to which any individual firm has been penalized. Nevertheless, the attempt to legalize all that has been done and bar suits for damages under any circumstances, unless there has been an error in computation or double payments, is a most high-handed procedure.

"It is the very essence of tyranny," as Senator Borah says, "to collect taxes illegally and then deny the citizen the right to test the question of whether they were taken illegally." Yet that is the purpose of the AAA amendment under discussion. The precedents that would be established by such uncompromising deprivation of customary legal remedies constitute a serious menace to free governmental institutions, even if they are technically defensible as the exercise of a sovereign right by the offending State.

Negative Tax Criticism.

Declaring that the "urgent need of the present time is not more taxes on income but more income to tax," the United States Chamber of Commerce condemns the President's tax program on two grounds: its inadequacy as to production of revenue and its destructive character. The chamber's committee on Federal finance denounces efforts to break up large business enterprises and capital aggregations to carry out so-called social and economic reforms. "To attempt wide-reaching social effects through taxation," it says, "involves the danger of an abuse and perversion of the taxing power."

So far as negative criticism is concerned, the Chamber of Commerce is on firm ground. The pretense that the proposed levies on large incomes, corporations and inheritances would provide any substantial aid toward budgetary balance has been quite thoroughly demolished by unofficial and even official estimates of probable returns. After admitting the inadequacy and inequity of the Administration's proposals, however, alternative recommendations for raising revenue should have been suggested.

Senator Vandenberg and others who have pointed out the shortcomings of the "soak-the-rich" levies have not hesitated to demand a broadening of the income tax base. Increased taxes in the lower income brackets, with fewer deductions and exemptions, and taxes upon gross incomes, such as general sales taxes, are essential if the Government is to be put in possession of adequate revenues. However, our lawmakers as well as business men are very reluctant to admit that, without a rigid curtailment of outlays, the Federal Government will eventually be forced to resort to turnover taxes of some sort. Certainly there is no hint of such a possibility in the Chamber of Commerce report, which asserts that the "need is not increased taxation but expenditures reduced to a more normal level." As a matter of fact, we require both reductions in outgo and increases in income, if the goal of a balanced budget is to be reached any time within the near future.

It sometimes seems as if the aversion of the average business man to unbalanced budgets is equaled only by the intensity of his antipathy to new taxes required to effect budgetary balance. Since the Chamber of Commerce is devoted to the long-time interests of business, it presumably does not reflect this short-sighted attitude of the individual taxpayer. If it is to be influential in opposing unsound tax proposals, however, it should be careful not to create a suspicion that it is more interested in preventing taxes from rising than it is in preserving the public credit, which must be maintained if business is to prosper.

Apart from its justified insistence upon the need for economy, the chamber goes no further than recommending simplification of the revenue act and a more equitable method of determining taxable income—without specifying the method to be followed. This is a patent "side-stepping" of the tax problems that soon or late—and the sooner the better—must be dealt with in thorough-going fashion. Even with drastic cuts in expenditures, additional revenues will be required to bring the budget into balance, and after that we shall be compelled to consider ways and means of reducing the Federal debt. So the people may as well prepare for heavier taxation which will affect millions of citizens not reached by our present system of restricted levies upon incomes and corporate net returns.

Critics of the Administration should be ready to recommend alternatives when they denounce specific proposals as nonproductive and inequitable. Otherwise their objections will fail to carry weight and the sincerity of their professed desire to restore budgetary balance will be open to question.

Military Road Must Go.

Chairman McSwain of the House Military Affairs Committee has the recommendation of a joint committee representing the Postoffice, Commerce and War Departments to support his resolution calling for the immediate blocking off of Military road as it cuts across Washington Airport. Only the assent of Arlington County is needed to make unanimous this move to rid the Capital's landing field of a menace endangering the lives of plane and automobile passengers alike.

Funds for the right of way and construction of Military road were appropriated by Congress something more than 20 years ago. Since then, the opening of other thoroughfares and the installation of new bridge facilities across the Potomac have made the highway obsolete from a military point of view. The county, however, fears that certain of its citizens will be inconvenienced by the closing of the road in the absence of provision for the construction of a substitute highway.

There can be no doubt that the proposed change will inconvenience a few. But if the Army has found better means of travel between its Virginia posts and Washington, certainly most civilians can follow its example. The site for the permanent municipal airport has not yet been determined. It may be that some other location will be selected, in which event the road could be reopened. If, on the other hand, the current debate ends in an agreement on the present field, then plans could be considered for building a new highway.

Pending the final decision, the road must be closed and Arlington County, which contributed nothing to its cost, must suffer the small inconvenience. All arguments to the contrary fade away when placed against the possibility of a ghastly crash or collision such as the existing layout daily invites.

The Returning Hapsburgs.

Repeal of the laws which banished the Hapsburgs from Austria and confiscated their property is only one of a series of steps apparently designed to prepare the way for the enthronement of young Archduke Otto. A campaign against the "exclusion law" was launched about two years ago. Last summer the legitimists had attained sufficient strength to reduce these penalties inflicted upon the royal family from the status of constitutional laws to mere statutes. Now they have been completely rescinded by the Austrian Diet.

It is not so much this specific event as it is the trend toward restoration of the Hapsburgs that is significant. Representative government in Austria disappeared even before Chancellor Dollfuss was assassinated. The present administration is headed by an avowed monarchist, Dr. Schuschnigg. It stands for centralization of authority, as did the former Hapsburg regime. Likewise it is bitterly opposed to Nazism, as is the present claimant to the throne. In a letter to an Austrian village which granted him honorary citizenship more than a year ago Otto emphatically "rejected" Fascism for Austria and favored "a constitutional monarchy along democratic lines similar to that in England."

With these strong factors working in his favor, Otto's return to power becomes more than a mere possibility. No immediate putsch may be expected. The legitimists are maneuvering very carefully. Nevertheless their plans are definite and their influence appears to be growing. The increasing preoccupation of the European powers with other grave issues also may be considered an important point in their favor.

Outside of Austria this tendency must be regarded as a menace to that relative degree of stability which Europe has attained. Otto's enthronement at Vienna would immediately raise the question of reviving the Austro-Hungarian Empire. Hungary is not so receptive to the idea of a Hapsburg regime as is Austria. Indeed, the Hungarian government is pledged by treaties with the Little Entente to prevent the return of Otto or any of his kinsmen as king. It is obvious, therefore, that the return of the Hapsburgs to power would set in motion a complicated series of repercussions throughout Europe.

Premier Mussolini is watching events at Vienna with the utmost interest. While he is preparing for a war of conquest in Ethiopia he could not be unconcerned over developments which might give rise to a crisis on Italy's northern border. The growing influence of Otto may well accentuate the tension that must be felt in Rome.

A Good Deed.

In 1908, a group of boys in the British Isles was organized by Sir Robert Baden-Powell into a society for "promotion of good citizenship among the rising generation." They became known as Boy Scouts and today the organization extends to 70 countries. Next month the twenty-fifth anniversary of Scouting in America will be celebrated in Washington by a national jamboree. Meticulous planning, even to the approximate amount of water that will be drunk by the delegates each day, is already going forward under the direction of Commissioner Allen.

But it is not in such vital statistics that Capital residents are most interested. These are but a natural part of every convention. What should and will concern Washingtonians and, in fact, every city that has at some time entertained visiting groups are the unusual features that will make this Boy Scout jamboree unique in the annals of conventions. And that is the lack of ostentation in the gathering. There will be no defacing grandstands, no gaudy display and no tedious lines of march. Instead, the boys will simply line up at attention along both sides of Constitution avenue while the President drives past them.

The axiom has it that "boys will be boys." Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that men will be boys when they convene away from home, and boys will at such times behave in manly fashion. In any case the August jamboree bids fair to hew closely to the lines along which the Boy Scout organization was founded. And that was "to develop the efficient individual and then to harness this individuality for the good of the community." Washington can contemplate with real pleasure this dignified departure from the usual run of convention.

Potato Growers' Rights.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Referring to the comment termed "Eastern Shore Potatoes," in The Post of July 10, which associates the present embargo imposed by the Eastern Shore potato grower with gang war, tong war and race riot, it is interesting to note that the intellectual and human interest of the people involved is entirely overlooked.

There were potatoes grown on the Eastern Shore before 1933, and placed in the hands of dealers who were regimented between the grower and the consumer, bringing about prohibitive prices to both the grower and the consumer.

Is it intelligent to say that the grower is guilty of over-production, and in the same sentence that the consumer is with an empty larder and an empty stomach? Is it fair to say that the farmer is creating a riot when he refuses to deliver his crops below the cost of production and appeals through his Representative for congressional action? Is it practical to say that the grower is guilty of overproduction, value and at the same time accuse him of overproducing any crop?

The author has no doubt had an opportunity to observe conditions both on the shore and in some cities, but this observation has been confined to a very thin surface.

There are, we regret to admit, deplorable conditions existing in some parts of the Eastern Shore, but not brought about by the farmer agreeing to accept less than the cost of producing any crop. There has never been a time in the growth of civilization when man was justified in compromising with dishonesty and injustice. When dealers, both at home and abroad, are restrained and outlawed from collective bargaining and monopolistic distribution, then, and only then, will the injustices of more than a decade be removed.

Query From Bluemont.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It looks plain and easy, doesn't it? Thomas Quesenberry killed one officer of the law and seriously wounded another in a raid on a still in Loudoun County. On May 7, 11 men were indicted by the Federal grand jury at Norfolk for conspiracy to defraud the Government. These men were believed to have employed Quesenberry to guard the still. The charge against him was murder. If he had elected to plead not guilty and to defend himself his testimony might have involved his principals.

J. R. H. Alexander, judge of the twenty-sixth circuit, on the resignation of John Galleher, former Commonwealth's attorney, now Virginia State director for the National Emergency Council, appointed Edward Garrett, of Leesburg, to be Commonwealth's attorney. Garrett asked to be excused from conducting the prosecution of Quesenberry and Judge Alexander complied and directed John Galleher to take the case.

Before sentence was passed on him Quesenberry, in custody of E. S. Adrian, sheriff of Loudoun County, was taken from the Leesburg jail to some destination in town unknown to this writer. Was he taken to Garrett's office? Did Garrett quiz him? Was he told he would better plead guilty and a plea for life imprisonment instead of electrocution would be urged on the court?

All this is news. The public is interested.

Democracy vs. Absolutism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: America has lately been held up as an awful example of the failure of democracy. In a debate in the British Parliament over India, the Bishop of Exeter opposed allowing India any larger measure of self-government, saying that the Indians might fall under the influence of "some great machine," like the Republican and Democratic machines in the United States. He had visited this country, and been shocked by what he saw.

There are dangers in democracy, but the dangers of absolutism are worse. The government of India is really a British dictatorship. A law of long standing authorizes the government to put anyone in prison without trial and to keep him there indefinitely. Sir John Anderson, former leader of the "Black and Tans" in Ireland, is the governor of Bengal. According to the India Bulletin, published in London, he is now holding 2,500 young Bengalese in prison without trial, and has kept most of them there for the last six years, under such conditions that many have committed suicide. An effort was lately made to raise money for their families. The newspapers were forbidden to publish the appeal, or to make any mention of the matter. Many other cruelties are attributed to Sir John Anderson, including placing heavy fines upon whole districts for the offenses of individuals.

There are weak points in democracy, but the evils of autocracy are vastly greater.

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL.

Washington's Neglect.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Jefferson Lewis, colored, the District's sixty-second traffic accident this year"—accidental death was the jury's verdict. The fact is that a fine, useful American man met his death at the hands of a lawless, malicious "gamester" as the paper called it.

A naturally calm, cautious man jumped in the path of a stunt car when a firecracker exploded at his feet. Who wouldn't? In spite of the fact that firecrackers are not allowed in the District, this good man is needlessly dead. Had he been a Congressman or some other person of influence or position, the tragedy would not have been disposed of so lightly.

Jefferson Lewis was a soldier and a Christian. He had given 30 years' service in the Army and Navy, and 40 years to his God and church. He knew his Bible and lived it. His race needed him for his leadership for good.

I needed him—for after more than ten years of punctual, honest, faithful service in my home—I can not replace him. He often sang at his work in his rich bass voice: "He careth for the sparrows and I know He cares for me," was a favorite.

A full church on a hot day testified to his worth—and Arlington received his flag-draped casket.

His untimely death is a disgrace to Washington. Independence Day! Better not have it. F. S. CONN.

Letters From Sailing Enthusiasts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I noticed with interest an article in The Post of June 23 describing a trip down the bay and up the Potomac in a 16-foot open catboat. I know the young man who made the trip and was, of course, interested in reading the account, but in spite of the fact that I have looked carefully every morning for further articles in regard to why the trip was made I have been unsuccessful. The writer mentioned that Mellichampe was interested in seeing more sails on the Potomac, and thought the District should do something about it, but so far it seems the District has shown no interest. My personal interest caused me to call Mellichampe to tell me just what was behind the trip, knowing that something very practical would be the outcome.

I will pass on to you what I found out because I am sure that your paper will be interested in promoting a plan that would mean so much to the Washington citizenry. Mellichampe has more than an ambition to put this over—he has an ideal. Generous civic effort and those who have the courage to face the lack of interest along such lines are so rare that we should at least offer our support. This plan is really not one to promote sailing interest, but rather one to use sailing interest to promote more Americanism among youth, better understanding of youths' problems, healthier minds and bodies; America was a healthier Nation when she was a sea-going Nation.

In my practice it is natural to become a character student of my patients and acquaintances; the predominant trend of youth today is toward indifference to anything or everything concerning anyone other than themselves. No doubt this is due to the example that we, their elders, set for them. I, for one, am heartily in favor of anything that would tend to destroy this attitude; furthermore, I am in favor of offering a little support to anyone with a big enough mind to tackle the job. The type of person who will make such an attempt is, as a rule, quiet and unassuming; therefore someone else must do their shouting. I think that here is an Idea and a man worth shouting about, and that anyone with the same knowledge of both that I have would be of the same opinion.

DR. B. O. MEYERS.
Washington, July 9.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was very much impressed by a recent article in one of your Sunday issues regarding the sailing trip made by one of your reporters. I think that the trip which your man and his sailing companions made is a type that will interest many sailing enthusiasts in this city and I am in hopes that further publicity in your paper may help to develop this sport.

I shall watch with keen interest for further items of this nature.

Mr. Jenkins And His Cow

MR. JENKINS looks like a hill-billy. He talks like a hill-billy and he chews like a hill-billy. The 100-acre farm on which he has reared a large and respectable family and upon which he still lives, as he thinks, comfortably, is so broken with hills and gullies that he needs the agility of the goat when he works his fields. Yet, that old man is not a hill-billy, if the sense in which the word is used to convey an idea of utter lack of intelligence and ambition. Old Man Jenkins is a very sensible man and a very good citizen. As they say in the South, there is much good blood in that old fellow.

This man's opinions differ widely from the opinion of some of his neighbors who by a classification made according to cold figures are exactly like him. There are, however, many like him in his State. Distinction between the two groups can be drawn only when there is given a careful consideration of mental and spiritual qualities. A Southerner makes that distinction when he says that unlettered men, like Mr. Jenkins, "always choose the right side of the fence."

Mr. Jenkins often discusses the matter of legislating against corporations. Just now, he is disturbed over the possible fate of the power companies. This in spite of the fact that he has never had an electric light in his house and would be danged if he would want the things if the girls didn't want him to be stylish. But he is all for keeping the power companies as untrammeled as is necessary to enable them to pay all the taxes possible, without bleeding them to death. It is all a matter of simple bookkeeping with Mr. Jenkins.

* * * /.

Although he is, as he says, "igrant of ary letter in the book," he possesses a good fund of words with which to express his thoughts. And his thoughts are worthy of consideration.

"There was a time when a great lumber company would a-come into my county. But them politicians got busy and stirred the most of the people to fight it along with other corporations and it jes' slipped over the line into the next State. It cut all our pine timber but it give its big town and its taxes to the other State. The State showed it, too, had everything that was needed. Then there was a big cotton mill near here. And the politicians and the poor folks begun to holler about the rich and the poor. Them politicians called the folks what owned that mill and give work to a thousand people, they called them ever' bad name in the catalogue. Trying to please the poor folks, they was, and they got 'lected for doing it.

"I owned a little house on the edge of that mill town. My children was all young and I was a-goin' to give them a better chance than me and the old woman had. I bought that house there because there was a big brick schoolhouse where they took the scholars through 12 grades with the best teachers. The schoolhouse burned, I remember. And there was $17,000 in the school fund to build another one without us poor folks giving no heed to the matter. The tax on my house was 7 mills.

* * * *

"That factory went busted because it wasn't managed good after the old man died. But it might have been able to hold on if the folk had a-knowed what it mean to them and had a-helped it 'stead of doing ever' thing to try to kill it. Them same politicians was a-telling them they orter get them bloated folks outen their town and have the town fer themselves. They've git it fer themselves now. My son lives there. The school goes jes through eight grades and the tax is 33 mills for the town upkeep. They pay such low wages for teachers that they don't get nothing but the weakest kind.

"From what my grandson reads me in the paper, it 'pears like the govment ain' only after the power companies. The wanter git the railroads and the telephones and ever thing else. Now when I bought my farm, I done so because Jedge Brooks told me that since they was a lot railroad in this country, the people's taxes, specially for schools, would be lower than where there wasn't much railroad. I've found that so. Back where my sister lives they are taxed to death because there ain' nothing there to help them out. And they don't have nothing to speak of neither. Why, we get $40,000 from the railroad in this here county alone. I don't know what we git outen the power company but it's a-plenty and then the telephone helps out too. Them folks in Washington is bringing sad times to us poor folks.

* * * *

"This business makes me think on a fine little heifer I had onct. Any fence I built, she jumped it and et up my crops. Wasn't no pasture fence what would hold her looked like. Best little cow I ever had, too; give the richest milk. I never, onct thought of killing her. Neither did I plan to let the jumping fool ruin my corn. I didn't shet her up in the stable where she couldn't git the exercise and the sunshine and the freedom what animals must have if they are to serve man best. No sir-ree. I jes' worked at one contraption after another till I made a yoke she couldn't take over no fence on that place. Then I turned her into the best pasture I had and let her make money for the old lady. If I had a give up and killed that good cow my neighbors would have bored me for the simples."

THOSE who have followed the career of Senator Barkley from the House to the Senate and then to the assistant Democratic leadership are sometimes amazed at the steady unfolding of his talents. Nothwithstanding that he is past the age when a man is supposed to slow down he keeps bringing one trick after another from his bag.

He was the keynoter at the 1932 Democratic national convention and irrespective of the fact that he had voted to put a tariff on products of his home State he denounced the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill as if he had never done anything of the kind. This was looked upon as the talent of pure gall. A lot of people were laughing themselves sick as his denunciation floated out over the Coliseum, but it disturbed him not the silghtest. He went right ahead utterly lost in the righteousness of his words.

* * * *

Now in a speech at the University of Virginia's Institute on Public Affairs he reveals that he is good in the art of subtlety. That's a talent we hadn't attributed to him before. There's no reason, he said, why the people should get the jitters because the Supreme Court threw over the NRA. The New Deal will work out the situation in some way and if it comes to the worst, why, we can amend the Constitution. His counsel to the people, under the circumstances, is to be calm. Believe me, this is cleverness in its naked state. He is two jumps ahead of the Brain Trust on this. They should by all means adopt his approach.

What they tried to do was to work up a case of jitters, and without any success. But Barkley just assumes the NRA decision gave the country the jitters and adopts a calming tone. That's really setting up the windmills to fight.

* * * *

We all recall, of course, how the New Dealers went running around shouting "chaos, chaos" after the NRA decision and their obvious disappointment that no chaos developed. The impression is that they have been at a loss since as to just how to proceed in this matter. Barkley's got the answer. Just assume the chaos is at hand. If the New Dealers fight it enough, if they counsel enough against getting the jitters from the NRA decision the power of suggestion might work. At least the idea is worth trying. They haven't been able to work up the jitters in any other way.

This is not intended critically nor as a suggestion that as jitters workers-up they are not up to snuff. They have a real problem and it is doubtful if jitters workers-up of unquestioned ability could do any better than they.

* * * *

You can imagine, for example, how difficult it is to work up a case of jitters on a decision against the NRA which was already dead. It would have been much easier had the Supreme Court rendered a decision reviving it. And it is just as hard for them to get us excited on the other decision, that denying Mr. Roosevelt's authority to dismiss an officer of an independent agency. Moreover, the New Dealers surely can't argue that they want us to get the jitters about the Supreme Court because it held invalid the Frazier-Lemke law or the railroad pension act, the latter of which was so faultily drawn that it was difficult to read.

Maybe it is because of what the Supreme Court is expected to do to the pending Guffey bill that they expect us to get the jitters and revolt against the tribunal. This is the bill to subsidize the coal industry to the tune of $300,000,000. It will be a bitter blow to us subsidizers if the Supreme Court doesn't permit this, but we are likely to take it in our stride.

The card up the New Dealers' sleeve is the processing taxes. They ought to be able to work up some real good jitters if the Supreme Court denies these levies. Those who have been receiving the taxes will jitter in all probability just as long as jittering is called for, that is, as long as the New Dealers clap their hands and keep time. But that's a long time off. The boys have been trying to get up some jitters to carry us over the interim. They had better follow Barkley's plan and talk and act as if the jitters were here.

The Pound In Politics

By Edward Acheson.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

London (By Mail).

AT any time and almost anywhere in England today, a rousing argument can be initiated by the mere mention of the gold standard. The subject is wide open because as yet the government has not instructed its press to instruct its public how to feel about the matter. The government wants to be free to cheer both ways—for the return to sound finance when the pound goes up, and for the premium to the export trade when the pound goes down.

Arguments pro gold and con inflation are myriad. But as yet no advocate of stability has urged a fixed gold content for the pound on the ground that such a move would limit the power of engineered exchange fluctuations as a political weapon.

Which is odd, and can only be explained on the basis of the stalwart British assumption that the party in power is wholly composed of the wives of Caesar, who wouldn't consider conquest through stooping. Or any other assumption, a freely fluctuating pound is sheer invitation.

And the pound sterling today has no gold backing whatsoever: it is a pure paper currency. Theoretically, there is no reason why its value can not be forced to zero on the foreign exchanges. Actually its freedom renders it a highly sensitive instrument for the gauging of public confidence and foreign opinion. Only recently the mildest type of flurry in shellac and tin on the London exchange depreciated the pound quite beyond the control of the equalization fund, which was operated to counteract the decline. A relevant question was asked at that time concerning the results of a reversal of the equalization fund policy. To what level would the pound have fallen if the fund had operated to force it down, or, for that matter, if the fund had merely ceased to operate for the time being? The question was not answered at that period.

IT now arises again in a slightly different form. With a general election inevitable within nine months, and probable within four, it is interesting to remember the tactics which were employed on former occasions. In 1924, on the eve of the general election, an obscure Mr. Zinoviev was said to have written a letter to an equally obscure correspondent, and the horrible spectre of rebellion, ruin and Red Russia decided the election. It was later established that the whole matter was just good clean political fun, but a panic psychology had been engendered—and sufficed.

In 1931 the stampede was engineered differently. Millions of pounds of worthless German marks were burned before the popping eyes of working class audiences to demonstrate what would happen to their "ten-bob notes" if the Socialists were given an inch at Westminster. The Socialists weren't. But it is interesting—since the first official act of the note-burners was the depreciation of the pound—to remember that gentlemen of the caliber of Messrs. Runciman, MacDonald and Snowden were, at the time, aiding and abetting the conflagrations.

And now in 1935, with another election in the offing, interested parties, especially the Labor Party, are asking what variations, if any, are likely to be played on the highly effective "panic" theme.

* * * *

UNFORTUNATELY, Sir Stafford Cripps, the enfant terrible of the Labor Party, has suggested a refrain. His enthusiastic remarks about "a first-class financial panic" have been shorn of their context and served up raw. Unexpurgated, the voluable Sir Stafford's threat contained two "ifs"! If the Socialist were given a mandate for their program at the polls, and if, even after that, the black powers of capitalism tried sabotage through financial non-cooperation—then he would do his best to see that the panic, which they themselves had brought about, assumed really first class proportions.

But qualifications are forgotten in politics and omitted in newspaper "copy." Willy-nilly, Sir Stafford finds himself the accredited step father of violence, and from his insistance to the contrary, it can be judged his own feelings tend toward nilly.

However, a "first class financial panic" is now very definitely an arrow in the Tory quiver. And a welcome one. For the English sporting instinct, under normal conditions, always favors "giving the other chap a chance," and the present government, with the freest of free hands has had five years to accumulate a record which, viewed quite dispassionately, is far from startling.

* * * *

FOR obvious reasons, the Russian bogy won't work again. And Hitler can't be enlisted as the big bad wolf, since Hitler is now the accepted boy friend of the foreign office. Mussolini simply isn't big enough to use as panic material, and, anyway, these is a sneaking suspicion in England that Benito is suffering from dry-rot, along with his English cousins, the British Union of Fascists.

No, it would seem definitely indicated that if panic-mongering is to be employed it must be of purely domestic manufacture. And the pound is at hand, attractively at hand.

Naturally, one can't re-save a stable pound. But if, with an election imminent, the pound began to slip, who but its former rescuers would be rushed into the breach? Pound-saving could be resurrected overnight as an issue, and the inherent vagueness of the currency could be heartily attributed to the Socialist threat of financial panic.

And this would be by no means difficult of execution. International short-term loans, the gazzelles of finance, would disappear instanter, since they are always poised for a leap at the mere mention of a general election. The publicity given in the Conservative press to a slight decline,—and the reasons—would further depress the exchange, with speculation urging the same course. The Equilization Fund is, of course, operated at the behest of, and in the interests of, the Treasury and the Bank of England. Both "interests" would be served in this instance, by the same maneuver.

* * * *

OF COURSE, there is always the possibility that no arrow will be considered necessary. The Conservatives may merely concede a couple of hundred seats and "carry on."

But dealers in forward exchange are suspiciously watching the course of events. And so is the Labor party, with the intensity of a burnt child.

Large Crowd Expected At Meeting on By-pass

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 12.—Because of the intense interest in the proposed by-pass of Route 40 through Hagerstown, since Mayor I. M. Wertz called a public meeting to discuss the subject for the night of July 17, the meeting place has been changed from city hall to the court house. It was feared that there would not be room enough at city hall. A number of organizations and individuals have protested the proposed new route through the city.

Fear of having Route 40 rerouted via Williamsport has been expressed by ctiy officials, now that Route 11, which passes through here, will probably be rebuilt from Greencastle to Williamsport, thereby eliminating Hagerstown.

Toscanini In Albion

By

Wm. Lyon Phelps.

IN LONDON the first week in June was signalized by the first visit in years of Arturo Toscanini, whom Americans have heard every season in New York for some time. The Daily Telegraph made the following comment in the announcement of his coming: "Although the conductor with the greatest world-wide fame of today, Toscanini is very little known in London. He has never before conducted an English orchestra, and his only appearances here were made on the occasion of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra's visit in 1930. But many musical Londoners have, of course, heard his performances at Milan, and more lately at Bayreuth, where he made the 1930 and 1931 festivals unforgettable, and at Salzburg."

* * * *

Toscanini is 67 years old. He was born at Parma, and studied the 'cello there. His beginning as a conductor was dramatic in the extreme. In Rio Janeiro, in the year 1886, when he was 18 or 19, he was playing the 'cello in the orchestra of a traveling opera company. The audience did not admire the conductor that evening, and made such a row that during the performance of "Aida" the conductor had to retire. The players in the orchestra knew of Toscanini's knowledge of the music, and called upon him to take the baton. He did so, and never relinquished it.

* * * *

In Italy his first conducting of an opera at the Scala in Milan, was in "Die Meistersinger," on December 26, 1898. He came to New York to conduct opera in 1907, and if I remember rightly, the critics were by no means enthusiastic. But today the enthusiasm for his genius is beyond description.

His drilling of an orchestra in rehearsals is so severe that once one of the players said, "by the time he gets through he will have made musicians of us all!"

It is fortunate that his memory is so marvelous, for in recent years he has had great trouble with his eyes. The London Telegraph says he was the first orchestra conductor (in an opera) to lead without a score. The first one I ever saw with a symphony orchestra in the same fashion was Arthur Nikisch.

* * * *

And how I wish I could have been present on the memorable occasion when Hans von Buelow conducted not only without any score himself, but did not allow the players to have any! They stood up with their eyes on the leader and played with a holy zeal.

At the end of his first concert here, the audience cheered for several minutes. Toscanini said: "I am very, very pleased very satisfied with everything."

WASHINGTON REFRIGERATION CO.
1731 14th. St. N.W. DECATUR 2232

Venus stepped down from her pedestal at the Corcoran Art Gallery and sighed enviously. There was a wistful look in her eyes as she patted her hair back into place.

"You don't know what breaks these modern women get," she moaned. "Now, in my day, things were different."

We leaned against a glass case and listened to her plaintive tale.

"Why," she continued, "when I wanted vanishing cream or a new lipstick I had to send that flighty daughter-in-law of mine, Psyche, over to Proserpine's house across the River Styx to get it and, would you believe it, I tramped all the way, from Olympus to the Parthenon without finding a single decent Beauty Shoppe! And you know how catty those Athenian newspapermen could be. That awful Aristophanes, who had that scurrilous column in the Daily Gazette, actually said that if I got another wrinkle my face would look like a prune skin.

"But these modern women have all their beauty and personality problems solved by Frances Mangum, of The Washington Post, and she knows ever so much more about beauty than I did." She smiled shyly. "But then, I had my moments. There was that dear boy, Praxiteles . . ."

Well, since Beauty is Truth, Venus was right: Miss Washington does get a break. All she has to do to keep her nose from being shiny or her chins from doubling is to follow Frances Mangum's advice in The Post. Frances knows her cosmetics, whether they're to be used to please a sweetheart, hold a husband, or make the blonde next door jealous. She tells you where to get 'em, how to apply 'em, and, when the date is over, how to peel 'em off. In short, Frances' column is the answer to a perplexed maiden's prayer.

And Handsome being what Handsome does, Frances also advises you on ways to develop your personality . . . how to acquire that charm which will make men want to shower you with attentions . . . and other women long to cut your throat. Even Madame de Stael could have profited from our Frances' column.

If you have wrinkles instead of dimples . . . circles instead of curves . . . girl-friends instead of boy-friends . . . let Miss Mangum tell you the reason why. Follow her advice and you'll have that movie-actress figure . . . that peaches-and-cream complexion . . . those come-hither eyes . . . and a lot more fun. Her column is found each Sunday on the Household Pages of

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "As a material, theoretical life-basis is found to be a misapprehension of existence, the spiritual and divine principle of man dawns upon human thought, and leads it to 'where the young child was,' even to the birth of a new-old idea, to the spiritual sense of being and of what life includes." STRANGE as it seems, it was cheaper to send the Bank of Vernal through mail than by freight. Every brick that went into the building was wrapped, put in crates of less than 50 pounds each, and sent parcel post from Salt Lake City to Vernal, county seat of Uintah County.

Salt Lake City is less than 150 miles away from Vernal by airline —which puts the latter within the second zone—but the postal route distance then was 407 miles between the two places. It was not as simple as loading the bricks on mail cars at Salt Lake City and taking them off at Vernal—for Vernal had no railroad connections. Nearest station was 65 miles away—and it was a narrow gauge track.

The bricks had to be individually wrapped and sent first over standard gauge track to Mack, Colo., where they were unloaded and transferred to the narrow gauge railroad which brought them within 65 miles of Vernal. From that point on they were hauled by wagon over bad roads and steep grades.

It took a carload of bricks to fill the order—and it practically tied up the mail on that route. The Government had an answer for the problem, however—they ordered that thereafter nobody could send anybody else more than 200 pounds by parcel post on any one day.

Strange as it seems, the earth has no dry places. Rain or snow falls everywhere—at least once in a while, Africa, Chile, is one of the dryest places on record. Total rainfall for 17 years amounted to 0.02 inch—three light showers.

Prescott Seeks Liberalized Gambling Law for Montgomery

Senator Will Propose Exemption for Civic and Charity Fetes.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post.
Telephone Shepherd 2363.

Exemption of farternal, charitable and religious groups from the terms o fthe Montgomery County gaming low will be proposed at the next session of the Legislature by State Senator Stedman Prescott, he announced yesterday.

Senator Prescott said that he considered the terms of the law too rigorous and that they ore working a hardship on many charitable and religious, as well as farternal orgoniaztions and on the county volunteer firemen.

"The existing law, framed largely for the purpose of wiping out commercial gambling establishments in Montgomery County works an unnecessary hardship on religious, fraternal and chority organizations, which depend largely upon operation of such games at carnival and lawn fetes for their support," the Senator said.

Other members of the county delegotion to the Maryland General Assembly expressed like views and said they would support the Prescott bill. Delegate T. Yellott Canby went even further and said he could see no wrong in permitting commercial use of such minor gambling devices.

In the meantime, State's Attorney James H. Pugh refused to be stampeded from his position thot his duty is to enforce the law despite the pressure of public opinion.

The second case of Rocky Mountain spotted fever in Montgomery County within a week was reported yesterday by Dr. Levin M. Irving, physician, of Silver Spring. The patient is Joseph L. Holland, 28, of Clifton Park, who is employed as a wood worker in the Silver Spring Building and Supply Company.

The case was diagnosed by Dr. Irving Thursday as spotted fever.

Dr. Ellicott, Montgomery County health officer, yesterday complimented Dr. Irving for the manner in which he handled the case. Dr. Dyer, National Public Health officer, is expected to come from Washington today to see the sick man.

The first case reported in the Bethesda area was cared for in a Washington hospital, when the patient was taken ill 10 days after a tick bite.

Walter Milton Phelps, 19, of Brown's Corner, who was injured in an automobile accident on Queen's Chapel road June 27, died yesterday at Montgomery County General Hospital.

Phelps was badly burned when the gasoline tank on the truck he was driving exploded.

The youth is survived by his mother, Mrs. Bertha V. Phelps; two brothers, Jesse M. Phelps and Joseph W. Phelps; and four sisters, Miss Elsie Phelps, Miss Bernadette Phelps, Miss Pauline Phelps, all of Brown's Corner, and Mrs. Thomas Whalen, of Colesville, Md.

Jury Ignores Judge, Awards Worker $7,500

Scorns Attorney's Agreement to Take $1,350; Verdict Is Set Aside.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

A jury in the Circuit Court of Arlington County, Va., yesterday disregarded the instructions of Judge Walter T. McCarthy and awarded a verdict more than five times as large as had been agreed upon by attorneys in the case.

With the consent of the attorneys, Judge McCarthy immediately set the verdict aside.

It happened during the suit of Milton Abel against the Virginia Gardens Development Corporation of which J. B. Shapiro is president. Abel was suing for damages received in an accident at a house in Country Club Grove, where he was engaged as a carpenter. He was working on a scaffold which was alleged to be defective, causing him to fall breaking his right hip, left shoulder, ribs and other injuries. He was suing for $25,000.

The two-day trial was finished yesterday afternoon and before turning the case over to the jury the principals with their attorneys reached an agreement as to the amount of damages. They were willing to settle for $1,350.

Judge McCarthy informed the jury of the agreement and asked them to retire and return with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff with the agreed amount of damages. The jury returned from the jury room in a short while, but instead of following the instructions, returned a verdict, fixing damages at $7,500. The jury was informed of its "error," but it refused to sign the verdict agreed upon by the court. The jury was then dismissed and the verdict set aside.

Miss Szechenyi Is Bride In Brilliant London Event

Her Marriage to Viscount Maidstone Is Attended by Diplomats and Nobility; Couple Descended of Noted Americans.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The wedding of Miss Gladys Szechenyi, daughter of the Hungarian Minister to London and Countess Szchenyi, and Viscount Maidstone, son of the Earl and Countess of Winchilsea and Nottingham, which took place in London Thursday, was an outstanding social event of the season. Just as the marriage of the bride's elder sister, the former Miss Alice Szechenyi, to Count Bela Hadik, of Hungary, which took place in Washington several years ago when Count Szechenyi was Hungarian Minister here, was a brilliant affair attended by members of the diplomatic corps, official and residential society, so the ceremony on Thursday was attended by ambassadors and ministers of nearly all the London embassies and legations, including the American, Belgian, Italian, German, Swiss, Austrian, The Netherlands and Greek, and also Lord and Lady Londonderry, Lady Astor and the Marquess and Marchioness of Crewe.

The ceremony was performed at St. Paul's Church, Knights Bridge, by the Rev. R. E. Leigh and the Rev. N. E. R. Phillips, in the presence of this distinguished assemblage, and was followed by a reception at the Hungarian Legation.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her cousin, Mr. William H. Vanderbilt, and given in marriage by her mother, wore a gown of ivory tinted duchesse satin with a draped corsage, long, tight-fitting sleeves, and a long train cut in the full skirt. Her tulle veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

Five Attend the Bride.

Five bridesmaids attended the bride. They were Miss Sylvia and Miss Nandine Szcehenyi, sisters of the bride; Lady Daphne and Lady Henrietta Diana Juanita Finch-Hatton, sisters of the bridegroom, and Princess Elizabeth Cantacuzene. They all wore frocks of pale pink tulle finished with flowers of the same shade at the waistline, and large pink straw hats. They carried bouquets of pink roses.

Mr. P. E. Parks was best man and one of the ushers was Mr. Whitney Straight, son of Mrs. Leonard K. Elmhirst and the late Willard D. Straight, and whose marriage to Lady Daphne Finch-Hatton, sister of Viscount Maidstone, will be another outstanding event of the London season.

Through their mothers, both the bride and bridegroom are half American. The bride is the third of the five daughters of Count Laszlo Szechenyi and the Countess, who is the former Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, the youngest child of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, of New York. The bride is the great-granddaughter of Commodore Vanderbilt, ferryboot and railroad magnate. She is also a great-granddaughter of Abram Evan Gwynne, Cincinnati lawyer and a descendant of John Claypoole, a member of Cromwell's House of Peers. Her paternal grandfather was Count Emerich Szechenyi, who for many years was the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador to Berlin and was one of the limited circle of diplomats who enjoyed close friendship with Bismarck. Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt are her maternal aunt and uncle. Another sister, Mrs. Eugene B. Roberts, of Washington, went to London several weeks ago to attend the wedding.

Bridegroom's Mother a Drexel.

The bridegroom, Christopher Guy Heneage Finch-Hatton, Viscount Maidstone, is the son of Sir Guy Montagu George Finch-Hatton, fourteenth Earl of Winchilsea and Nottingham, and the Countess of Winchilsea, the former Margaretta Armstrong Drexel, only daughter of the late Anthony J. Drexel, of Philadelphia, international banker and philanthropist, and of Mrs. Brinsley Fitzgerald, of London, wife of Lieut. Col. Fitzgerald, fourth son of the late Sir Peter Fitzgerald. At the time of his marriage, in 1918, Col. Fitzgerald was private secretary to the commander in chief of the home forces.

Viscount Maidstone's mother was a bridesmaid for Miss Marjorie G. Gould, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, who married the former's brother, Mr. Anthony J. Drexel, jr., in New York in 1910. The Princess Miguel de Braganca and William Rhinelander Stewart, of New York, are maternal cousins of Viscount Maidstone.

On the paternal side, the Viscount is the grandson of Henry Stormont, thirteenth Earl of Winchilsea, who married Anne Jane, daugnter of the admiral of the fleet, Sir Henry John Codrington, K. C. B. He is the brother of Lady Daphne Finch-Hatton, whose marriage to Mr. Whitney Straight, a grandson of the late William C. Whitney, Secretary of the Navy in President Cleveland's Administration, will take place this month in London.

Playing the Short Suits.

While it is usually worthwhile to have as good a trump suit as possible, and for that reason players should attempt to play in the suit which is strongest in their combined hands, the time factor sometimes causes this sound principle to be diregarded.

In the deal below North and South hold nine diamonds with all four honors; in hearts, they hold only eight cards and the Jack and ten are missing. Yet only in hearts can they make a Small Slam if the proper opening lead is made.

South, Dealer

	♠ K Q J ♡ K Q 8 6 ◇ A J 5 4 ♣ 5 4
♠ 10 8 4 3 ♡ J 10 ◇ 9 8 2 ♣ J 10 9 8 2	N W E S	♠ A 9 7 2 ♡ 9 5 3 ◇ 6 ♣ K Q 6 3
	♠ 6 5 ♡ A 7 4 2 ◇ K Q 10 7 3 ♣ A 7

South	West	North	East
1◇	Pass	1♡(1)	Pass
2♡	Pass	4◇	Pass
4NT	Pass	6◇(2)	Pass
6♡(3)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—With slightly more than three and one-half honor-tricks and with such strong diamond support, North could with justification have made a jump bid of two hearts. His suit was weak, however, and he was content with the One-over-One response which is forcing for one round.

3—South's return to six hearts, though in diamonds he has a rebiddable suit, is an excellent bid. He knows that it is very unlikely that North has as many as five diamonds. Therefore, if hearts are trumps, North may be able to discard a loser on the fifth card of the diamond suit.

The Play.

East opened the King of clubs and South's judgment was vindicated. After dummy's Ace won the first trick, North drew three rounds of trumps and then, the opponents' trumps being all gone, he ran the five diamonds and on the fifth discarded his five of clubs. Played this way the Small Slam was impregnable for there remained only the matter of giving up a trick to the Ace of spades and ruffing East's desperate attempt to cash the Queen of clubs.

Comment.

If the contract had been six diamonds and a club had been opened, the result would have been "down one." With 12 establishable tricks in sight, South would have had no time to develop them. In order to establish two spade winners, he would have been forced to give up the lead, whereupon East could have taken a club. The heart suit, though solid, would have been useless so far as furnishing discards was concerned, for both declarer and dummy held four cards.

Double Decked Bed Answers Guest Problem

By Dudley Harmon,
Pinch Hitting for Ruth Anne Davis.

ATTENTION, all housewives whose homes are invaded regularly by bevies of week-end or overnight guests. If unexpected company means that Brother Ed has to double up with Cousin Jim, or that Aunt Ethel must sleep in the closet, it is high time that something be done about the situation. An F street store is featuring this week something which should be a great help in solving the problem of what to do with your house guests. The article in question is nothing less than a four-poster, double deck bed, which holds two people, one down below and one on top. Made of wood, the bed is painted a rich brown, and handsomely finished. One climbs to the top by means of a handy little ladder made of the same material, and painted the same color, as the bed. Once safely aboard, one adjusts a wooden panel which fits around the edge, so that there is no danger of tumbling out. The top part of the bed can be unscrewed and lifted down, to make twin beds. The whole idead is new, and, it seems, is proving a great success out west. It should be the ideal answer to the question of where to put people in homes where there are several children, or much entertaining. It sells for $65.

Pocketbook Freshness.

A HOT DAY—the thermometer above 90—you feel sticky and uncomfortable. You are downtown, shopping or at work, have an engagement in a few minutes and no time to rush home and change. This is just the occasion for a bit of freshening up with some perfume or eau-de-cologne. A local department store has some attractive perfume holders for the pocketbook. Made of fluted enamel, these tubes come in various colors. One of the nicest features about them is their price, which is only 75 cents. Dainty and useful, they should prove popular.

No More Elusive Soap.

IF YOU'RE LIKE most people, you've probably struggled helplessly in the bathtub many a time, diving after a disappearing piece of soap. Frequently you've done some pretty perilous slipping around in showers, too. In any event, you will be glad to know that at last someone has thought of a way to anchor the soap within reach, so that you are never at a moment's loss to account for its whereabouts. A downtown store has just received from New York a bath ball of soap attached to an anchoring cord which keeps it from sinking. You simply hang the cord around your neck and there you are! Why nobody ever thought of it before is a mystery to us. No more reaching and searching and diving with this little gadget, for it is at all times within easy reach. It comes in several different colors—pinks, blues, greens and gay yellows—and costs only $1. An amusing and original week-end gift—that is, if you can bear to part with it yourself!

Bargain in Stationery.

ANY book of etiquette will tell you that a person is often judged by his or her stationery. The impression you make in writing to someone for the first time depends to a great extent on the paper you use. And it is especially important to have nice note paper in the summer, when one is called upon so frequently for week-end thank-you notes, or letters inviting people to visit. A Washington department store now has on sale just the kind of stationery we mean. It is an excellent quality of linen weave, packed in an attractive box. The box contains 12 full-size letter sheets and 12 smaller sheets for brief notes. This paper comes in two color schemes; one, a rich, creamy white with a deep gold border, the other, a smart ivory, edged with gold. A personal touch is added by the fact that the letter paper is initialed with an artistic monogram. The price is only 50 cents a box.

Women's Political Work Held a Duty, Not Pastime

Attitudes Changing, Says Mrs. McNamara, of Massachusetts.

WOMEN WHO formerly considered participation in politics merely a privilege or a pastime, now regard it as a duty. The responsibility has been taken so seriously the last few years that women no longer are mere figureheads in governmental affairs.

This is an observation of Mrs. Elizabeth L. McNamara, new Democratic committeewoman from Massachusetts, who recently came to Washington on a mission far removed from political duties. She was here to attend a meeting of the national finance committee of the Spanish-American War Veterans. Yesterday at the Carlton, however, she forgot her committee meeting long enough to discuss woman's place in the political machinery of Massachusetts and to point out ways in which women throughout New England had come to the fore in governmental affairs during the last decade.

An instructor in government and parliamentary law for the extension division of the University of Massachusetts, Mrs. McNamara has been "vitally interested in politics for 20 years." Today, however, she is taking an active part in politics chiefly because she believes it is every woman's duty to participate in governmental affairs. "Women have a peculiar contribution to make at this time," she said, "and in my own opinion it is in the field of education. We must train ourselves in political science in order to help train others."

In this connection, she recommended "more organization for women, and even more political education for them," and cited the success of the recently inaugurated educational program in progress among the Democratic women of Massachusetts.

Discussing the remarkable strides women had made against terrific odds since 1921, she said, "Of course, even with suffrage, we can't hope to gain a place in the public life of this country it has taken men 200 years to attain; but if we continue to forge ahead in the future as we have the last 14 years, there is no way to tell just how far we may go."

Mrs. McNamara is another of those few women who have proved it is not impossible to build both a career and a home. As instructor for the last 20 years, she has found time enough from her profession to manage a home for her husband, Maj. P. J. McNamara, and a son and a daughter.

What TODAY Means

"Cancer."

IF JULY 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 a. m. to 1:15 p. m., from 3:15 to 5:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m., from 1:15 to 3:15 p. m. and from 5:15 to 7:15 p. m.

If you are wise you will try to dismiss from your mind all thoughts of cares and responsibilities. Luxuriate in relaxation, seeking some form of amusement as a means for pleasant mental recreation. A desired result is seldom accomplished through worry, while an optimistic hope often gives the needed mental stimulus required to see the right way, or inspires you to do the correct thing. The manifestation of friendship may help make this a very happy day for you. Open your heart and mind to Nature's gifts, for whether it be rain or sunshine, they both have a marvelous mission. They can have as favorable a reaction on us as they have on the soil, if we make ourselves susceptible to their influence.

It is in your power to make this day joyous or sad, bright or gloomy. Good luck will probably cause you t. soon see a fond hope realized. Married and engaged couples and those who have just discovered "the one, and only," may find this an auspicious day to indulge in sentimentality, as the average person will be responsive to all forms of affection.

If a woman and July 13 is your birthday, if you do not expect too much of your friends and relatives, you may save yourself from many disillusioning disappointments. You may be inclined to be too much of an idealist for your own happiness. The sooner you realize that we live in a very practical world and that most of the chivalrous romancers can be found only on the printed page, the easier life will become for you. In financial matters you should be very fortunate.

You are likely to have some ups and downs, but there will be a limit to your downs, and your ups should eventually reach such a height that you will have no need for future worries. Welfare or work of a missionary nature clerical, journalists, as well as a business requiring artistic designing or displaying of goods, are probably the most suitable for you. Married life will have a great deal to offer you.

The child born on July 13 usually from infancy on proves a great blessing.

If a man and July 13 is your natal day, you may be disposed to be a dreamer and a lover of art. Sculptoring, painting, writing, music, composing, acting or architecture may provide the best medium for your self-expression.

Mary E. Wooley, educator.

James A. Seddon, lawyer.

Nathan B. Forrest, Confederate general.

Fears Instilled Into Children May Grow Up

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

THE chap who created the fable about the "bogey man" who was sure to "get you" should be assigned here and hereafter to the care of patients whose fears have "got" them. Threats and some forms of punishment beget fears in children, the impress of which may remain throughout life. What cruelties unthinking parents inflict upon their children by this treatment, little realizing that the ground may be plowed and sown for the development of nervous and mental disorders in after life! Childhood must be a period of happiness in which a strong mind is developing in a strong body.

Walt Disney rendered a real public service when he showed that even three little pigs could overcome the "Big Bad Wolf."

Fears possess adults; sometimes we call them worries, and if they continue and prove overwhelming the unfortunate sufferer may succumb to what is termed a nervous breakdown.

Inability To Sleep Is Marked.

The patient cannot shake off the thought that something terrible is going to happen from which there is no escape. He fears that his brain is giving way, or that he is in danger of dropping dead as a result of heart disease. Loss of memory and inability to concentrate are complained of. Some will say, "I am living in a fog, in a dream." Many are unable to sleep the night through, rising in the morning fatigued and ill at ease. Depression is far worse in the morning than at any other time of the day. Now and then the victim assumes a negative attitude and becomes indifferent to himself and to members of his family.

When questioned patiently, childhood worries or the family background may supply a clew as to the origin of this distressing condition. The type of person who is subject to "moody spells" but who at other times is vivacious, active, and alert is an occasional sufferer. Not infrequently the condition may be represented in mild degree by an attack of the "blues."

Physical Basis May Exist.

The most important step in the management of the condition is the friendly cooperation of an understanding physician who knows that anxiety, worry, and mental depression are just as positive symptoms of disease as pain in the region of the appendix or an abcess in the lung.

The first principle in treatment is building the body to normal, adding nourishment and hence weight if the person is thin. The second is rest. It may be necessary to use mild hypnotics in order to secure adequate sleep. Work should not be interrupted unless the state of the patient compels it, although easing up on the daily tasks may be required. Complete rest in bed for a week or ten days is often the beginning of a climb upward on the ladder of health.

Confession Good for Sufferer.

Frank confession is good for the soul and the patient at all times must find himself on such a basis with his physician that he can tell him anything and everything. Unless confidence is maintained the physician is attempting an impossible task. Furthermore, it is necessary at the outset that the physician assure his patient that he can recover but that his fate, in a sense, is in his own hands. Encouragement and stimulation will be required constantly. Inasmuch as the condition is usually months or years in coming on, it may be an equally long time before health returns.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Girl Whose Letter, Signed "Lost," Was Printed Yesterday, Is Offered Job and Opportunity to Make New Friends; Her Address Is Requested.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR LOST: In a postscript to your letter of July 3, which was answered in this column yesterday (July 12) you wrote: "I will forward my address if you will answer my letter." Please let me have your address at once. I have a job for you—a worthwhile opportunity with a well-known Washington organization.

* * * *

Also, Miss Beulah Smith, director of the Washington Life Adjustment Center, has had a telephone message from a prominent Washington woman who is eager to introduce you into a group of high-type young persons.

* * * *

Don't let these opportunities slide. They should prove of inestimable value in helping you to reestablish that "mental balance and poise" you asked for help in regaining. M. H.

How to Discourage Beau?

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I have followed your column for some time and am always greatly impressed by your sane advice. Therefore, I am bringing my own problem to you.

I have a friend whom I have known and corresponded with for several years. His business brings him through Washington frequently and he always stops to see me. Although he has never professed to be any more than a friend, and although I have never given him any reason for assuming more than a casual attitude toward our friendship, I have a growing conviction that he is becoming very fond of me.

* * * *

I am sure I could never consider him more than a friend; in fact, I have been eager to terminate our friendship for some time. I have tried to indicate as much to him indirectly. I have neglected to answer his letters. The last two times he came through here I refused to see him on the plea of previous engagements. Now he writes that he will be here again this month and asks to see me.

* * * *

Of course, I could ignore his request, but eventually the matter must come to an issue and must be settled. His only sister (the last member of his family), whom he loved very dearly, died recently, and he has been very much upset and depressed over her death. I hate to be unkind to him at such a time; yet I feel it is unfair to him to continue seeing him, feeling as I do. He has no other girl friends and has always rather depended on me for sympathy and understanding.

* * * *

Is there any tactful way in which I might open his eyes to the fact that I don't wish to see him any more? N. B. Y.

Become a Matchmaker.

N. B. Y.

DEAR N. B. Y.: It seems to me the best stratagem for destroying this man's romantic illusions concerning you is to become a candid match-maker in his behalf, at the same time manufacturing so many engagements for your leisure hours that he must conclude you have no time for him. If you can do so gracefully, it might be practicable to profess a serious attachment for some other man.

* * *

If he isn't in a mood to marry, and you suggest forthrightly that it's time he married some fine woman who will take care of him, he may take to his heels in alarm, thinking you are trying to jockey him into a proposal. And if he is looking for a wife, the best indirect way of letting him know you are not a candidate, is to seem to take an aggressive interest in negotiating introductions which may lead to that denouement.

* * * *

In your list of acquaintances, isn't there some unattached woman who might be delighted to know a lonely man who is looking for "sympathy and understanding?" If you could bring two such persons together, the whole problem might automatically solve itself without any further effort on your part.

* * * *

When he writes, I think it would be more courteous, more tactful and at the same time more indicative of real detachment, to dispatch a brief typewritten reply, so worded as to reveal between the lines that you are entirely preoccupied with your own affairs and scarcely aware of his existence. When he asks to see you, naming a future date of meeting, tell him you plan to be out of town.

* * * *

Such tactics should either put him to rout or result in a positive declaration of his intentions and feelings. In the latter event, you are then free to tell him, both tactfully and frankly, that he has misjudged your kindness entirely, and that you think it best not to see each other in the future. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

College Girls Thrifty, Dress Survey Shows

College girls, generally speaking, are thrifty, a survey at Boston University has revealed.

Last year, the woman undergraduate at this university spent an average of $144.50 for her wardrobe. More than two-thirds of the girls said they made some of their dresses themselves, and about half knitted their sweater suits and even their bathing suits.

MISS PAULINE DEBRODES who advocates the study of conversational French as a leisure time activity and a means of sociability.

Miss Pauline De Brodes, New Arrival in D. C., to Conduct Classes on Community Center Department's Summer Program.

WHAT TO DO with leisure time has become the question of the day. With shortened working hours and less money to spend, an increasing number of persons find themselves facing the "what shall I do next?" problem.

Miss Pauline DeBrodes, a newcomer to Washington, has an answer. It is: "Study French." In pursuance of her plan, Miss DeBrodes is opening French classes for children and adults as part of the educational program of the Community Center Department. Classes for adults are held Wednesday nights at Roosevelt High School. Those for children are at 10 o'clock Tuesday and Friday morning at Central High School. If public response justifies it, additional classes for adults will be held Tuesday and Friday nights.

Miss DeBrodes' French classes are to be different from the usual ones. They are for recreation and relaxation. She wants her pupils first of all to enjoy themselves. She plans to limit each class to between 16 and 20 pupils so that the gathering may have all the informality of a social group.

Eschews the Textbook.

The textbook, that synonym for dullness, has little or no place in Miss DeBrodes' scheme of things. Her pupils, she hopes, will pick up the fundamentals of the language by asking her questions, and by repeating phrases after her, rather than by reading books. She believes that conversational French and textbook French are two different things, and that the former can only be learned through actually talking French. According to her, it is not unusual for a person who has studied French conscientiously for several years to arrive in Paris only to find that the phrases so carefully culled from textbooks are just not the phrases that the French people use. Elaborate subjunctives, and stilted grammar book phrases, do not, it seems, impress the French one whit.

So Miss DeBrodes has careully selected the expressions and phrases most used in everyday French, and it is these that she plans to employ in teaching. Instead of spending two or three hours mulling over the past perfect subjunctive of the verb "to be," her pupils will concentrate on learning by heart such phrases as "When does the next train leave"? "What is the price?" and "I'm fine, thank you."

Will Lecture on Country.

In an effort to make the study of French enjoyable, Miss DeBrodes intends to teach her pupils to sing gay French songs, and to give them jokes and anecdotes to translate. Half of her classroom period she will devote to general talks on France, describing the country and the people. Instead of continuing these talks to a strict outline, she will encourage questions from her listeners, that they may learn about any aspect of French civilization and culture in which they are interested.

Miss DeBrodes is a graduate of Columbia University, with a certificate from the Sorbonne, and has done research work for two years in Paris on the subject of teaching French. She has also taught English in the schools of Macon and Marseille, France. At present, she is incorporating some of her ideas and theories into a book to be published next winter.

Interested In Social Problems.

Miss DeBrodes' activities are not confined exclusively to teaching, however. She takes a great interest in social problems and conditions. She now is working on a plan to bring together the people in large cities who are too shy to make satisfactory social contacts, or who do not have the opportunity to do so.

"In a very large city," she remarked, "there are hundreds of charming, intelligent people who do not have enough money to join the expensive clubs, and yet who do not wish to take advantage of the opportunities offered by the welfare organizations. It is a pet idea of mine to try and bring these people together by means of some sort of a clubhouse where they could all meet to listen to lectures, to dance, to read, and, most important of all, to make friends."

California Proteges Will Excel The Two Helens, Coach Predicts

NEW YORK, July 12.—That California is developing a new crop of girl tennis stars, destined to outdo completely the performances of previous Pacific champions such as Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs, is the confident assertion of W. C. (Pop) Fuller, veteran Berkely tennis coach, in an article published by the American Magazine.

"Take Anne Morgan, for example," says Mr. Fuller. "She is the best tennis player at 14 who ever delighted the soul of a coach. The first time I saw Anne, I picked her for a coming champion. She is playing better tennis at 14 than either of the two famous Helens played at that age. She has a fine all-around game, with a particularly good back-hand stroke, which is very rare in a left-handed girl. She has fine natural coordination, good eyesight, is strong, muscular, speedy and patient. Watch for her. And I am training several new stars, girls in their teens who in a few years may succeed the champions of today."

Prefers to Coach Girls.

In the line of general advice to girl players who have championship aspirations, Mr. Fuller says:

"For more than 25 years I have been training tennis champions, and I say without hesitancy that I'd rather coach girls than boys. Tennis is one major sport that is made to order for girls, and more girls than boys, I think, have the making of tennis stars.

"On account of my success with feminine players, I suppose, I am frequently asked at what age girls are ready to take up tennis. From my long experience, I think that 12 is about the right age, speaking in general. To those fond parents of a girl who they feel would make a real tennis player, I invariably insist that they be sure the child would rather devote her time to tennis than to any other outdoor sport. For I have sadly discovered too many times, especially with parents who are good players themselves, that the desire is more fixed in their heads than in that of their child's.

Many Handicapped at Start.

"Once sure on that point, I stress the great importance of having the girl coached properly, so that she may learn the basic strokes of the game as they should be learned. Too often, I find girls of real promise handicapped at the very start, because they have begun wrong. They must spend months in unlearning faulty strokes. (Is it any wonder I gave up the racket in my instructions?)

"Now, before going too far into the rigors of coaching, I'd like to emphasize the necessity of carefully weighing the mental and physical qualifications of the youthful candidate for champion honors. As you have already seen, these are considerable. Even if the girl is to be only a passable contender in State and sectional events, she must have good health, good eyesight, a measure of muscular development, some natural co-ordination, manual dexterity, and speed of foot. These are the essential physical traits. On the mental side she must have the ability to concentrate, be alert as a bird, and possess qualities of self-analysis, perseverance, self-control, and the will to battle against all odds."

Hot Weather Menus Easily Ignore Meats

By Dorothea Duncan.

WE CAN sidestep the meat issue very neatly these warm days. The markets are flooded with an attractive display of fresh fruits and vegetables, shell fish and of course there are always numerous varieties of cheese, milk, cream and eggs. With a little ingenuity you can work out your menus to the satisfaction of the family and still disregard the frequent use of meat.

Meat isn't an essential hot weather food. We don't need all the energy that meat supplies when the weather is torrid. A sufficient amount of protein is deemed necessary to maintain good health, but we can look to other sources for a generous supply of it. When we do get a hunger for meat, it is wiser to choose from the leaner varieties. Chicken, too, is a good choice for summer menus. Let's not forget seafood, especially seasonable shellfish and the non-oily fish, cod, haddock, filet of sole, etc.

A variety of sauces add an alluring touch to hot vegetable platters. A combination salad platter, two or three kinds of salad each in its separate nest of lettuce, makes a thoroughly enjoyable luncheon or dinner. If you advocate hot food always, try the fish dinner suggested for hot weather.

Pan Broiled Filets a la Meuniere.

2 pounds filets (cod, haddock, etc.)
4 tablespoons butter
1 cup flour
1 tablespoon oil
1 tablesoonful finely minced parsley
Juice of 1 lemon.
Salt and pepper.

Roll the filets in salted flour (two teaspoons salt to one cup flour). Heat the oil in the frying pan and fry the filets until cooked a a golden brown on each side. Remove to a hot platter. Melt the butter, add lemon juice and parsley and when very hot, pour over the filets. Serve hot, at once.

Carrot and Almond Salad.

Put two medium-sized raw carrots and two tablespoons blanched almonds through food chopper. Season with salt, moisten with mayonnaise and serve on a bed of crisp lettuce. Serve with additional mayonnaise, if you prefer.

The frozen fruit salad suggested in the second menu is not the usual pink tea affair made from rich cream, nuts and fruit. It is made merely of fruits and their juices and has a cold sherbet-like taste. Take a small can of fruit salad and place it in the freezing compartment of your automatic refrigerator. If you are planning to serve the salad for luncheon, place the fruit in to freeze the night before or if the salad is for dinner put the fruit in the freezing compartment in the morning. If you have just an ice box, bury the can of fruit in a mixture of crushed ice and salt. Let it freeze for about five to six hours.

To take the roll of fruit from the can without breaking, cut the top and bottom from the can and gently push the solid fruit onto a platter. Slice in half inch strips to serve.

Women in Mills Raise Problem In New Russia

ALMOST as many women in Russia are at work in the heavy industries as are men, reports A. J. Cummings, political writer of the London News-Chronicle.

This general employment of women in all forms of labor is raising serious social problems Mr. Cummings believes. He writes:

"The Russian State pays more attention perhaps to the care of child life than to any other human consideration. The state almost worships the child. Yet it is a grave fact that in the last two years child delinquency has enormously increased in all parts of Russia.

"Why has this delinquency and ill discipline among children developed so dangerously?

"I believe it is due, above all, to the fact that millions of homes are deserted for a greater part of each day by both parents, so that the children of the home are left to fend for themselves without parental guidance and discipline."

State's High Court Upholds Sales Tax On Gross Receipts

Levy on Credit Deals Declared Within Act's Meaning.

Decision Clearing Coblentz Is Upset

Morris Utley Must Die for Murder of Schimunex.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md. July 12.—The Maryland Court of Appeals, returning here today for a special meeting, announced three important decisions. The court decided:

That the gross tax receipts tax, placing a 1 per cent levy on most retail sales to raise money for relief purposes, is constitutional but advised that collection of outstanding taxes from sales before April 1 should be restrained.

That the criminal court of Baltimore erred in dismissing the charges against Emory L. Coblentz resulting from the failure of the Central Trust Co. of Maryland nearly four years ago and the case of the Frederick banker was returned to the lower court for trial.

That Morris T. Utley, 29, should hang for the murder of Charles F. Schimunek during an attempted holdup of a store in Baltimore.

Upholding of the constitutionality of the gross receipts tax law cleared the way for increased collections.

The appellate court, in an opinion by Judge Carroll T. Bond, affirmed the decision of Judge J. Frank Supplee in Circuit Court No. 2 of Baltimore City, where the constitutionality was originally argued, except in one respect.

Third Coblentz Reversal.

This was in connection with a ruling of State Comptroller William S. Gordy, jr., holding that in cases where payment was received after April 1, for goods sold on credit in March, the gross receipts tax must be paid. The appellate court held that this regulation should have been restrained. The opinion said:

"The only ground for relief found, then, is in the regulation of the comptroller, which would require payment of the tax on any credits remaining unpaid from sales before April 1."

One of the principal points decided for the State was that involving credit sales. It was contended that if a sale was made on credit in one month and paid for in succeeding months it was not taxable, only being taxable when a credit sale was paid either in whole or in part in the same month it was made.

"Omission of the large proportion of sales and receipts which are on credit would be a surprising one, defeating to a great extent the purpose of the enactment, and is not to be inferred unless inference is compelled by the terms of the act. We see nothing to interfere with the evident purpose that all receipts of the sales reported shall be taxed," the court held.

It was the third time the Coblentz case had been been returned to the lower court since the Frederick financial institution collapsed in 1931.

The court's ruling, in effect, held that Coblentz would not be put in double jeopardy if he goes to trial on a charge of fraudulant corporate misrepresentation on an indictment originating in Howard County.

Indicted in Four Counties.

The Central Trust Co., with its main office in Frederick and branches in 11 western Maryland communities, failed to open for business September 3, 1931.

Coblentz was indicted subsequently in Frederick, Howard, Carroll and Montgomery counties. Most of the indictments charged he accepted deposits at various branches of the bank when he knew the institution was insolvent.

His first trial in Cumberland, on a change of venue from Howard County, resulted in his conviction and a sentence of 18 months in the House of Correction.

Virginia's Crop Acreage 2 Pct. Over Last Year

Prospect for Most Above 10-Year Average, State Report Discloses.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., July 12.—Total crop acreage planted by Virginia farmers this year is 2.6 per cent greater than last year, and on July 1 prospects for most crops were above the ten-year average, Henry M. Taylor, statistician of the State department of agriculture, reported today.

Acreage of corn, wheat, oats, tobacco, sweet potatoes and hay is greater; rye, potatoes and cotton less; and peanuts about the same, Mr. Taylor said.

The acreage of wheat harvested is larger than first estimated, placed now at 624,000 acres as compared with 576,000 acres harvested last year. The crop is described as turning out better in the eastern part of the State, with total production now estimated at 9,048,000 bushels compared wih 8,092,000 bushels last year.

Acreages planted to crops are estimated as follows: Corn, 1,490,000 acres, 2 per cent above last year; white potatoes, 68,000 acres compared with 101,000 last year; sweet potatoes, 36,000 acres, 6 per cent greater than last year; cotton acreage, 58,000, 2 per cent less than last year; peanuts, 141,000 acres, same as last year's harvest; hay crops, total acreage, 979,000, an increase of 2 per cent over the 1934 figures; soybeans, 68,000 acres, same as last year.

Egg production showed a decline during June, but the July 1 average of 40.6 eggs per hundred hens is the highest since 1931, Taylor reports.

Milk production was estimated in the herds of correspondents at 14 pounds for all cows, the highest July average since 1931.

Taylor's report stated that farm wages showed a "slight increase" over a year ago with the demand for farm labor increasing with an ample supply of men available for the work.

Bus Tragedy Driver Loses License Card

State Commissioner Lifts Line's Permit for Crash Costing 14 Lives.

Record Shows 5 Arrests for Traffic Offenses Prior to Accident.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 12.—Percy Line, driver of the Washington County School bus in which 14 Williamsport High School students lost their lives in a grade crossing crash at Rockville, today was deprived of his automobile driving license for an indefinite period.

Walter R. Rudy, State motor vehicle commissioner, announced Line's permit had been ordered revoked as a result of a hearing last week in Hagerstown on the bus driver's record as a motor vehicle operator.

Prior to the April 11 accident, when a fast Baltimore & Ohio express crashed into the school bus about midnight, records in the commissioner's office show Line was arrested five times on minor traffic counts, and figured in two accidents.

Leniency Appeal Denied.

During the Hagerstown hearing, Rudy said, Line's counsel asked that the revocation order be limited to three months. However, no time limit was attached to the order, it was said at the commissioner's office today.

Arrested December 2, 1923, on charges of failure to have a rear light. Released with warning.

Arrested October 14, 1924, on charges of reckless driving and failure to have a registration card in his possession. Fined $5 for reckless driving, $1 for failure to have registration card and reprimanded.

Maryland Moves to End Jailing Of Children Under 16 Years Old

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 12.—Action by the attorney general's office to secure enforcement of the State law prohibiting detention of children under 16 in county jails was asked today by Samuel S. Shannahan, chairman of the board of State Aid and Charities.

Shannahan, in a letter to Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor, asserted four cases of such detention, in four counties which he did not name, had been brought to the board's attention during the past month.

Shannahan said the children were kept in the jails for periods ranging from two days to three weeks, and pointed out their detention was a violation of Section 82 of the Juvenile Court law.

He asked that O'Conor's office write State's attorneys in various counties, "bringing to their attention the seriousness of this procedure" and suggesting that "in every county there is some welfare organization to which the State's attorney can turn for advice and assistance" in making plans for temporary case of children outside the county jail.

Staunton Jury Convicts Clark In Death Trial

Five Years Recommended for Defendant in Fatal Operation.

By the Associated Press.

Staunton, Va., July 12.—George W. Clark, on trial for the death of Mrs. Luther H. Sutton, was found guilty of second degree murder this afternoon by a Corporation Court jury that recommended a five-year sentence, the minimum under the law.

Clark's counsel immediately entered a motion that the verdict be set aside, and Judge Richard S. Ker announced he would hear the motion at 10 a. m. tomorrow and would defer sentence until then.

The case was given to the jury at 12:05 p. m. and one hour and 15 minutes later it reported a verdict.

Joseph Nachman, assistant prosecutor, told the jury in his argument that medical testimony had shown that Mrs. Sutton's death resulted from air being introduced into the bloodstream during an operation.

Other testimony indicated that Mrs. Sutton, an expectant mother, died after an attempted operation in a room which Clark had rented.

Sutton, the young woman's husband, appeared at the trial yesterday as a defense witness.

He is charged with smashing engine parts of two automobiles, firing at the mine operator and threatening to shoot any miners who attempted to leave the shaft. State police charged him with malicious destruction of property and assault with intent to kill.

Dr. Pearson's Ousting Wins Lee's Praise

Former Dean Justifies College Magazine's Campaign.

Calls Regents' Decision Wisest Possible Under Circumstances.

By the Associated Press.

College Park, Md., July 12.—Dr. Frederick E. Lee, former dean of the college of arts and sciences at the University of Maryland, today praised the action of the institution's board of regents in ousting Dr. Raymond A. Pearson as the university's president.

Commenting on his article, "The University of Maryland Episode," appearing in tomorrow's issue of the magazine School and Society, Dr. Lee also put in a word of commendation for the attitude adopted by the Diamondback, student weekly newspaper, which editorially opposed the former president's administration.

"Offered Presidency."

Lee, now professor of economics at the University of Illinois, was requested to come here by Dr. Pearson shortly before the latter resigned his post July 1 at the regents' request. Shortly after his arrival, the former dean charged, Dr. Pearson offered him the presidency of the university.

"The board of regents has been blamed and condemned," he said today, "because it did 'this,' and cursed because it did not do 'that,' when, as a matter of fact, it made and carried out the wisest decision possibe under the unfortunate circumstances."

"Student Charges Valid."

Asked if he thought charges made against Dr. Pearson's policies by the Diamondback had been sustained, Dr. Lee said:

"I do not believe there is much question about the validity of the student charges that Dr. Pearson was to blame for the resignation of many able faculty members, or that, if not directly to blame, he made no particular effort to retain them, and did, thereby, lower the academic standards of the university.

"But let the facts speak for themselves."

"Twelve of these," the article continues, "were full professors, and in their places three professors with the Ph. D. degree had been appointed by Dr. Pearson, and most of the three were relatively unknown men in their fields, while many of the 24 were men of national reputation."

Bennett, educational advisor of the CCC camps of the Third Corps Area; Arthur S. Richmond, president of the Baltimore Parent-Teacher Congress; Mrs. S. J. At the final exercises Dr. Willard S. Small, dean of the college of education of the University of Maryland, presented certificates to the members of the congress who had attended all of the sessions.

Maryland Discovers 15 Cases Of Spotted Fever in 2 Months

'Meanest Disease' Causes Chills, Faintness and Severe Pains.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 12.—Dr. Robert H. Riley, State director of health, said today that 15 cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever have been reported in June and July.

This "meanest disease" is transmitted to humans by wood ticks, usually by a variety found on dogs, the health official said. The best preventative is to watch for the insect and prevent it from biting.

Dogs are immune from the disease, said Dr. Riley, but when a human contacts it, these are the things which usually happen:

Sudden onset of chills and fever, loss of appetite, fainting spells, restlessness, insomnia, nose bleed, severe muscular pains, rash and eruptions, sever headaches, mental confusion, tenderness of the flesh over the shins, pains in the joints. About 20 of each 100 cases result fatally in Maryland, he said.

After recovering, a person is likely to suffer deafness, visual disturbances, slurred speech and mental disturbance for several weeks, Dr. Riley declared, after which the effects disappear.

There has been a total of 210 cases of the disease since 1930, when it was first discovered in this State, health records show. June, July and August are the months when it is prevalent.

Farms Increase But Fall in Value

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Census Bureau yesterday reported that while the number of farms and their acreage in Virginia increased heavily between 1930 and 1935, the value of the farms and their buildings decreased more than $263,000,000.

The farm census report showed the number of farms in the State jumped from 170,610 to 197,242 in that period. At the same time the acreage increased from 16,728,620 to 17,635,274.

In the same period, however, the value of the farms, land and buildings, decreased from $855,849,672 to $592,767,036.

Fruit Growers May Adopt Plan For State Label

Maryland Society, Meeting Tuesday, Will Discuss Advertising Crop.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 12.—The possibility of fruit growers of Maryland in the near future putting out their product under a single trade name which could be nationally advertised, was seen in the announcement that advertising would be among the subjects to be discussed next Tuesday at the summer meeting of the State Horticultural Society at Smithsburg.

For several years, fruit growers have had such a plan in mind, many of them believing that a better market could be developed by nationally advertising under a single trade name, similar to that of orange and other fruit growers elsewhere in the nation. Many large growers have their own trade name, but their product is not nationally advertised.

Among the speakers at the summer meeting will be J. Y. McDonald, president of the West Virginia Horticultural Society; E. N. Cory, State Entomologist; J. H. Beaumont, head of the horticultural department, University of Maryland; L. B. Fletcher, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and Mayor I. M. Wertz, of Hagerstown.

Other topics that will be discussed include status of insect control; simple methods of cleaning fruit and the growers' control over annual bearing of fruit.

Virginian, 7, Steals Bus Ride To Baltimore Seeking Mother

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, July 12.—Seven-year-old Frank Lahman, who stowed away on a bus and came to Baltimore in a vain search for his mother, was considerably happier today when officials of the Travelers Aid Society located her in Washington. She had gone there to have her six-month-old baby treated at the Children's Hospital.

Young Frank, however, will remain here for a day or so until his mother is ready to take him back to Colonial Beach, Va., where they live.

Frank became a public problem late Wednesday when, after a bus drew into its depot here, he appeared from behind a seat. Questioned by the bus attendants, he said his mother had left home for Baltimore, taking her baby to the Johns Hopkins Hospital. And, said Frank, he had decided to come along.

But Mrs. Lahman was not to be found, and Frank had to be cared for by the society while the search was put in older hands.

Richmond, Va., July 12.—Slot machines at Virginia Beach and in other localities in Virginia are operated under an "affidavit" filed with the local commissioner of revenue, it was pointed out today at offices of the State department of taxation.

C. H. Morrissett, State tax commissioner, was not at his office this morning, but officials said the State derived $12,316.01 in revenue from slot machines during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1934.

The tax department looks only to the revenue and does not recognize any "gambling" devices, it was stated. The affidavit, which must be filled in before a license to operate a slot machine can be contained, contains a phrase that says "no element of chance enters into the operation of the said slot machine." This is the only means of licensing slot machines in the State, it was said.

Approximately 2,000 machines are licensed and in operation in "practically every section of the State," Morrissett's office said.

In addition to the affidavit which operators are required to sign, the commissioners of revenue furnish a sticker to be attached to each machine. Tax department officials said operators are required to purchase licenses when one of their inspectors finds a machine without the sticker.

An opinion given by Attorney General Staples in April, 1934, states it "is unlawful for any person to keep or exhibit any slot machine or other apparatus therein described (section 4676 tax code) for the purpose of gaming."

The attorney general also pointed to a section which states that a slot machine "which does not uniformly return to the customer in each transaction the equivalent in value and kind of merchandise, unaccompanied by coins, trade checks or other items of monetary value that it returned in each preceding transaction, shall be deemed to embody the element of chance."

Bottling Works Blast Costs Man His Sight

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., July 12.—T. Patterson Knowles, foreman of a bottling works here, who was taken to the University Hospital June 19 for treatment after he had been burned by a gas explosion, has lost his sight. He was opening a cooling coil, containing sulphur dioxide gas, which he believed to be empty. The gas exploded when it came in contact with the air.

Kenneth Payne, who was similarly injured this week while overhauling the cooling system of an electric refrigerator, is reported in a serious condition at the University Hospital, with possible loss of one eye and permanent injury to the other.

Columbia Aims Its Guns Toward Further Conquest of Academy Palms and Prizes

Film Schedule For Season Is Full of 'Names'

Others to Be Announced; Earle Invites Guests; Theater Notes.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

Having just returned to the Capital from his company's 1935-36 sales convention in Chicago, that high-strung Southern gentleman, Mr. Sam A. Galanty, Mideast division manager for Columbia Pictures Corporation, is imbued with large thought concerning the merits of the product he is about to market in the Washington territory.

One gathers that the product is completely free of demerits, which is a consummation concerning which we devoutedly hope Mr. Galanty is correct. The percentages seem to be a bit in his favor, at that.

However, lest we be faced with charges of rabid partisanship—which we do not at all feel, except that Columbia has manifested a surprising ability to "hit the ball" these past few seasons—it seems best to permit Mr. Galanty to speak for himself. I give you Mr. Galanty:

Our convention, covering our 1935-36 program, has just closed in Chicago and we are now in a position to present an important percentage of our new product. The tremendous strides Columbia has made in the past two years has made it possible for us to prepare and carry out a remarkable program for the new season.

As opportunities arise for important casting and the acquisition of worth-while story properties, further plans will be announced. However, at this time we proudly announce four productions which will be guided by the genius of Frank Capra—two of them he will personally direct and two he will supervise. The first will be the highly successful story, "Lost Horizon," which will star Ronald Colman.

We take pride in announcing that our forthcoming program will include two productions starring Grace Moore. Her latest picture, "Love Me Forever," is now enjoying an unprecedented third-week engagement at Radio City Music Hall. Leo Carillo, who steps into top rank with his performance in this picture, will be definitely starred in two of our new season's productions.

We are confident that with the lovely Irene Dunne, we will create a production that will bring her to new heights.

B. P. Schulberg, successful production head, will bring his support to Columbia with six productions. The first, "Rich Man's Daughter," is now rapidly nearing completion. It will bring to the screen George Raft and Joan Bennett in what we feel will be a notable photoplay.

Chatterton's "Comeback."

"Modern Lady," an excellent Grace Perkins story, has been selected as the vehicle to star Ruth Chatterton. We feel that this picture will provide a smashing climax for Miss Chatterton's remarkable career.

Joseph Von Sternberg, who has created some of the finest productions in our industry, will begin work on "Crime and Punishment." This play from the book of Dostoievsky will feature Edward Arnold, Peter Lorre and other important names now being cast.

With Walter Connolly, Ann Sothern, Jean Arthur, Edmund Lowe and other important names now being contracted, we are confident of a brilliant 1935-36 season.

Michael Bartlett, whose magnificent voice is a high light of "Love Me Forever" has been signed to a long-term contract and will shortly be seen in a story especially created for his talents.

"She Married Her Boss," featuring Claudette Colbert, is now nearing completion at our studios.

I shall be glad to furnish you from time to time other announcements which will prove highly important to the entire industry.

With best wishes and kindest personal regards. Sincerely, (Signed). SAM.

Company Swept Field.

One suspects that in contemplation of the probable superiorities of many of these new Columbia releases, Mr. Galanty is influenced slightly by an ineradicable consciousness that it was his company which last season practically made a clean sweep of the prize awards of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences with "It Happened One Night" and "One Night of Love."

That is a difficult consideration to overlook, for a fact—especially since Columbia and Miss Moore have come dangerously near doing it again in "Love Me Forever," opening today at the Earle.

Mr. Galanty's outfit seems definitely to be going places.

Having watched numerous others celebrate the acquisition of the honorary distribution under the roof of his elegant hostelery, that exciting experience now has come to Mine Host Harry P. Summerville, managing director of the Willard Hotel. I mean to say that only a couple days ago the genial boniface presiding over the destinies of the whole Fourteenth street block between the Avenue and F street was commissioned a Kentucky Colonel on the staff of that indefatigable bestower of accolades, Gov. Ruby Laffoon. Harry has his commission safely tucked away in his inn's strong box, has ordered a ten-gallon Stetson, parades the corridors of the tavern with a mint julep in each hand and is going seriously about the business of sprouting a goatee and a pair of handle-bar mustaches. Congratulations, fella, and I hope the worst war you get into will be fighting your way up to the pari-mutuel windows on Derby Day!

Officers to Be Guests.

The officers of the Tennessee State Society have been invited to attend Grace Moore's screen performance in "Love Me Forever," at the Earle Theater tonight, as guests of John J. Payette, general manager of the Warner Brothers' interests in the Washington territory.

Miss Moore, who has won renown on stage, screen, in radio and as a member of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, was born in Jellico, Tenn., and received her education in Nashville. She then came to Washington to study voice in the school conducted here by the late Mrs. Katie Wilson-Greene. She made her concert debut here, singing with Martinelli while still a student.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull is honorary president of the Tennessee State Society of Washington. Other officers are Judge Hugh M. Tate, 3221 Macomb street, president; Mrs. Lucile Foster McMillin, 2400 Sixteenth street, vice president; Walker Trotty, 1200 Sixteenth street, secretary; L. H. Distman, 1630 Rhode Island avenue, treasurer, and George M. Jackson, 4706 Ninth street, chairman of entertainment committee.

Those who saw and enjoyed its performance here by the Pierce Hall Players last season will be interested to know that "44 Below," by Edward de S. Melcher, our gifted and energetic afternoon contemporary on the Star, will be presented a week from next Monday night at George Sherwood's Summit, N. J., theater. This play, which followed reasonably close upon the heels of "Little White Mice," in which the author himself played the lead at Pierce Hall, has attracted the favorable attention of the Broadway agents. In the forthcoming Jersey production, Marie Nordstrom will be featured in the role created here by Maude Howell Smith, with Jimmy Spottsfield presumably in the part played by John Sikken.

In this connection it is pleasant to note that over the last week-end Eddie completed the script of still another full-length play—the first one of genuinely serious purpose he has essayed—bearing the title of "Cubicle." The principals in this one are youngsters of 13 or 14 years of age enrolled in a New England school. One hears it rumored that a brief outline of the theme and general treatment of "Cubicle" enlisted the eager interest of a distinguished actress-producer, who was a recent visitor in the Capital.

If Mr. Melcher isn't careful, he will land on Broadway the first thing he knows!

As announced in this space several days ago, the next production of the National Civic Theater Society in the Odeon, on the grounds of the National Park Seminary, Forest Glen, Md., will be an original play by Margaret Hatfield, a member of the organization's acting group.

After several rechristenings, the title finally decided upon—and I submit that it is not yet the best that might be hit upon by dint of intense concentration—is "Till Death Us Do Part." The marital problems of five couples are more or less threshed out between the first and final curtains.

The new play will be given its try-out, preliminary to a possible Broadway hearing in the fall, during the week beginning next Tuesday night, July 16.

This production will place the Civic group on a parity with the Roadsiders in the matter of manuscript plays presented for the first time on any stage, with the score even at 1-all. The Roadsiders are in their second week of "Grand Gesture," a heretofore unacted play by Winona Godfrey, a Hollywood scenario writer.

A Bus Man's Holiday.

Tonight the "Roadside Special" will transport patrons out to the Capital's popular barn theater on the Rockville pike, 4 miles beyond Bethesda, Md. A special bus will leave Dupont Circle, from a point on Connecticut avenue in front of the Riggs National Bank Branch, at 8 p. m., promptly, arriving at the Roadside Theater in time for the first curtain of "Grand Gesture" at 8:40.

No stops will be made between Dupont Circle and the playhouse. The bus will remain on the grounds until after the performance to return its passengers to Washington.

If this service proves popular with those who find it difficult otherwise to reach the Roadside, the management will arrange for more frequent service. The round trip fare will be 40 cents. Further inquiries, if any, should be made by calling phone number Cleveland 4256.

It is Norris Millington, of the Capital Screen Research Service, 5809 Thirty-second street, who calls this column's attention to the fact that "Loves of a Dictator," the Gaumont British production with which the Belasco Theater will reopen about Labor Day, according to present plans, is an historical romance of eighteenth century Denmark, instead of sixteenth century, as inadvertently appeared here yesterday. Mr. Millington goes on to say: "Incidentally, it is one of the finest films turned out by the British producers. The opening caption says, 'Denmark—1766'." We are grateful for the interest that prompted the correction.

Who remembers 'way back when at about this time each year new girls-and-music shows where breaking in by the gross for the hot weather edification of the so-called tired business man chap who always displayed a remarkable talent for coming to life as soon as the sun went down? Usually, they opened at Atlantic City, in the Apollo Theater, then came to the National, in Washington, for a week before going on to Broadway for the late summer and early fall, after which they took to the road again. Try and find one today!

So some smart guy with a diabolical sense of torture that would have done credit to the Spanish Inquisition sends along a picture of a summer camp pitched in the shadows of snow-clad mountains, a glacial brook trickling across the foreground. The only part of it we have down here is the trickle!

Appear Today on Local Screens

The Reviewing Stand.

New York, July 12.

I like Babe Ruth's reflections on fame in the current American Magazine: "I have stood side by side with great surgeons, engineers, economists; men who deserve great followings—and yet the crowd cheered me instead. And I knew an old priest once. He wrote his name on just a few simple hearts; I've written my name on thousands and thousands of baseballs. Besides that obscure priest, I never got to first base, although I'm listed as the greatest home run hitter." . . . Timmie Lansing and Peter Arno will be married within the fortnight in Connecticut . . . Gilbert Roland and Connie Bennett are spatting . . . Grace Moore's phenomenal flicker popularity can best be appreciated when reduced to dollars and cents at the box office . . . In September, her first picture, "One Night of Love," in two weeks drew $207,000 into Radio City Music Hall . . . Her present picture, "Love Me Forever," will gross $270,000 in three weeks, at the same house, so within the space of ten months, the Jellico, Tenn., girl will have enriched the music hall by $477,000 . . . Out of that, Columbia Pictures will get about $125,000 on the percentage rental deal . . . Most astounding feature of the present run is that the July Fourth week is poisonivy to all theaters.

In three recent nation-wide radio polls, Himber's was one of three bands to make a grand slam . . . short, stocky, freckled and red haired, he is well liked along Tin Pan Alley, although he spends most of his spare time in the Broadway shooting galleries, smacking clay pigeons on the upbeat . . . Most satisfying all-around actor of the screen, I think, is Reginald Owen in "Escapade" . . . I've never seen him give a poor performance . . . Vote on Judges Awaits Probe Of Complaints

King Believes 4 Municipal Court Appointees Will Be Confirmed.

After polling a majority of the members of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, yesterday decided to investigate complaints made against two of the Municipal Court judge appointees before reporting to the Senate.

The complaints, which came in letters, were not serious in character, he said, and he foresaw no obstacle to a favorable report on all four nominees.

King said that a majority of the Judiciary Committee had approved the appointments, but he would try to get in touch with all members before making the report. He predicted approval early next week.

Because no serious objections have been made to any of the four appointments, King decided not to hold any public hearings, as is customary when opponents file complaints.

All four appointments are understood to have the indorsement of United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett.

Two of the nominees are at present judges — Nathan Clayton and George Aukam; while two of them are new, Ellen K. Raedy, replacing Mary O'Toole, and Walter J. Casey, supplanting Ralph Given.

Virginia May Hold Same Tax System

Revenue Held Sufficient for Social Security Plan.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., July 12.—Virginia may preserve intact the tax system that has survived the depression with but little change when the General Assembly gets around to consideration of a social security plan, Ashton Dovell, unopposed candidate for Speaker of the House, said today.

The delegate from Williamsburg said he did not share the belief that a sales tax would be necessary to raise funds for a State old age pension fund to match Federal appropriations, and indicated the possibility that Virginia could be credited with upward of $200,000 a year he said was spent on superannuated employes of the State and $800,000 annually in Confederate pensions.

Dovell, who is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the liveliest fight would originate in proposals to shift to the general fund sources of revenue now segregated for highway purposes.

The probable amount the State would have to raise to meet Federal allotments for old age pensions has been estimated by State officials at about $2,500,000.

Georgia Starts Fight to Lower Freight Rates

Discrimination Against the South Charged by P. S. Chairman.

By the Associated Press.

Atlanta, July 12.—A two-edged fight on the Interstate Commerce Commission was launched today by the Georgia Public Service Board to lower class freight rates in the South.

One path led toward Federal court, where Chairman Jud P. Wilhoit said the commission would seek to enjoin the I. C. C. from effecting higher rates in Georgia for intrastate traffic.

The other was directed toward Washington with Wilhoit requesting Congress to "take a hand" and end discrimination against the South.

"There is no justification for freight rates being used further to protect Eastern industry," Wilhoit said.

As to the I. C. C. order canceling action by the State Commission in reducing by 18 per cent last year the charges on class merchandise between points in Georgia, Wilhoit said this "has not by any means concluded" the fight.

"The Georgia Commission intends to use every available means to put before the people of Georgia and the people of the South the cold facts with the full confidence that when they realize the situation, it will be corrected," he added.

He charged the Interstate Commerce body with smiling on discrimination between the South and East but frowning on discrimination within the South.

"Both are discriminations—one legal, the other illegal—made so by opinion of the I. C. C.," he said.

Wheat Price Cut By Good Weather

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 12.—Auspicious conditions prevailing at least temporarily both for the domestic winter wheat harvest and for spring wheat progress caused material breaks in wheat values today.

Sharpest downturns of Chicago wheat prices came just at the last, with enlarged selling because of pronounced weakness shown by Kansas City and Minneapolis markets alike. Contributing momentum to the downward swing of prices was evidence of unabated bearish influence of the United States Government's unexpectedly optimistic latest appraisal of the country's general crop prospect.

Wheat closed shaky at the day's lowest level, 1⅝@2⅛ under yesterday's finish; September, 82⅛@82¼; corn unchanged to ⅝ down; September, 74½@74⅝; oats, ⅜@⅝ off, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents decline.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

Stocks Advance in Moderately Active Trading, Led by Aviation, Motor, Liquor and Rail Equipment Groups — Wheat Declines.

By Carlton A. Shively.

New York, July 12.—With turnover in excess of a million shares, the stock market shook off its lethargy before the close and ended with higher prices. Leading issues rose 1 to 2 points, a handful of favorites setting the pace by moving into new high ground. Bonds were dull and irregular. Commodity markets found the day unsatisfactory. September wheat turned in a loss of 1⅞ cents a bushel at 82¼.

Week-end trade news was mildly revivifying, but not fresh enough to stimulate a broad movement in the markets. Motor output for the country, in June, the Automobile Association reported, was sharply higher, compared with the previous month and with a year ago. Incidence of the holiday brought down freight car loadings, and the loss was considerable compared with last year.

In the retail field the story was a little better. The Federal Reserve Board's index of department store sales for June stood at 80, against 76 in Many and 74 in June of last year, on a seasonal basis. On some indices of business activity the current recession is shown to be greater than seasonal, while other indications are that it is less so. Certainly the summer dullness is much less marked than usual in the motor field, and the larger harvests in prospect promise rising railroad traffic. Whatever may be the case currently, hope in a good autumn rally is justified from the facts at hand.

War Clouds Less Dark.

Even the foreign war clouds lifted a little. For all the clamor in Fascist circles, it is doubtful if the Italian leaders care to put their country's economic life to the strain that a war would involve, come defeat or victory. If that trouble can be settled, currency stabilization will have been brought nearer, and that means further recovery in world trade.

Dollars were down a little in silver currency quotations, but they rose against the gold bloc and sterling. Many markets have dropped into their customary mid-July somnolence and are unlikely to emerge for another three or four weeks.

Certain stalwarts in stocks held the line during the uncertain stages of trading and led the advance in the closing hour. General Motors was easily the headliner. It again opened at 35, on a block of 3,000 shares, and early in the final hour ran up to 36, for a new high price for the year.

Trading in the stock had the earmarks of well informed buying, for the motor group in general was not especially strong. Chrysler was fractionally lower during the greater part of the day, but it rallied before the close. Motor accessory shares were mixed. Kelsey Hayes issues reached new tops and Timken was higher. Electric Auto Lite was bought moderately.

Next to the individual performance of General Motors, the aviagroup turned in the best performance. All were unusually active and consistently strong. Douglas and Wright were the most prominent and both entered new high ground for the year. Douglas advanced a point and Wright rose one. For want of other explanation Wall Street assigned the war talk as the cause for airplane activity.

As trading progressed a quiet advance got under way in two or three stocks, outside the motor and aviation groups, that recently have been mentioned as possibly worth while. Schenley was in that class. In the last hour it moved along with little opposition to a new high for the year. Another stock to go up without much notice was Connecticut Railway preferred at the odd lot post. Rails were a bit undecided, but some of the rail equipments pushed into new high ground, particularly Car & Foundry, the common rising 1 and the preferred 4 points. Oils, steels, tobaccos, chemicals, foods, metals, stores and amusements were steady to firm.

Auto Output Is 48% Above 5-Year Average

New York, July 12 (AP).—The Automobile Manufacturers Association announced today that its members had produced 276,218 motor vehicles in June, an increase of 11 per cent over the May output and 21 per cent ahead of the 1934 June month.

The association's preliminary report stated that on the basis of its estimates the production of members for the first half of this year amounted to 1,537,906 units, which was 20 per cent over the same period last year and 48 per cent above the average for the last five years. The report covered the operations of all but one of the major producers in the industry.

More Production, Fewer Births, Recovery Aids, Says Babson

Keeping People Out of Debt, Encouraging Output and Reducing Total of Wage-Workers, Three Factors to Eliminate Poverty, He Declares.

Wellesley, Mass., July 12.—In an address here tonight before the Summer Institute for Social Progress, Roger W. Babson said that the Wagner bill would increase the cost of living; that employment decreased 4 per cent under the NRA; that public works fool the workers; that large corporations often are a blessing, and that restricting production is harmful.

In giving his ideas as to what he would do to eradicate unemployment and poverty, he said he would accompany all relief work with an appeal for birth regulations among those receiving relief.

"This I would do publicly and privately," he said. "The very fact that a family is on relief shows that too many of that group exist. Hence I would use every decent means of reducing the numbers until the group no longer needed relief. This is just ordinary commonsense.

"This whole question of relieving unemployment seems so simple that I cannot understand why anyone will permit religious or other prejudices to block the solution. Eliminating poverty depends upon three simple factors, viz.: (1) Keeping people out of debt so that they cannot be exploited; (2) encouraging production so there will be more to divide; and (3) reducing the number of wage workers so there will be fewer to divide among. This has been advocated for some time by sane economic experts like Prof. Carver."

"I often have letters asking what I would do to eradicate unemployment and poverty," he said. "These letters say it is easy enough to criticize the New Deal and the various other 'isms;' but why don't you give us something constructive? Here is my thoughtful answer to the question.

Increase Production.

"First, I would proportionately increase production to the very limit. Only as more is produced is there more to divide. The idea that the Nation can get richer by producing less or by working shorter hours or by getting deeper into debt is crazy. Only as we produce more than the other fellow is our labor in demand. If you are out of a job, the reason is that others are producing more than you are producing. A demand for your labor must be created. This means that you, with your brain, time and strength, must produce enough to make it worth the while of some one to employ you.

Encourage Business.

"Second, I would encourage those who are in a position to do so to give employment. A program which discourages enterprise, thrift, and even normal speculation is short-sighted. Furthermore, if we are to eliminate unemployment, the Government should avoid all taxes which repress production, should suppress all violence and fraud, should enforce all reasonable contracts and stabilize credit by balancing the public budgets. In short, the Nation today needs more employers and needs to have those who are already employers employ more people. The quickest way to reduce unemployment is to encourage, instead of discourage present employers.

Restrict Government.

"Third, I would confine the activities of the Government to character building, education, fire, police and accident protection, public health, road building, flood and erosion control, reforestation and repasturization, permanent beautification and to other fields which private enterprise can not easily enter. There surely is enough of such works needed to keep even politicians busy for many years to come.

Draft Employes.

"Fourth, if by this time abnormal unemployment still persisted, I would quota and assign to employers in proportion to their ability to absorb some one or more from each family now in distress. This could be done with the understanding that employers could not discharge others without the approval of some local impartial board like the local draft boards which functioned so well during the World War. If each employer today would increase his force 5 per cent, this would absorb all unemployed males under 30 years of age. We drafted men out of industry during the World War. Why not draft them back into industry during this world depression?

"Fifth, I of course would work for the readjustment of wealth. But even this is largely a political camouflage. Statistics show that in almost every community the rich families of 60 years ago are broke today; while the wealthy of today are the sons of the humble. It is only three generations "from shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves,"—whether you consider families or corporations. It, however, is far better to let this readjustment take place naturally than to force it artificially, by any Huey Long hothouse method or by taxes which result in more unemployment.

"Sixth, naturally I favor necessary relief; but relief cannot possibly help recovery. In short, the solution of our problems must come through race betterment. Those who produce more than they consume should be encouraged to breed; while those who do not should be taught not to breed."

Standard Gas Asks Extension Of $24,649,500

Holders Are Told Action May Be Taken Under Bankruptcy Act.

New York, July 12.—Standard Gas & Electric Co. has mailed to the holders of its $14,823,000 20-year 6 per cent gold notes and its $9,826,500 6 per cent convertible gold notes, both due October 1, a prospectus relative to a plan for the extension to October 1, 1940, of the time for the payment of the principal of these notes. The plan of extension provides that the rate of interest shall continue at 6 per cent.

The other funded debt, which consists of the 6 per cent gold debentures series A, due February 1, 1951, the 6 per cent gold debentures series B, due February 1, 1966, the 6 per cent gold debentures, due February 1, 1957, and the prior preference stock $7 cumulative, prior preference stock $6 cumulative, $4 cumulative preferred stock and common stock of the company will not be affected by the plan of extension.

It is proposed that the plan of extension will become operative when 95 per cent of the outstanding notes maturing in 1935 have been deposited. However, the plan may be declared operative at the election of the board of directors of the company, when 66 2-3 per cent of such outstanding notes have been deposited. Following a recent practice in cases of similar extensions, noteholders are requested, when depositing their notes, to accept and approve the plan as a plan of reorganization in the event of its presentation as such under section 77B of the bankruptcy act.

Alcohol Shares Lead Curb Higher

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 12.—A broad and sustained demand for alcohol shares and specialties was the principal feature of curb market trading today. Gains in these two divisions averaged around a point and while oil shares were backward, other divisions of the list were pulled into line during late transactions after displaying irregularity during the forenoon.

Utility shares were generally inactive and closed about unchanged with the exception of American Gas, which blossomed out into a full-fledged rally during the final hour, when a heavy demand developed. The stock got as high as 30 at one time but yielded a trifle to close at 29¾, up ¼ point on balance.

Other shares selling higher included Aluminum Co., Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Hiram Walker, Great Atlantic & Pacific, Lake Shore Mines and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. Losses were shown by International Petroleum, Creole Petroleum and Humble Oil, among petroleum shares.

Greenberg's Blow in 8th Decisive

Washington Gets 5 Hits, Detroit Slams Seven Before 8,000.

Powell Again Is Felled by Nerve Trouble; to Be Out a Week.

By Shirley Povich.

ALVIN CROWDER and the shock of a well-pitched game by one of the Washington employes overcame the Nats yesterday. Their batting attack sagged like that stratosphere balloon when even a moderate supply of base hits would have lifted Ed Linke to a deserving victory over the Tigers, but with Crowder permitting only one man to reach second after the second inning, Detroit edged in with a 2-1 triumph.

The ball game was not the thing lost by the Nats yesterday. The services of Outfielder Jake Powell will be missed for an indefinite period as a result of a recurrence of a sciatic nerve trouble in his right leg.

Powell, who was carried from the field at Cleveland half-crazed with pain two weeks ago, yesterday suffered a second attack while the Tigers were at bat in the fifth inning and limped out of the game obviously suffering. The Washington club physician last night was unable to forecast when Powell would return to the line-up. Trainer Mike Martin predicted no more than a week's absence.

Greenberg Sinks Linke.

The Nats' third well-pitched ball game in a month was ruined for Linke by big Hank Greenberg in the eighth inning when, with two out, he slashed a burning single into left field to bring home the decisive run. It was the last of the seven hits that Linke yielded. None was for more than one base.

Crowder held the Nats to five hits, but found himself in a brilliant duel with Linke, who was striving to shoo away the lengthening shadow of the minor leagues, which had all but enveloped him as a result of recent failures.

The Ladies' Day crowd of 8,000 saw the Nats give Linke a 1-0 lead in the first inning, when Kuhel drilled a double into right center field and scored when Rookie Dee Miles slashed a single into left with two out.

That inning summed up the Nats' attack. Crowder, discharged by the Washington club last year for incompetency, made the Nats rue their act with each succeeding inning. Singles by Travis and Holbrook in the second were nullified when Bluege hit into a double play and in those last seven innings a bunt by Buddy Myer was the only hit yielded by the veteran right-hander.

Linke yielded the Tigers a useless hit in the first and struck out the side in the second, but with two out in the fifth he permitted the Tigers to tie the score. He walked the fleet Jo-Jo White, who promptly stole second and went to third on Catcher Holbrook's wild throw. He ankled home on Marvin Owen's sharp single to right.

Linke Fans Gehringer.

Pete Fox started the trouble for Linke in the eighth when he drove a single past Travis into left field. The conventional sacrifice by Cochrane advanced Fox to second and Linke slipped a third strike past Gehringer for the second out. But he couldn't get past Greenberg and it was the first baseman's drive to left field that won the ball game.

Sammy Holbrook's town-lot baserunning in the fifth didn't help the Nats either. After he led off the inning with a walk, Crowder delayed his throw to second too long on Bluege's sacrifice and Holbrook was safe, but, failing to slide until it was too late, he overslid the bag and was out, thus nipping a budding rally, which would have put two on with none out.

And there was that decision by Bill Summers in the sixth inning when, with one on base Miles seemingly beat out a hit to Greenberg, but Summers declared that the rookie had run outside the baselines and was automatically out. The ladies' day crowd was showing great dislike for both Summers and his decision for the remainder of the game.

Three Distressing Moments for Nats in Losing Battle With Tigers

Base running best described as dumb. Sammy Holbrook nips a Washington rally in the fourth by refusing to slide into second base on Bluege's attempted sacrifice. Bill Rogell, who tagged Holbrook when he overran the bag, is seen taking Crowder's throw.

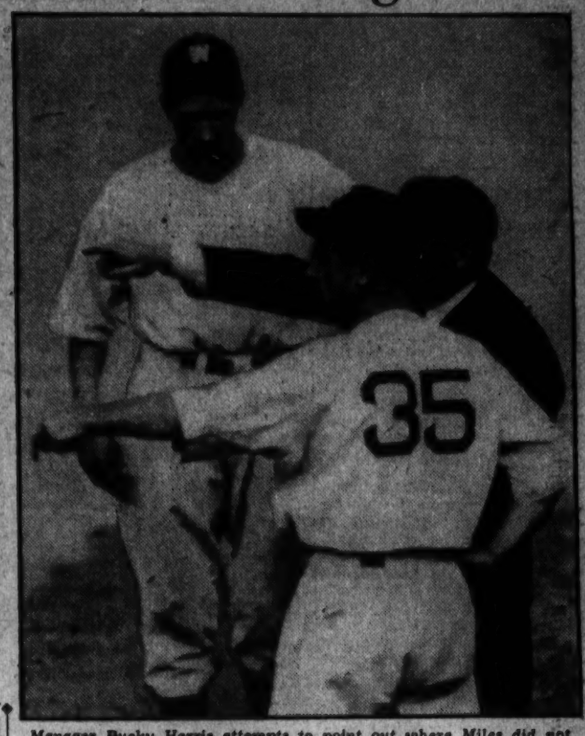
Teammates assist Jake Powell from the field in the fifth. Powell is seen limping after suffering a sudden recurrence of the injury to the sciatic nerve of his right leg. Left to right are Johnny Stone, Ossie Bluege and Powell. Joe Kuhel is nearing the scene.



Manager Bucky Harris attempts to point out where Miles did not run out of the base lines on his hit to Greenberg in the sixth inning, and Umpire McGowan just as emphatically points out where Miles did violate the rules. Miles is seen looking on.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich

HANK GREENBERG isn't kidding when he says he is not trying to better Babe Ruth's home-run record of 60, despite the fact he was ahead of Ruth's mark when he hits twenty-fifth homer a week ago. He hasn't hit one since, and there's a reason. He changed bats ditched his home-run bat for a Hornsby model that has more hitting surface.

POVICH.

The big Tiger first baseman felt keenly his mission from the American League All-Star team earlier in the week. Mickey Cochrane explained to him that it was his unhappy faculty of striking out frequently that made him a poor risk compared to Lou Gehrig, who had driven in barely half as many runs as Greenberg.

That hurt Greenberg and he asked Cochrane, frankly, what to do about it. Cochrane told him, "Stop trying to hit the ball out of the lot every time you go to the plate. You're tight, you're tense, and you're not set for different kinds of pitching. You've got to lay there and try to outguess the pitcher when you're swinging for home runs. Stop it and you'll be a better ball player."

And Greenberg took him at his word.. He gave away all his Greenberg model bats with the tapering handle and adopted the Hornsby style of lumber, wider in the hitting end and with no knob at the end to permit the familiar toe-hold. Unlike his own model, Hornsby's is not a fly-ball bat, but a stick calculated to drive the ball on a low trajectory. It means the sacrifice of home runs but it also means more baseHits.

No inconsiderable item in the pennant drive of the Tigers this year has been the batting of Pete Fox, the rabbit-like outfielder who batted .285 last season and is now sporting a figure of .342 to lead all the Tigers in hitting.

Fox, who on Thursday terminated a 29-game hitting streak, didn't delay the start of a new streak yesterday when he singled on Linke's first pitch of the ball game.

During his streak, Fox raised his average 60 points, and his present mark is no surprise to Texas League fans who remembered him as the best outfielder in the circuit before he joined the Tigers.

In fact, Fox was outhitting Greenberg when they both were Texas Leaguers and it was always a source of surprise to his admirers when the little outfielder failed to hit for a respectable figure with the Tigers.

Fox attributed his batting rise to two items—luck and added weight. "I put on ten pounds during the winter and it has shown its effects by putting more power behind my hits. But I'm getting some better breaks, too. Last year there always seemed to be an outfielder planted right in front of my solid drives. This season they're dropping safely."

Since he relieved Jo-Jo White on June 13, no Tiger outfielder has been able to displace Fox. He was inserted in the line-up only because he was the only Tiger who could play the sunfield with any degree of expertness and when he started hitting, Manager Mickey Cochrane was not only content but overjoyed to leave him in there.

In Short.

Jake Powell was rated by Clark Griffith as a $50,000 ball player before the rookie suffered injury to the sciatic nerve of his right leg and hip . . . Griffith still rates him at that figure, as a matter of fact, but prospective purchasers don't . . . Ed Remorenko, the Nats' big first-base rookie now at Chattanooga, was the roommate of "Aalabama" Pitts when he was with Albany . . . and calls Pitts "one swell chap" . . . Mule Shirley, former manager of Chattanooga, has joined up with Knoxville . . . Remorenko challenged Dave Harris, former Nat, to a fight after Harris stepped on his foot in running out an infield hit . . . there was no fight . . . Kiki Cuyler was drawing $14,000 under his contract with the Cubs . . . and is getting the same figure with the Reds . . . Tony Ragusin, Biloxi Chamber of Commerce secretary, yesterday signed the Newark team to train at the Gulf resort next spring . . . Lou Finney, of the A's, and Sugar Cain, a former teammate now with the Browns, had it out on the floor of the dressing room at St. Louis . . . it was a draw . . . Hal Trosky, Cleveland slugger, has adopted Babe Ruth's batting stance . . . Rollie Hemsley, Browns' catcher, has sworn off—corn on the cob.

Yanks Conquer Tribe on Pair Of Homers

Crosetti, Gehrig Support Ruffing With Hits for the Circuit.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 12.—The Yankees kept their slender American League lead intact today when they downed the Cleveland Indians for the second straight time, 5 to 2, and swept the abbreviated series.

Home runs by Frank Crosetti and Lou Gehrig got the Yanks off to a good start, and they never let up as Charley Ruffing and Monte Pearson battled on almost even terms under a broiling sun. Ruffing gave up nine hits and Pearson ten, but both were fairly effective except for the two Yankee clouts into the bleachers.

Crosetti's swat, his seventh of the season, tied the score in the third inning after the Indians had scored in the second on a pass to Bruce Campbell and singles by Hal Trosky and O'Dell Hale. Gehrig poled homer No. 12 in the next inning, after Ben Chapman had singled, and that gave the Yanks a lead they never lost.

Score Again in Seventh.

Base hits by George Selkirk and Crosetti and Ruffing's infield tap produced a run in the seventh, and the final tally came after Cleveland had scored in the eighth, when Red Rolfe and Bill Dickey combined singles with a sacrifice by Chapman.

The second Cleveland tally came from one-baggers by Bozie Berger, Joe Vosmik and Campbell.

The victory was the eighth for the league leaders in 13 encounters with Cleveland and it was the Indians' tenth loss in their last eleven games. By lasting the full distance, Pearson become the second Cleveland pitcher to go the route in that 11-game stretch.

Brookline, Mass., July 12.—Guy Cheng, member of the Chinese Davis Cup team, today bowed out of the Longwood Bowl tennis tournament by dropping a straight set match to Norcross Tilney, Princeton's Eastern intercollegiate net champion, in the quarter-final round.

The top-seeded Chinese was an easy 6—1, 6—2, 6—3 victim for the Tiger star.

Chisox' 17 Hits Top Red Sox By 13 to 2

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 12.—Jimmy Dykes' third-place White Sox pounded four Boston pitchers for a 13-2 victory today to square the four-game series. The visitors slammed out a total of 17 hits but clinched the game in the opening frame, when they pounded Joe Cascarella, latest addition to the Cronin pitching corps, for three runs.

The slugging Zeke Bonura led the White Sox attack with a pair of doubles and as many singles, which drove in four runs. Manager Dykes accounted for four more with his two-bagger and single.

Cascarella lasted for an inning and a third, but the Chisox were equally rough with his three successors, "Dusty" Rhodes, George Hockette and Fred Ostermueller, who has been out of action for seven weeks.

British Lads Fear First Flight, Take It and Then Cry for More

By Paul Gallico,

A Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 12.—These hot languorous days it is a lot cooler in the sky than on the ground. You climb into your flying machine, hoist her off the field and then climb in lazy circles until you find how high up is. Then you stay there. To cool off, you can skid, which sends the breeze batting against the side of your head, or you can side-slip, which sends it whistling through all of you. The earth dances far below in the heat waves and looks very sticky and messy.

Nonfliers taking their first hop are funny. They are all the same. No matter how carefully you explain on the ground that before coming down the throttle is closed and the motor shut down to idling speed, they never fail, every time you cut the gun, to turn around and stare at you anxiously, their eyes large and wide behind their goggles.

Before the amateur British boxers returned to England, we took them out to Roosevelt Field, where United Air Lines had very kindly sent us one of their big Boeings to take the kids for an air ride around New York. None of them had ever been up before. While they waited their turn to go on the New York trip, I hopped the kids in an open plane, two at a time, around the field, which should once and for all kill the notion that British fighters are lacking in courage. No joy riding, straight and level flying, a take-off, a circle, two landings and back to the gang.

Detroit Picked For Flag by Cochrane

Tiger Manager Sees Race Between His Club and Yankees.

By Dillon Graham,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Cleveland and Boston have been rubbed out of Mickey Cochrane's American League calculations and he has written the pennant race down as a "two-hoss" affair between Detroit and New York, with the Tigers likely to outbattle the Yanks.

"We've been playing better ball than the Yanks and have a fine chance of beating them," said Mickey, a picture of sartorial splendor, as he lounged about his hotel lobby before yesterday's game. "but I really can't see any hope for those other clubs now."

The Tigers, who caught the Yankees in mid-July last year and pulled away in August, have batted in more runs, made more extra base hits and scored more runs than the McCarthymen and, while Cochrane concedes New York has more good pitchers, he figures his own regular starters are as good as those of the Yankees.

More Fight, Confidence.

"I believe we've got more fight and confidence and that will aid us in a close race," Cochrane said. "Do you know we've scored around 10 runs a game for the last dozen contests. That shows power, and we've got more than the Yankees.

"And as for fight, how about our last two games. We went into the ninth Wednesday trailing by six runs, and almost tied. Thursday we rallied and won in extra innings. Its going to be hard for anyone to beat a club that never knows when its licked."

The last few weeks have seen Cochrane recover his batting eye, Greenberg go ahead in home runs, Gehringer hold to second place in batting and Fox put together a string of 29 consecutive games in which he hit safely. The Tigers figure they can't be stopped now.

Worried Over Stars.

Recent poor performances by Schoolboy Rowe, the pitching star of last year, and Tommy Bridges, have worried Cochrane some.

"Rowe must win if we're to go ahead," he said. "If he flops, we may flop."

Cochrane says the next few weeks may tell the story:

"We've got a long trip ahead, while the Yanks are playing at home. If we can just hold our own on the road, we may breeze ahead when we return home."

Blaeholder on Slab, A's Rout Browns, 9-0

Philadelphia, July 12 (AP).—The Athletics gained an even break in the four-game series with the St. Louis Browns by coming through with a 9-to-0 shutout today.

George Blaeholder, pitching for the Mackmen against his old teammates, held the Browns to seven hits. Pinky Higgins' ninth home run of the season aided the A's.

Schmeling Now Ready To Fight Louis in Fall

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 12.—Joe Jacobs, American manager of Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, tonight said the German slugger had agreed to fight Joe Louis, Detroit Negro bomber, in New York in September.

Schmeling, who is on a hunting trip, informed Jacobs by telephone, the latter said, that inasmuch as Max Baer was troubled with his hands, he would fight the Detroiter in the hope of hurdling him to a fight for the championship with Jim Braddock. Schmeling said he was confident he could defeat Louis and that he believed the fight would result in a large gate.

Jacobs said there was only "one unimportant matter" to be settled in regard to the proposed fight and he believed this would be ironed out in a long-distance telephone conversation with Mike Jacobs, Milk Fund promoter in New York.

Schmeling was expected to come to Berlin Monday to sign a contract for the Louis fight.

Walter Rothenburg, European promoter, had been attempting to match Schmeling and Baer for a fight in Amsterdam, Holland. His proposal that Schmeling fight Pierre Charles instead of Baer failed to find favor.

Schmeling is under contract to fight for Rothenburg until August 8 on the condition that the promoter signed Baer before that time. Rothenburg said he already had signed Primo Carnera and Walter Neusel as a preliminary to his intended Baer-Schmeling battle.

Discovery 6 - 5 In Handicap At Empire

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Three of the turf's fastest thoroughbreds will settle an argument over the division of $10,000 tomorrow when Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery and A. A. Baroni's Top Row, between them holder of three world records, and C. H. (Pat) Knebelkamp's King Saxon, top ranking miler, meet in the Butler Handicap at Empire City.

Discovery has turned in the fastest time ever recorded for 1⅛ and 1 3-16 miles, reeling off the shorter distance in 1:48 1-5 in the Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct three weeks ago and the latter in 1:55 at Narragansett Park last year. Top Row hung up the international mark of 1:42 for 1 1-16 miles at Bay Meadows last December.

King Saxon, making his first start since suffering an injury in the Brooklyn, has not been beaten at a mile or less in more than a year of campaigning.

On the basis of records, the 1⅛ miles of the Butler should be made to order for Discovery. The Vanderbilt chestnut will shoulder 132 pounds, nine more than he carried to his world record, however, and will be meeting in Top Row a horse that equaled the track mark of 1:51 in winning his Eastern debut last Saturday. The King, which set the burning pace in the Brooklyn, only to weaken in the final eighth, is said to be in tip-top condition again.

Despite the disadvantage in weights and the fact that he will give the King 8 and Top Row 16 pounds, Discovery is the 6-to-5 choice in the pre-race betting to chalk up his fourth straight victory. Top Row is second choice at 13 to 5, while the King is held at 3 to 1.

Germans, Czechs Divide in Singles

Von Cramm and Mates Now Choices to Triumph.

By the Associated Press.

Praha, July 12.—Germany's Davis Cup tennis team, led by Baron Gottfried von Cramm, became a heavy favorite to whip Czechoslovakia in the European zone finals after the first two singles matches had been evenly divided today.

Von Cramm, finalist against Fred Perry in the recent all-England championships at Wimbledon, blasted his way to an easy straight set victory over Jon Caska, 6—2, 6—4, 6—2, but it was 19-year-old Heiner Henkel who stole major honors of the day.

Henkel was beaten, but the youngster carried Roderich Menzel, No. 1 ranking Czech and a power in international tennis for years, to five sets and came within an ace of upsetting him. Menzel won after a grueling battle of two and a half hours, 7—5, 6—1, 4—6, 2—6, 6—4.

Teralice and Sgt. Byrne Win Co-Features at Suffolk Downs

Stevenson Up As Choices Triumph

Triple Is Completed by Young Rider Astride Songstone.

By the Associated Press.

SUFFOLK DOWNS, Boston, July 12.—Two odds-on favorites, Teralice and Sergeant Byrne, captured the co-features, the South Shore and the Winchester, in the third day of racing at Suffolk Downs. Charlie Stevenson made a triple when he booted in Sergeant Byrne under the wire in the Winchester. His other wins were turned in on Songstone, in the first race, and Teralice, in the fourth.

Sergeant Byrne took command in the rush to the first turn and opened up daylight between himself and Golden Fate, the second horse, and Bahamas. In winning, the son of Stimulus turned in 1:11 for the 6-furlong route, the fastest time for that distance made in a five-horse field of handicap horses to the value of $6,000 or better.

Stevenson, the country's leading apprentice jockey, turned in a sterling ride while rating Teralice perfectly in the back stretch and bringing him home under wraps. Safe and Sound was five lengths in the ruck of the leader, but barely captured the place position by a nose from Don Guzman.

2 Diving Queens Will Meet Monday

A royal battle—with queen meeting queen, no less—is brewing for Monday night's big swimming meet at Glen Echo. In the headline event, Marian Mansfield, 18-year-old queen of Chicago's aquatic ranks, will meet Marie Duvall, District champion and one of the East's foremost feminine divers, in a double-barrelled duel for the National A. A. U. Women's Junior high board championship.

Miss Mansfield, a student at Northwestern University, placed second in the Senior National indoor meet at Chicago last year. En route to Manhattan Beach, New York, for the Senior National championships, July 18, the Chicago co-ed has stopped off in the Capital with the hope of adding another title to her list of conquests.

Pimlico Will Revive Futurity Next Nov. 2

Baltimore, July 12 (AP).—Mathias L. Daiger, secretary of the Maryland Jockey Club, announced today that the Pimlico Futurity, abandoned in 1932, will be revived on Saturday, November 2, at Pimlico.

Daiger said that if 10 horses go to the post, the purse will total $56,840, with $47,840 going to the winner.

SONGSTONE, a first-time starter, displayed speed from the outset, moved up stoutly to take the lead midway of the turn and, hard ridden, held sway to the end. NARISE moved up steadily leaving the back stretch and finished with good energy. REMINDING, slow to begin and outrun for the first three furlongs, moved up on the outside when reaching the stretch and, closing stoutly, was going the fastest of the lot at the end. MAMA MARY showed a good effort. MANY MOONS was rushed up nearing the far turn to enter into contention though unable to improve her position in the drive. KTWO was never a factor. GLITTER GLOW showed good speed, but stopped in the last three-sixteenths.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GLITTER GLOW, $6.80, $4.20, $3.00; LANQUO, $8.00, $5.20; MARY VICTORIA, $4.40.

GLITTER GLOW, under slight reserve until reaching the stretch, lost ground at the turn, but moved to the front with a rush and drew out steadily. LANQUO found clear sailing on the inside when leaving the back stretch, moved up fast and, greatly benefited when the leaders swung wide at the stretch turn, held on well and just lasted to save the place from MARY VICTORIA. The latter, outpaced early, came with a rush through the stretch on the inside and was going gamely at the windup. THE WAY held on well until the end. OPERA BOUFFE showed good speed for the first three furlongs, tiring thereafter.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. The Charles Town, first division. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 3:17. Off at 3:25. Winner, Mrs. J. L. Wilson's ch. f. (3), by Genie—High Spade. Trained by E. McCuan. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH HAND II, $8.40, $4.40, $3.40; TREASURY KEY, $7.60, $5.60; LEANA G., $5.60.

HIGH HAND II, a prominent factor from the start, kept within striking distance of the pace, moved up stoutly when called upon, wore down EVANGELIST for the lead and, kept under pressure, drew clear at the end. TREASURY KEY displayed her usual early speed, was taken in hand around the far turn when outrun by EVANGELIST, but closing gamely, wore the latter down though unable to reach the winner. LEANA G. improved her position gradually and closed stoutly through the stretch run. EVANGELIST showed good speed for the first half-mile, weakening through the last three-sixteenths. DARK VIVE, unable to keep up early, closed considerable ground. TED HUSING was never prominent.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 3:52½. Winner, P. M. Pike's b. h. (5), by Terry—Alice Harris. Trained by T. Horning. Value to winner, $800; second, $250; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:12, 1:38 4-5, 1:45. (New track record).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAST MOVE, $12.80, $5.80, $5.60; GRANDPA'S BOY, $13.00, $10.00; LAST ROMANCE, $14.00.

FAST MOVE followed close pursuit of the pace established by RAMUS, wore the latter down when reaching the stretch and, hard ridden at the end, lasted to stave off GRANDPA'S BOY. The latter worked his way up gradually and closed with good energy through the stretch. LAST ROMANCE moved up on the outside down the back stretch, came through on the inside at the stretch and closed willingly. RAMUS took command in the run to the first turn, was rated along in front until reaching the stretch and tired in the last three-sixteenths. BROWN HILDA was unable to reach the leader after going to a forward position early.

14 Fillies Run For $35,120 Today

Vanderbilt's Balcony and Parade Girl Backed Into Favoritism.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Fourteen of the fleetest 2-year-old fillies in America were named tonight to go to the post in the Lassie Stakes, world's richest race for juvenile misses, at Arlington Park tomorrow. If all start the event will have a value of $35,120.

Since a king's ransom will be at stake there will hardly be an outstanding member of the division absent, when the barrier is sprung. It will be the first time this year that 2-year-old fillies have been asked to run as far as six furlongs.

While the race may be regarded as a wide-open affair, the public pinned its faith to the pair entered by Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, of New York, Balcony and Parade Girl. Parade Girl is the one fancied because of the splendid race she ran in the Great American Stakes in New York on July 4, in which she finished second.

Hold Western Hopes.

The Westerners were hoping for a victory in Hal Price Headley's entry of Pelerine and Tinkling Brook and the entry of Forever Yours and Toro Lee, owned by Mrs. Ethel Mars, of Oak Park, Ill., running in the colors of the Milky Way Farms Stable. The Pacific Coast was represented by Toro Prodrome, owned by Norman W. Church, of Los Angeles.

Two Women Are Tied In Manor Golf Event

Mrs. J. W. Kramer and Mrs. Harvey Cooper were tied for low score in the medal play with handicap ladies' tournament at Manor Club yesterday. Mrs. Kramer shot 93—14—79; Mrs. Cooper, 91—12—79. Miss Marian Brown shot a 97—16—81; Mrs. J. W. Powell, 94—12—82.

Mrs. W. H. McCarthy won the nine-hole honors with 56—18—38.

D. C. Repair Shop and NRA Nines Battle to 9-9 Tie on Ellipse

Clerks Save Game With Late Run

J. Stevens' Home Run Feature Hit of Government Loop Game.

Bob 6S GOV wtih 8 col line HtoK—DISTRICT REPAIR SHOP and NRA battled until darkness last night in a crucial U. S. Government League game on the Ellipse, finally ending in a 9-to-9 tie. NRA was fighting to retain undisputed hold on second place in the league and nearly lost it, a run in the ninth and last inning saving it from defeat. A home run by J. Stevens also proved rather valuable for NRA.

Going into the game with only a one-game lead over the Shopmen, NRA got off to a two-run lead through the hitting of Barry, Zahn and Freschi. The Repairmen opened up with four in the second and later succeeded in finally bringing the substitution of De Bettencourt for Pitcher Mattingly after finding him for 17 hits.

Corcoran and Long led the hitting, each getting four hits for the Shop team. Lacy, of the Shoppers, held his rivals to ten hits, a good share of which came in the third, when five runs were scored.

Briton Forecasts New Speed Record

Salt Lake City, July 12.—A fellow British driver predicted today that Sir Malcolm Campbell would have no difficulty in reaching his goal of 300 miles an hour over the Bonneville salt flats.

The author of the prediction, John Cobb, himself was preparing for a 24-hour endurance run over the crystalline course west of here, after having set two dozen speed marks in an hour's run yesterday that he claims are new world records.

Hagen Is Stroke Behind in Play for $1,000.

By the Associated Press.

Fonthill, Ontario, July 12.—Ray Mangrum, of Pittsburgh, and Byron Wilson, of Ridgewood, N. J., tonight were leading the way toward the $1,000 first prize money in the General Brook Hotel Open Golf Tournament.

They posted 36-hole cards of 143, just one stroke ahead of Walter Hagen, who missed tying them by 1 inch, that being the distance that he missed a putt on the eighteenth.

Adelaide Boose Advances in Net Event

Defeats Mildred Kenmore; Irma Willard Beats Edith Goodwin.

ADELAIDE BOOSE, of Takoma playground, whose play in the annual girls' singles tennis tournament of the department of playgrounds has rated her a strong contender for the championship, added another to her string of victories yesterday winning from Mildred Kenmore, of Phillips playground, 6—4, 4—6, 6—2.

The Kenmore miss provided her opponent with the stiffest kind of opposition for much of the match, in which both girls clearly showed the effects of the heat. Miss Boose took the deciding set largely by outlasting her tiring adversary. The match was played at Takoma.

Irma Willard Wins.

Irma Willard partially avenged the defeat for Phillips by eliminating Edith Goodwin, of Takoma, 6—3, 4—6, 8—6, in one of the longest matches of the tourney. Lucille McDowell, of Burroughs, favorite to reach the finals, turned back Doris Kramer, of Hoover playground, 6—1, 6—0, on the Rosedale courts.

Montrose and Georgetown girls split honors in two matches on the Montrose courts. Mary Hunter, Georgetown, won from Hilda Thompson, 6—1, 6—2, and Eileen Lennon, Montrose defeated Irma Ludwig, 6—3, 6—2.

Other early round matches will be played today. Officials expect the quarter-finals to be played Monday.

Radcliff Trims Channing for Net Title

Special Dispatch to The Post.

FREDERICK, Md., July 12.—Climaxing some spectacular playing, A. Atlee (Buddy) Radcliff brought back the junior singles title of the Blue Ridge Mountain Tennis tournament to this city by defeating Charlie Channing, Washington Tech high school star, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, at the Catoctin Country Club yesterday, before a large gallery.

Radcliff, who went out in the semi-finals of the tournament last year, reached the peak of his game yesterday. Slamming home placements with accuracy and keeping Channing away from his dread net game, the Frederick boy kept his deep forehand drives on the corner lines until he saw an opportunity to rip home a "kill." Channing, kept on the run throughout, played a steady game, showing a puzzling "American twist" serve and beautiful stroking. He kept the ball on Radcliff's back-hand most of the time but lacked the power strokes to turn the tide in pinches. His net game was excellent but Radcliff's deep shots kept him from taking the most advantage of it.

Ritzenberg Beaten.

Allie Ritzenberg, Washington, defending junior singles champion, was eliminated by Channing, 6—1, 6—4. Ritzenberg went down under the clever placements and sterling net game of Channing.

Miss Grace Parker, Baltimore, defeated Mrs. Elizabeth Bopst, this city, to win the woman's singles. The victory gave Miss Parker the claim to the feminine championship of the State. Miss Bopst displayed her best tennis in the first set, when she took a lead of 3—1 only to have Miss Parker even the count and go on to win in straight sets.

Culpeper Nine Victorious 17 to 3

Special Dispatch to The Post.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., July 12.—Culpeper stepped out of its role as leader of the Valley League long enough this afternoon to trounce the Independent Fredericksburgs, 17 to 3.

Waugh, on the mound for the visitors, held the Fredericksburgers in check with five safeties, one a triple by Bryant in the ninth that gave them two of their three runs.

Joe Garvey, who defeated Culpeper for the Antlers earlier this season, was nicked at will by the hard-hitting Rappahannock County collegians today. They garnered a total of 17 safeties.

Six Runs in First.

A deluge of six hits and as many runs in the first frame put the game on ice for the visiting champions.

George Lacy and Bergman came through with three hits, including a home run apiece. Douglas was also hot in the attack, with three safeties.

Young Pitcher Reappears, Ends Hunt

Signed With Albany Club; Mother's Plea Began Search in 3 Cities.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

BALTIMORE, July 12.—Joe Cambria, Baltimore business man and baseball magnate, found a new pitcher Tuesday and started a police search that did not end until today.

Before it ended the hunt had drawn in the police of Philadelphia, Baltimore and Buffalo—all looking for John M. Benninghoff, 19, of Jenkintown, Pa.

Benninghoff left his home Tuesday with a man his mother understood to be a scout for the Orioles, and when he had not been heard from last night the boy's mother appealed to the police.

Reappears at Home.

Philadelphia police had communicated with the authorities in Baltimore and in Buffalo, where the Orioles are playing, but had failed to turn up any trace of the boy when he walked into his home today with a wide grin on his face and a professional baseball player's contract in his hip pocket.

He had been signed by Cambria and instructed to report to a team in Charlottesville, Va. His absence was accounted for by a trip to Baltimore for a tryout under the eye of Cambria, who owns the Albany team of the International League and the Harrisburg team of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

Let's Go Fishing . . .

By M. W. Meier.

IF the weather man gives anglers a break over the week-end, the mid-bay should produce the best fishing of the season. Croakers will predominate, but the weaks, blues and rocks have definitely started to bite.

Best news for the week-end is the fact that huge schools of weaks were reported in and around Solomon's Island on Thursday night and Friday. Many Washingtonians happened to be there at the time and most of them caught their share of fine fish, which averaged between three and five pounds.

The weaks were reported in mid-channel, but by Sunday they ought to be far up the Patuxtent and the little creek above Solomon's. Shrimp proved the best bait on them for those who reported catches.

After almost a week of more or less indifference, the croakers are now biting again all over the bay and they are being landed in unbelievable numbers. You can go just about anywhere on the Chesapeake and get all you possibly want.

We wouldn't be surprised to learn of mid-bay catches of blues this week-end. If the weaks are moving up then the blues can't be far behind.

If you plan to fish Sunday and have not yet reserved a boat, you'd better reach for your telephone right away. Most boats have already been engaged. If you lack names or numbers of boat captains we invite you to give us a ring. If we happen to be out The Post switchboard operators will help get the data you require.

Boats at Ocean City have all been reserved for the next two days. After days of rather tough weather, they are now catching blues, channel bass, kings and porgie without any trouble.

Piscatory Personalities.

LOUIS STEINAR, good column friend, spent Thursday night at Solomons Island with Captain Cornwell and a party of his friends. They hit a huge school of weaks and had no trouble hooking many of them, but landing them was another problem. The final catch showed a nice collection of 3 to 5 pound fish and hundreds of fat croakers.

Every boat at Solomons was engaged Thursday and Friday. Without exception, they all caught fish, hardhead predominiating, with a fair sprinkling of weaks.

James Grandstaff, of the Bureau of Animal Husbandry, together with a party of seven friends, hit the Gooses early yesterday morning and came back to town with more than 200 big croakers. These fish al ran around the 3-pound mark and one and all stopped fishing from sheer exhaustion.

Another local party on the Gooses Thursday night was composed of Phillip R. Belt, James L. West, Hugh L. Finnegan, Fred C. Kelly, Ben Lindsay and Earl Gilchrest. They fished from 8 to 10 p. m. with Capt. Insley, of Kenwood Beach, and landed an even 200, all croakers, running from one to a record fish of five pounds. When the bait ran out, the crowd had to quit.

Harris Morris, Robert Hall, Fred Zaller, William Phillips and Cedric Robinson, all of the Flavorite Ice Cream Co., brought back 87 huge blues from Ocean City yesterday. They drove down Wednesday night and spent less than a day outside to make this fine catch. The fish ran around the five-pound mark.

Dr. J. J. Field, of Washington, tried out Fox Hill Levels on Thursday and landed a fighting channel bass in the surf. The fish ran a bit over 25 pounds and gave the doctor the thrill of his life.

Ocean City these days is chock-a-block with anglers from all points of the compass and they are having splendid sport on everything from sting ray to huge shark and turtle. The best channel bass caught the past week were landed by a trio of Berlin (Md.) anglers. They caught plenty and most of them hovered between the 25 and 30-pound mark. This party was made up of Albert Bowen, Fred Adkins and Ernest Burbage.

Bonito and dolphin of fair size are now showing up at this popular ocean resort. The fish are not yet plentiful, but they add fun to the man who likes a mixed catch.

Did you ever catch croakers on a drone? M. W. Harrell, 4321 Seventh street northwest, was trolling for rocks near Broome Island with Capt. Perry Elliott the other day and succeeded in landing four in this manner. The drone hooks were baited with bloodworms. Other members of this party consisted of H. M. Hanft, Alfred S. Rich and J. A. Davies. This is the first time to our knowledges that croakers have been landed in this manner on a fast-moving bait.

Bass Fishing Fair.

BASS fishing in adjacent streams is really good right now, but few men seem to be taking advantage of the fact. Most of the streams are in fair shape, and it isn't much of a trick to land good-sized small and large mouth bass.

We are wondering if anglers hesitate to try for bass through lack of proper tackle? A fairly decent outfit can be obtained for about $8, and if a 5-ounce, 6-foot stick is purchased it can be used for light fishing in salt water.

To us, the 6-foot casting rod is the ideal length for accuracy and action. On a special Devine, of this length and only weighing 3¼ ounces we have landed salmon up to 30 pounds, rocks up to 38, and blacks up to an ounce less than 11.

The trick in landing a heavy fish on a light rod is a matter of knowing the bowing power and using the "butt" with discretion. It is the constant spring of the rod which tires a fish out.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 12.—Overcoming a deficit of two sets and 5—3 in games in the third, Charles Harris, of West Palm Beach, Fla., put on a whirlwind finish today to upset J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange (N. J.) veteran, and enter the final of the Invitation Tennis Tournament at the Bathing and Tennis Club. The scores were 3—6, 3—6, 8—6, 6—1, 6—1.

Outplaying Harris by a wide margin, Hall was within two points of victory when his game collapsed completely. After Harris had squared the match at 5-all in the third set, the New Jersey veteran lost all control of the ball and made repeated errors.

The victory entitled Harris to meet the winner of tomorrow's match between Wilbur Hess, of Texas, and Frankie Parker, the defending champion from Lawrenceville, N. J., for the title Sunday.

Once Overs

By H. I. Phillips

THE ONCE OVER.
Extra! Banker Joins Circus.

Spokane, Wash.—Harper Joy, vice president of an investment bank, has taken two weeks' vacation to clown with a circus. He will follow his annual custom of making the Western Canadian swing with the big top and then return to his duties as the bank.—News item.

• • • •

There's a bank executive with an idea! After what the bankers have been through for the past few years they certainly need relaxation. Maybe a circus is just the ticket.

• • • •

Very few bankers are too busy these days, but the great danger is that after a few weeks with a circus they wouldn't want to come back to the bank.

• • • •

"That fellow who stars in the famous circus act 'Shot From a Cannon' has nothing on the bankers and business men of America," said a well-known banker this morning, "and doing his act would be right down our alley."

• • • •

"It would be pretty nice to get away from all these business regulations and tax projects and have some good clean fun," said a leading industrialist as he read about Harper Joy's vacation under the big top. "But I don't know whether a circus would be much of a change for me. I feel I've been with a circus ever since the Democrats started regulating me."

• • • •

Other views as expressed to this column's Inquisitive Reporter today, follow:

Cassius Whorzell, president of a big downtown bank—Give Mr. Harper Joy my compliments and tell him I wish I had thought of it first.

• • • •

Halsey P. Skudder, founder of one of the country's oldest banking establishments—I've been with a three-ringed circus ever since the Republicans went out, but I can't see any advantage in turning pro.

• • • •

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — An Important Call — By Harry J. Tuthill

Yes I'll admit I heard you hollering out the window, but I thought it was that collector for the radio who got so tough last....
It's the telephone. And they said very important. Insisted that I get you.
Wash your hands before you grab up that clean phone. Also, wipe your feet.
They've waited the longest time....while I hollered to you...and went back, and then ran downstairs.
If it's that dizzy collector..
Hello...yes..yes... who? Oh, Count Salamander. Who did you say was with you.... Hartford Oakdale? Yes, put him on...
That Count who was here... and accused Oakdale of taking his papers...
And now they're chums?
Yes...yes, Hartford:...what's that?..war munitions...secret work for the U.S.A? Need my help.? what's that...must have password to see you.? Listen Hartford, where are you and how long will you be there?

On The Air Today

A variety of headline names are offered in the Chateau broadcast from WRC tonight at 8:30. Al Jolson runs the show and his guests will be Joan Blondell; the former heavyweight champion, Jim Jeffries; George Sidney and Charlie Murray, who played the original movie series of Cohen and Kelly adventures, and Lee Wiley.

Sidney and Murray will step into their old Cohen-Kelly roles and Joan Blondell will play the lead in a dramatic sketch. Victor Young's Orchestra supplies the musical background.

* * * *

Mary McCormic, opera star, will guest with Billy Mills and company, WJSV, at 12:45 p. m., if the cutting of this program at the local Columbia outlet for Afternoon Rhythms leaves any time for Mr. Mills and his company . . . H. V. Kaltenborn is heard in the second of his talks from London, WJSV, at 7:45 p. m., on "What Next for Germany?"

* * * *

"Curbstone Queries" will complete its first week on the air, WMAL, at noon, today. Listeners are invited to send suggestions for questions for this informal questioning of passersby in front of The Washington Post Building. It should be mentioned, however, that suggestions advanced thus far are indeed gratefully acknowledged, but the majority have not been adaptable. A good "Curbstone Query" question must have a "follow-through." It must be general and of interest to a large number of persons.

* * * *

One listener telephoned following the sidewalk forum Friday noon and said she felt the question: "What Would You Do If You Suddenly Came Into Possession of a Hundred Thousand Dollars?" was "capricious."

The importance of this listener's observation and opinion is the ever-interesting fact that we all have different tastes and preferences in entertainment. One listener's favorite radio show is another's irritation.

To provide a balanced entertainment a variety of questions should be propounded. Politics, government, sports, crime, humor—everything that goes into the formation of a well-balanced newspaper should, it would seem, be treated in the course of a month.

* * * *

Perhaps the best confirmation of the wide divergence of our tastes is seen in the answers to the question about the $100,000. One man said he would instantly buy a yacht, another would get married "the same day," another would have nothing but investments, another would travel before doing anything else—and so on.

* * * *

All of which prompts us to call to the listener's attention a voting form which will appear in The Sunday Post tomorrow, through which a cross-section of opinion is sought of program preferences. Such a poll not only can be interesting but also constructive in the production of programs.

* * * *

The results of the poll will be printed on The Sunday Post radio page at a later date. Our personal speculation is that the leading programs as named by listeners sending in the voting forms (spaces are prepared for five preferred programs) will in a general way match the selections made by national polls conducted annually by radio trade magazines. But—we shall see. See the radio page of The Post tomorrow—and send in the form with your preferences jotted down.

The Federal Diary

...egistered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

(This is the seventh in a series on foreign civil service).

ONE of the features of the British civil service worthy of intensive study by America is the variable cost-of-living bonus that is added to the basic scales of pay in the administrative class. The basic scales of pay are based on pre-war conditions; hence the variable bonus practice.

BAKER.

Within the administrative class the basic scale and differentiation of responsibility have been standard since 1920. An idea of pay for various positions is gained from the following summary:

(The amounts are given in pounds sterling. The pound yesterday was quoted in New York as worth $4.96.)

Permanent under-secretaries, 3,000; deputy permanent under-secretaries, 2,000; principal assistant secretaries, 1,200, 100*, 1,500; assistant secretaries, 1,000, 50*, 1,200; principals, 700, 25*, 900; assistant principals, 200, 20*, 240, 25*, 500.

*Annual increment.

The English recognize recruitment as the fundamental operation in building a strong public service. The original selection is closely watched to prevent staff weakness from the very beginning.

The drawing power of the British public service is a complex entity, depending upon the wholesomeness of public employment in toto, the opportunities for a career which it provides, and the prestige which it commands. As outlined in previous articles in this series, in Great Britain, the public service enjoys the highest reputation and it is generally agreed that grade for grade, the Government gets its full share of the very best qualified people who deliberately seek a career in Whitehall rather than in industry, business, medicine, etc.

It is well to note in the process of recruitment the care with which age limits are set to correspond with graduations from schools, and the consequent low level at which they are fixed for most classes. This is especially true of the general and departmental clerical classes.

Thus, it is seen that the British civil service is closely allied with the school system. this is due partly to the conception of the service as a career to which young men and women devote their lives; and partly due to the desire to avoid the danger of recruiting persons who have failed in other occupations and who eventually seek haven in the public service. Also in the early days it was believed that appointment by merit to positions would stimulate interest in continued education.

The use of academic examinations in the British service, in lieu of special knowledge tests, is due to the direct correlation of entry into the public service with school-leaving age.

Typical school-leaving ages in Great Britain are: 1—Sixteen to 17, representing partial completion of secondary education. 2—Eighteen to 19, full secondary education. 3.—Twenty-one to 24, university education.

Writing assistant	16 to 17
Clerical class	16 to 17
Executive class	18 to 19
Administrative class	22 to 24
Postoffice	15 to 18
Male sorting clerk and telegraphist	15 to 17
Typist	18 to 28
Inspector of factories	23 to 32
Customs and excise officer	19 to 21
Assistant auditor, exchequer	18 to 19

Types of examinations will be discussed tomorrow.

Assured that all precautionary measures are being taken to prevent another disruption of the air-conditioning system, employes of the fanless interstate Commerce Commission and Labor buildings are breathing cool sighs of relief.

Memo to Congress.

O where and O where has my thirty days gone
That was so dear to me,
Vacation's cut short
And the hours seem long,
O where, O where can it be?

We'd do better work with a thirty-day rest,
For if we have only fifteen
We can fill up the car
But can't get very far,
Just a waste of our good gasoline.

O when and O where will our leave be restored
We're asking our Uncle Sam
For a fifteen-day vacation
Is just a vexation
We want a vacation "what am!"
FLORENCE E. MARSHALL, (F)
Internal Revenue.

Union Men Persist In U. S. Building Strike

Officials of the Labor Department conciliation service were unable to obtain an understanding, but expected to resume their mediation efforts today.

The union men walked out Monday and indefinitely delayed work on a $1,000,000 air-conditioning plant because they refused to work in the same building with 40 nonunion men employed on an electrical job.

TODAY'S SECRET AND DEADLY STRUGGLE BETWEEN LAW AND OUTLAW

IT TOOK FINGERPRINTS TO SOLVE THESE BAFFLING IDENTITIES

Frank Nash, master mind behind several of the country's most desperate criminal gangs

IF YOU killed a man . . . could you hide quietly, confidently . . . safe from pursuit? If you feared an assassin . . . would you know how to protect yourself . . . if necessary, how to buy an armored automobile? If you were in prison, condemned for life . . . would you know how to escape? Could you pit your ingenuity and skill against the super-detection of the G-men?

NO ORDINARY criminal could reply "Yes!" to these questions . . . but the ruthless elect of crime know all the answers!

IT IS with this group . . . its members and methods . . . that Courtney Ryley Cooper deals in a new series of articles about the uppercrust of the underworld and the law's relentless efforts to crush it. They are stories of real life that make the wildest detective fiction seem insipid by comparison. Watch for the first article
